6-BILLION TAX BILL PASSED BY SENATE IN 13-HOUR DEBATE

Measure to Go to Conferees Is to Yield a Total of 4 Billion for 1920.

SEMI-LUXURY LEVY STANDS

Provisions Eliminated by House Are Restored, but Impost Is Cut to 10 Per Cent.

EXTRA PAY FOR SOLDIERS

Amendment Would Give a Month's Bonus — La Follette Substitute Beaten.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—After nearly thirteen hours' continuous debate the Senate at 10:30 o'clock tonight passed the War Revenue bill, with its tax yield of $5,978,000,000 for this year and a proviso for a maximum yield of $4,000,000,000 for 1920. The bill was put through by a viva voce vote.

The vote came after an eleventh hour effort of Senator La Follette to have a substitute measure adopted, providing a higher schedule of excess war profits. The Wisconsin Senator sought to raise $9,000,000,000 through the War Revenue bill, of which $5,000,000,000 would be applied to the corporation war profits.

Mr. La Follette spoke for three hours upon his substitute. He severely attacked the Finance Committee's system of excess profits as favoring the corporations and putting an unfair tax upon individuals. The Senate rejected the La Follette substitute by a vote of 55 to 6. Those voting in favor of it were Senators Nugent and Vardaman, Democrats, and Borah, Gronna, La Follette, and Norris, Republicans.

Amendments to the Bill.

The War Revenue bill was amended in several particulars, the chief amendments being one to restore the semi-luxury taxes that had been struck from the bill as passed by the House; another to put an assessment of 100 per cent. on all campaign contributions exceeding $500; another to make the District of Columbia "bone-dry," this being done through an amendment offered by Senator Sheppard of Texas, and still another to eliminate the tax on motor tractors, trailers, and trucks. Various amendments of less importance were adopted.

The revenue measure was passed in record time by the Senate for a bill of its magnitude. It reached the Senate on Dec. 6. It was passed by the House on Sept. 20, and the next day went to the Finance Committee.

After the passage of the measure tonight Vice President Marshall named Senators Simmons, Smith of Georgia, Williams, Penrose, and Lodge as conferees to meet with those to be appointed by Speaker Clark from the House. The conferees are expected to get to work on the bill before the end of the week.

The Senate, after passing the Revenue bill, adjourned until Thursday.

Reduction of Luxury Tax.

The hardest fight of the day's debate came on the recommendation of the Finance Committee to strike from the measure the schedule of semi-luxury taxes as adopted by the House. The committee had eliminated all of these. By aligning themselves in the fight, the radicals among the Democrats and Republicans succeeded in overthrowing the action of the committee, the taxes being restored to the bill by a vote of 38 to 32.

The Senate, however, reduced the luxuries taxes from 20 per cent., as they were in the original House bill, to 10 per cent. This was done on an amendment offered by Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin. The yield under the 10 per cent. tax will be about $100,000,000. Later in the day the Senate, by a vote of 35 to 17, adopted an amendment to the luxury tax to strike out the tax on men's and boys' suits or overcoats, women's and misses' suits, coats, dresses, and hats.

Here are the luxuries subject to the 10 per cent. tax as adopted by the Senate:

Carpets and rugs, including fiber, except imported and American rugs made principally of wool, on the amount in excess of $5 per square yard.

Picture frames in excess of $10 each.

Trunks in excess of $50 each.

Valises, traveling bags, suit cases, hat boxes used by travelers, and fitted toilet cases, on the amount in excess of $25 each.

Purses, pocketbooks, shopping and hand bags, on the amount in excess of $7.50 each.

Portable lighting fixtures, including lamps of all kinds, and lamp shades, in excess of $25 each.

Umbrellas, parasols, sunshades, on the amount in excess of $4.

Fans, on the amount in excess of $1.

House or smoking coats or jackets and bath or lounging robes, on amount in excess of $7.50 each.

Men's waistcoats, sold separately from suits, on the amount in excess of $5.

Men's and boys' hats, on the amount in excess of $5.

Men's and boys' caps, on the amount in excess of $2.

Men's, women's, misses' and boys' boots, shoes, pumps, and slippers, not including shoes or appliances made to order for any person having a crippled or deformed foot or ankle, on the amount in excess of $10 a pair.

Men's and boys' neckties and neckwear, on the amount in excess of $2 each.

Men's and boys' silk stockings or hose, on the amount in excess of $1.

Women's and misses' silk stockings or

Gen. Rhodes, U. S. A., Hurt and Pilot Killed in Air Flight

PARIS, Dec. 23.—An airplane piloted by a British officer and carrying Major Gen. Rhodes, U. S. A., from Treves, Germany, capsized this afternoon at Louvres in the outskirts of Paris.

The pilot was killed and the General was seriously injured.

Major Gen. Rhodes is the commander of the Rainbow Division, and has been acting as head of a military mission engaged at Spa in settling armistice problems.

WARSHIPS DUE HERE EARLY ON THURSDAY

5,000 IN LAND PARADE

Admiral Mayo Will Lead the Sailors in March Down Broadway and Fifth Avenue.

The homecoming dreadnoughts of the Atlantic Fleet, which have been on duty in the Grand Fleet, and off the French coast, under command of Rear Admirals Rodman and Rodgers, are due off Fire Island at 4 o'clock on Thursday morning. They are expected to be abreast of the Ambrose Channel Lightship at 7 A. M., and the head of the column should pass the reviewing yacht Mayflower soon after 9 o'clock.

Secretary Daniels, who will arrive here tomorrow morning, will hoist his flag on the Mayflower at 8 o'clock on Thursday morning and immediately thereafter proceed to the point from which he will review the ships as they sweep up the harbor on way to anchorages in the North River.

The destroyers which are homeward bound from European waters are not expected to arrive in time to take part in the review. Rough weather and the fact that they are coming over a course longer than that followed by the dreadnoughts are responsible for the tardiness of these little fighters. It may be Friday or Saturday before the first of the returning destroyers arrives in the Hudson.

Airplanes Above the Ships.

While the ships of Admiral Rodman's and Rodgers' commands are passing in review and also during the review at anchor when the Mayflower will circle the fleet, there will be a wonderful demonstration in the air by a squadron of twenty naval seaplanes, three dirigibles, and several kite balloons. This demonstration was decided upon late yesterday afternoon. The seaplanes will come from Rockaway Beach and Norfolk. Those from the Virginia station will leave Norfolk tomorrow morning and are expected to arrive during the afternoon.

All of the welcoming ships, which include ten battleships of the Home Fleet, are now at anchor in the North River. They are the dreadnoughts New Mexico and Mississippi and the old line battleships Missouri, Maine, Wisconsin, Alabama, Illinois, Kearsarge, Iowa, and Indiana, the repair ships Vestal and Prairie, the hospital ship Solace, the supply ship Bridge, and the destroyers Radford, Breese, Craven, Palmer, Ringgold, Dent, Gamble, and Lamberton.

The New Mexico, America's first electrically propelled first-line battleship, arrived yesterday morning. She is a 32,000-ton super-dreadnought, and is a sister ship of the Mississippi. Vice Admiral Grant, the Commander in Chief of the Home Fleet, flies his pennant from the New Mexico. It was reported yesterday, but subsequently denied, that Admiral Grant would porceed to sea late tomorrow afternoon, and would join the homecoming squadrons east of Fire Island.

None of the ships now in the North River received visitors yesterday, and it is probable the visiting hours will not be fixed until after the arrival of Admiral Mayo, the Commander in Chief, who is leading the returning dreadnoughts on his flagship, the Pennsylvania, which went to Europe as the escort of President Wilson's ship, the George Washington.

The vessels now in the harbor were for the most part used for training purposes during the period of the war. It was said yesterday that on the old line battleships now in the North River more than 35,000 bluejackets were trained for the overseas service.

Mayo to Lead the Parade.

Admiral Mayo will lead the parade of sailors from the Atlantic Fleet on Thursday, according to Daniel G. Reid, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops. Admiral Rodman, who commanded the American division in the Grand Fleet, will accompany Admiral Mayo along the line of march.

According to Mr. Reid, 5,000 sailors will debark from ten dreadnoughts at noon on Thursday. These men will form in line at Ninety-sixth Street and parade down Broadway to Fifty-ninth Street, east to Fifth Avenue, to Twenty-third Street, to the North River. The parade will start at 1 o'clock sharp.

Captain Yates Sterling yesterday notified Mr. Reid that the parade would take about three and a half hours to pass the reviewing stand at Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue. Immediately after the naval pageant in the morning the steamboats Highlander, Queens, and Correction will go alongside the warships and transport the sailors to the naval landing station at Ninety-sixth Street. # SUPREME COURT FINDS AGAINST PIRATING NEWS

Upholds Associated Press in Its Litigation with International News Service.

COURT DIVIDES, 5 TO 3

Two Minority Opinions Are Rendered, but Both Condemn Unfairness of Pirating.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—In the most sweeping decision ever reached in this country dealing with property rights in news, the United States Supreme Court today affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in New York in the case of the Associated Press against the International News Service.

The decision of a majority of the court, based on a five-to three vote, as delivered by Mr. Justice Pitney, upholds every contention of the Associated Press and the injunctions and orders of the Circuit and District Courts in New York restraining the International News Service from printing for commercial gain the news gathered by The Associated Press.

The five members of the court voting for the majority opinion were Chief Justice White and Associate Justices Day, Van Devanter, Pitney, and McReynolds. Associate Justice Holmes and McKenna joined in an associate opinion in which they differed from some of the majority conclusions. Associate Justice Brandeis submitted a dissenting opinion, holding that there is no property right in news. Associate Justice Clarke took no part in the case, because he is himself a newspaper publisher.

The question whether one who has gathered general information or news at great pains and expense for the purpose of subsequent publications through the press has such an interest in its publication as may be protected from interference has been raised many times in the courts, in some cases before the United States Supreme Court, but never in the precise form in which it was raised in this case.

The Associated Press has members representing 950 newspapers, and its news service costs $3,500,000 annually, assessed on its members. The court was informed that the International News Service served 400 papers at a cost of $2,000,000 annually, and that there was keen competition between the two services.

Allegations in the Case.

The bill of complaint in the lower court was filed by The Associated Press to restrain the International News Service from pirating the news of The Associated Press. It was contended that the news of the complainant was pirated in three ways: First, by bribing employes of newspapers published by Associated Press members to furnish Associated Press news to the International News Service; second, by inducing Associated Press members to violate the by-laws of The Associated Press so as to permit the International News Service to obtain Associated Press news before publication, and, third, by copying Associated Press news from bulletin boards and early editions and selling this bodily, or after rewriting, to defendant's customers.

The District Court granted the preliminary injunction sought by The Associated Press under the first and second headings, but refused a preliminary injunction to restrain taking news from bulletin boards and early editions. The District Court was satisfied that this constituted unfair trade, but, as the legal question was declared to be "one of first impression," decided that the allowance of an injunction on the third point should await an appeal.

The Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the injunction order of the lower court so far as it went, and on appeal by The Associated Press ordered a modification of the lower court's order, remanding the case, with directions to issue an injunction also against any bodily taking of the words or substance of Associated Press news until its commercial value had passed away.

The Supreme Court has now affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals. The question argued before the Supreme Court was whether the International News Service might lawfully be restrained from appropriating news of The Associated Press taken from bulletins or early editions. The Associated Press argued before the higher court that this practice violated its property right in news and constituted unfair practice in business. The Supreme Court decided to go into the whole matter of the merits of the question whether there is any property right in news, whether, if there is such a propery right, it survives the instant of publication in the first newspaper, and whether the appropriation for commercial use of matter taken from bulletin boards or early editions constituted unfair competition in trade. The court's decision is affirmative in deciding these questions.

The court, in dealing with the property value of news, takes the position that news is the history of the day, and that

Britain Gives Notice of Using Dutch Route for Army Supplies

BRUSSELS, Dec. 23.—It is reported here that Holland has been informed by Great Britain of her intention to send supplies to the British Army of Occupation in Germany by way of the River Scheldt and Dutch Limburg.

Limburg, a Southern province of Holland, was traversed recently by part of the German Army in retreating from Belgium and France. It was stated in dispatches from Entente countries that Holland did not consult the Allies before permitting this procedure, but gave notice of it only after the Germans had begun to use Limburg in their retreat. It was stated that the Germans were disarmed.

*The New York Times yesterday printed a special dispatch from Carl W. EKATERINBURG, via Vladivostok, Dec. 22.—"It was proved at the trial that the Czar conducted secret correspondence with his personal friend, General Dogert, who urged the Czar to be ready to be freed.

"In view of this evidence together with the troublesome situation caused by the decision of the Ural District Soviet to evacuate Ekaterinburg the former Czar was ordered to submit to execution without delay because the Soviet believed it harmful and unjustifiable to continue to keep him under guard.

"'Citizen Nicholas Romanoff,' said the Soviet Chairman to the former Czar, 'I inform you, you are given three hours to make your last orders. Guard, I ask you not to leave out of your sight Nicholas Romanoff.'

"Soon after Nicholas returned from the meeting his wife and son called upon him weeping. Often Alexandra fainted and a doctor had to be called. When she recovered she knelt before the soldiers and begged mercy. The soldiers answered that it was not within their power to render mercy.

"'Be quiet, for Christ's sake, Alice,' repeated the Czar several times in a very low tone, making the sign of the cross over his wife and son.

"After this Nicholas called me and kissed me, saying:

"'Old man, do not leave Alexandra and Alexis. You see, there is nobody with me now. There is nobody to appease them, and I shall soon be led away.'

No Others Allowed to See Him.

"Later it proved that nobody except his wife and son of all his beloved ones were permitted to bid farewell to the former Czar. Nicholas and his wife and son remained together until five other soldiers of the Red Army appeared with the Chairman of the Soviet, accompanied by two members, both workingmen.

"'Put on your overcoat,' resolutely commanded the Chairman.

"Nicholas, who did not lose his self-possession, began to dress, kissed his wife, son, and me again, made the sign of the cross over them, and then, addressing the men, said in a loud voice:

"'Now I am at your disposal.'

"Alexandra and Alexis fell in a fit of hysterics. Both fell to the floor. I made an attempt to bring mother and son to, but the Chairman said:

"'Wait. There should be no delay. You may do that after we have gone.'

"'Permit me to accompany Nicholas Alexandrovitch,' I asked.

"'No accompanying,' was the stern answer.

"So Nicholas was taken away, nobody knows where, and was shot during the night of July 16 by about twenty Red Army soldiers.

"Before dawn the next day the Chairman of the Soviet again came to the room, accompanied by Red Army soldiers, a doctor, and the Commissary of the guard. The doctor attended Alexandra and Alexis. Then the Chairman said to the doctor:

"'Is it possible to take them immediately?'

"Answered 'Yes,' the Chairman said:

BAN ON TEUTON SHIPPING

No Use of Seas Till Damage to Allied Shipping and Loss of Life Has Been Recompensed.

COAL FOR FRANCE INVOLVED

Credit Facilities the Subject of Long Report by Reconstruction Board.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A special committee of the London Chamber of Commerce dealing with trade during and after the war has reported that the necessity for imperial preference in trade is stronger today than ever.

It recommends that the Government be urged to guarantee for a series of years continuance, by subsidy or otherwise, of the new or "key" industries.

It recommends also that the peace terms should compel Germany to make the fullest restitution for all allied tonnage and cargoes sunk by enemy action, such reparation to be made in ships, Westphalian coal or money.

The committee would compel Germany to furnish France with coal until the deliberately wrecked French mines were re-established, and to compensate the relatives of all seamen and passengers murdered at sea.

This committee also proposes that as an act of justice to the allied enemy vessels should not be allowed on the sea until the fullest reparation had been made, that no financially controlled enemy tonnage should be allowed under neutral flags, and that no coaling stations, owned or controlled by subjects of enemy countries should be permitted in Britsih or allied ports or possessions.

(This report was made public almost contemporaneously with a report of the Committee on Financial Facilities of Trade After the War, issued today by the Ministry of Reconstruction. The committee Chairman was Sir R. V. Vassar-Smith.)

There will be an increased demand for credit facilities during the reconstruction period, and the ability of trade and industry generally to provide for its financial needs will depend largely on the amount of reserves it has been possible to accumulate, says the report.

There are three main divisions under this head, the report says. They are firms engaged upon war work from a date soon after the beginning of the war, firms which became engaged on war work at a later period, and new firms created as a result of the enormously increased demand for war material. The chief financial difficulty, according to the report, will be in connection with the third group.

To achieve the reconstruction of trade and industry on sound financial and economic lines, the report continues, it will be necessary to re-establish a sound financial basis by means of an effective gold standard that will check any undue expansion of credit, and to take steps to reduce the inflation of credit to more normal proportions. The banks will be in position to meet demands for ordinary banking facilities.

In order that enterprises of national importance may have the first call upon the available supply of capital, it is desirable to maintain for a period after the war supervision over new issues and over the export of capital.

On the question of State aid to industry, the committee recommends the formation of a committee to deal with cases of hardship arising out of contracts for munitions. One of the largest factors in the demand for assistance will be the necessity for the requirements of factories, alteration of machinery and shortage in materials which will have to be met by increased financial facilities.

The committee thinks that fears as to the ability of trade and industry to meet the financial needs during the reconstruction period have been exaggerated. In spite of the increased taxation, a very large number of established trades have been able to accumulate sufficient reserves for the needs of reconstruction.

Commenting on the expansion of credit and paper currency, the committee says that, whereas the total deposits at the banks of the United Kingdom, exclusive of the Bank of England, at the end of 1913 amounted to £1,070,000,000, the amount of deposits now is nearly £2,000,000,000.

The committee says that it is essential for the reconstitution of industry and commerce to impose restrictions as soon as possible upon the creation of additional credit by the restoration of an effective gold standard.

The policy of trade organization now in evidence is welcomed by the committee as furnishing a sound basis for granting credit facilities to industry. The committee also believes that if a part of the new issues of stocks, which will be necessary for many manufacturing establishments, were in the form of preferred stocks giving a good return in dividends and were reserved for the workmen, it would materially assist both financially and in other actually important directions.

Regarding State aid, while the committee does not recommend the guaranteeing of banks by the Government or the investment of public money in loans to persons who have been unable to obtain them from other quarters, it is considered that cases of hardship may arise, and to meet them the committee suggests the establishment of a small committee of Government officials and business men to consider the claims and to act as a tribunal. The committee is also of the opinion that it would be of great assistance to manufacturers if a proportion of the excess profits tax should be retained for a period as a loan upon terms likely to secure an early repayment.

Neutrals May Send Delegates to Conference And Attend Sessions When Their Interests Require

PARIS, Dec. 23.—The visit of Premier Romanones of Spain to Paris has brought about a definite understanding concerning the status of neutral nations before the Peace Congress. While no formal decision has been taken, a member of the American Peace Commission said to The Associated Press today that whenever a question arose affecting the interests of any particular neutral nation it would have its opportunity of being heard, probably through delegates. These delegates, it was added, would not sit regularly in the Congress and would have no vote on questions between the Allies and the Central Powers bearing directly on the war.

This course will probably apply to general subjects like a League of Nations, in which the interests of all countries, including the neutrals, are affected, as well as subjects especially affecting any particular neutral.

It is understood that Switzerland, as well as Spain, is appointing delegates in this sense. It is expected that Holland, Sweden, Norway, and Denmark, and probably some South American republics also, will have their interests represented as occasion arises.

Premier Romanones plans to return to Paris in the near future to confer with the allied Premiers and the American representatives on questions vitally concerning Spain. The Spanish Premier, in this connection, is credited in some quarters with the project of raising the question of the return of Gibraltar to Spain and laying it before the Peace Conference.

According to the same sources, Spain is willing to concede Ceuta, on the Moroccan side of the strait, to Great Britain in return for Gibraltar, on the ground that if military reasons were held to interfere with the transfer of Gibraltar to Spain the possession of Ceuta by the British would afford equal strategic advantage in modern warfare.

WILSON TO MEET BRITISH CABINET

He Is Expected to Spend Friday Conferring in Regard to Britain's Terms.

GALA DRESS FOR LONDON

Flag-Bedecked Venetian Masts Will Line His Route Through the Capital.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—It is expected that all day Friday will be devoted to a discussion by President Wilson with the British War Cabinet of the terms to be proposed by Great Britain at the interallied conference preceding the Peace Congress.

The Cabinet, it is said, will be able to finish by tomorrow night the task of framing the terms, and the final draft should be ready by Christmas Day.

The "Belgian Suite," reserved exclusively for royal guests until now, will be occupied by President and Mrs. Wilson during their stay in London. In the years of its interesting history it has had within its walls many crowned heads, one of the latest, but the least mentioned at Buckingham Palace, being the former German Emperor. It received its name in Queen Victoria's reign from the fact that Leopold, King of the Belgians, was frequently entertained there.

One Dinner Eliminated.

At the request of President Wilson, who evidently found that too much was being crowded into his short stay in England, the proposed dinner at Lancaster House on Saturday night has been eliminated. This was to have been a function only second to the banquet at Buckingham Palace Friday night. Instead of the Lancaster House banquet Premier Lloyd George will entertain the President at dinner Saturday, to meet the War Cabinet.

Those in charge of the details of the arrangements, particularly the officials at Buckingham Palace, are at times puzzled over the niceties of etiquette, the result of the unique situation that there will be no royal guests at the Palace. These puzzles, however, have been only of momentary duration, except among some of the aged attendants, who have been casting about for guidance. It is understood that they have been informed that it will be plain "Mr. Wilson," and "Mrs. Wilson," much to their relief.

After President Wilson receives the freedom of the city at the Guildhall on Saturday, he will take luncheon with the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, proceeding thence to Buckingham Palace by way of the Thames Embankment. The freedom of the city will be placed in a handsome gold casket, which will be sent to the President later, as it will not be finished in time for the ceremony itself.

Decorating the Streets.

Workmen today began decorating the streets through which President Wilson will pass on his way to the palace on the day of his arrival, and those from the palace to the Guildhall. Venetian masts, from which will fly streamers and flags of the Allies, are being erected along the entire route. The semicircle in front of Buckingham Palace, where the Queen Victoria Memorial stands, will be a mass of flags and bunting.

The Charing Cross Station, where the President will enter London, will be gaily decorated. The Guards will furnish a guard of honor and a band, and at Buckingham Palace the King's Guard and the Welsh Guards will await the

WOULD LET BRITAIN DECIDE ON COLONIES

French Statesman Says That This Question Concerns the Empire Alone.

RESTORATION IS UNLIKELY

Military Prudence, He Says, and Wishes of British Colonists Forbid Return to Germany.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—In the course of a conversation on peace conference problems a French statesman surprised me today by saying that France was not particularly interested in the question of the German colonies.

"That is a matter," he said, "which the French consider as exclusively British, and we are prepared to agree unquestioningly to any conclusion Great Britain reaches."

I asked him if he meant that literally to the extent of agreeing to the restoration of part of the colonies, should England so decide.

"Yes, we would agree to anything," he replied, "but there is no danger of the British consenting to their restoration.

"There are three sufficient reasons for not restoring the colonies.

"The first concerns the naval activity of future wars. There is no question in French opinion that the submarine will be the chief naval machine of the future. It is true that after peace is signed and we get to a second congress for such matters as a League of Nations, we shall try to formulate some rule to prohibit submarine atrocities in future wars; but nevertheless it will not be forgotten that we have to deal with Germany and have to watch her submarine activities. For that reason England cannot afford to let Germany have colonies which would serve as building places and bases for powerful submarine fleets.

"Second, it is greatly to be feared that Germany would in future use her colonies as places in which to raise, train, and equip vast black armies to be transported to Europe.

"Third, there are the political relations between England and her African possessions. They constitute a great factor in the German colony problem. The German colonies were conquered not by the English, but by British colonial troops, largely from South Africa, where there is a mixed English and Dutch population. These English colonies will not tolerate the restoration of the German colonies and the consequent menace to themselves. So Great Britain now has a chance, by letting Cape Colony keep what it has won, to build up in that colony the same loyalty and devotion to the crown that exists in Canada and Australia."

WILSON SEES PROGRESS

Holds Vital Question of Feeding Freed Peoples Is Being Solved.

HIS CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

He Will Leave Paris at 1 A. M. and Take Luncheon with the Troops.

PARIS, Dec. 23, (Associated Press.) By tomorrow President Wilson will have virtually completed the preliminaries he is expected to dispose of before going to England. They probably will lay the principal part of the groundwork for the actual Peace Conference.

Mr. Wilson considers the most pressing of all problems before the Entente nations in a fair way toward being solved. This is the question of supplying food to the starving peoples of the liberated countries. It now seems probable that the work will be handled principally by the United States, through Herbert C. Hoover, the American Food Administrator. It has been made plain to the Entente nations that the United States has no wish to claim entire credit for the work of relief in the minds of the people who are to be fed, and a satisfactory understanding appears to be in sight.

Participation by the United States in various councils that have been handling food questions, matters of shipping, and the like, is being gradually wound up, as American officials are inclining toward the opinion that these are proper subjects for the consideration of a League of Nations, or at least of preliminary organizations which may precede it.

Some of those who have been giving the subject close study and have been following the conferences with Entente representatives say they would not be surprised if the real foundation of a League of Nations were to be laid in co-operative arrangements between the United States and the Allies for handling these fundamental questions.

Mr. Wilson's address at the Sorbonne on Saturday, in which he again defined his conception of a League of Nations, has attracted much attention from all public men here. This is especially true of his statement that the war could never have occurred if the Central Powers had discussed it for a fortnight, and certainly not if they had been forced to talk matters over for more than a year.

The President's address has recalled that the United States, while William Jennings Bryan was Secretary of State, negotiated a dozen arbitration treaties, one of them with Great Britain. These treaties bound their signatories to discuss their controversies for at least a year before proceeding to a declaration of war. An attempt was made to negotiate such a treaty with Germany, but the Berlin Government refused to entertain it. It is also recalled the same idea was once expressed in a plan for preserving peace put forward by a group headed by Viscount Bryce, former British Ambassador to the United States.

There is no official authority for the statement that Mr. Wilson is thinking of the Bryan plan as one of the elements in the proposed machinery for preserving world peace, but his reference to the plan in his Sorbonne speech has set public men to talking.

No announcement has been made as to how far the conferences between Mr. Wilson, Premier Clemenceau, Premier Orlando, and Foreign Minister Sonnino have gone, but French public men have declared that their Premier's talks with the President were entirely satisfactory. It is also believed that Mr. Wilson has made substantial progress in his conferences with Italian statesmen.

Almost on the eve of the assembling of the Peace Congress delegates, the United States is the only country which has definitely and officially announced the composition of its delegation. News reports have contained names of British, Italian, Belgian, and Japanese delegates, but the French Foreign Office has received no notification of these appointments.

The work of the American commissioners will not be delayed by President Wilson's visit to England. It is stated that the daily conferences will continue among the delegates and the corps of specialists employed in the various branches of the great undertaking, and also with such representatives of the Entente and neutral Governments as may wish to communicate with the American delegates. Such discussions will naturally be purely informal.

Up to the present moment there has been no definite decision as to when the conference will hold its first session, nor is it known how many delegates will represent each of the various nations. The delay in arriving at at an agreement of the date for beginning the conference may be explained by the fact that there has been no meeting so far between the British and American delegates.

Not much importance is attached to the number of delegates each nation will have, because the delegations will act as units in the formal proceedings.

The latest changes made by the British Government in the itinerary of President Wilson's visit to England would bring him back to Paris on New Year's Day. He will spend Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in London, and will have conferences on Saturday with Premier Lloyd George, Foreign Secretary Balfour, and Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer. The President will be at Carlisle on Sunday, and will make an important speech in Manchester on Monday. He will return to London Tuesday and will leave the same day for Paris, where he will arrive Wednesday.

President's Christmas Program.

The President's Christmas program provides for his leaving Paris on a special train at 1 o'clock in the morning, the schedule for the run providing for the train's arrival at Chaumont, General Pershing's headquarters, at 7 A. M. The party will take automobiles thence to Langres, where the review of American troops by the President will take place. He will take lunch at midday with the troops, returning to Chaumont in the afternoon. On the return the train will leave Chaumont at 4 P. M. and reach Paris at 9 o'clock in the evening.

The President will be accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, her secretary, Miss Benham; Admiral Grayson, an aid de camp, and the President's private secretary.

President Wilson has received numerous petitions from American Catholics, both clerical and lay, including several Bishops, directing his attention to the Irish question and expressing the hope that he endeavor to aid in its solution.

Mgr. Cerretti, Papal Under Secretary of State, who called on President Wilson last week, said today that his visit was purely private, and that he was satisfied with the results of his conversation. The Vatican statesman added that he was going to the United States for the single purpose of representing Pope Benedict at the jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons. He will sail from Lisbon on Jan. 1.

Pope Benedict, Mgr. Cerretti said, approved the principle of the League of Nations. The Vatican, he continued, had no preconceived idea as to participation in the Peace Conference or in subsequent international conferences. It would set forth its opinions if invited to do so. Mgr. Cerretti said he had no mandate to settle questions which had been brought forward.

The President's Morning Walk.

President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson went out walking together today for the first time since their arrival in Paris. They slipped away from the Murat Palace through the famous old garden and walked up the boulevards and through some of the old side streets, strolling about for an hour.

The President did not don his overcoat for the walk. Mrs. Wilson wore a walking suit of black. The President carried his cane. Two Secret Service men were their only escort.

The morning was crisp and sharp, but the ground was wet. This made golfing impracticable, so the President chose the walk instead. He conferred briefly with Colonel E. M. House before his departure.

WILSON WILL OPPOSE SINKING GERMAN SHIPS

Authoritative Statement Is Made of His Attitude Toward the Reported Plan.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—It may be stated authoritatively that President Wilson will oppose in the most direct fashion proposals from any source to sink the warships surrendered by Germany under the terms of the armistice.

Since word came from Paris that American delegates to the Peace Conference, with British support, intended to advocate destruction of the enemy vessels to avoid contention over their distribution, the subject has been discussed with much interest among American and Allied naval officers here. Some officers found reasons for supporting such a course, particularly in the difficulty of incorporating into other navies craft of German construction.

Officials have professed to know nothing about the attitude of the President until today, when it was learned that he viewed the plan as altogether undesirable.

NUCLEUS OF PEACE LEAGUE.

Grey Sees It in Paris Congress, Which He Would Make Permanent.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Viscount Grey, former Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has written, at the request of the Research Committee of the League of Nations Union, an introductory note to a pamphlet entitled, "The Peace Conference and After." After urging the great opportunity afforded by the Peace Conference for taking a practical step in the direction of forming a League of Nations, Viscount Grey says:

"It is not necessary for the Peace Conference to create a League of Nations. The conference will in itself be a vital beginning of such a league. All that is absolutely necessary is that it should not commit suicide, but keep itself alive by adjourning and leaving a permanent organization instead of dissolving itself and destroying its machinery.

"This is not all that is desirable, but it is all that is essential. A beginning that has in it vitality and power of growth is better than a more complete and more attractive creation that has no life. One is a living thing, while the other is a piece of furniture.

"Two more points I would especially commend to careful and sympathetic attention. One is the possibility of applying the principle of trusteeship to those vast tracts, especially Africa, where no independent national Government of the native inhabitants can be formed. The other is emphasis on the earnest advocacy of the part to be taken by the United States in helping to give effect to this principle of trusteeship and in the council of the world. Without the United States any council or League of Nations will soon be little better than the old concert of Europe, which was spoiled invariably by intrigues within it and split into opposing groups.

"It has required the united efforts of the Allies and the United States to win the war of right against wrong and to make peace. It will need the united and continuous, though peaceful, action of all of them to maintain peace.

"It would be as fatal to the future of the world for the United States to relapse into the old idea of strict isolation as it would be for any power to revive the German policy of separate conquest and domination. It is, I believe, in this spirit and for this purpose that the people of this country desire close and cordial relations with the United States. We think the people of the United States are conscious of the great and beneficient influence they exercised on the history of the world by the part they took in this war. We cannot believe that they will let this influence abate or die."

EXPECT AGREEMENT ON NAVAL POWER

Paris Observers Count on Wilson Winning British Assent to Freedom of Seas.

NO MENACE TO ENGLAND

President's Plan Regarded as Assuring Her Supremacy Without Danger to Peace.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—In connection with President Wilson's visit to England there is much discussion here of the question of the freedom of the seas. It is remarked that, while the President is not expected to take up matters of policy with the British statesmen, his contact with the people will have a profound influence on the subsequent proceedings in Paris.

One of the subjects which closer relations resulting from his contact with the British public will tend to remove from the field of controversy is the one just mentioned. The British have been more apprehensive on this than any other point, and when the President's fourteen points were accepted as a whole, exception was taken to that clause.

It is believed, however, that on closer examination the objection will disappear. Great Britain's need of the largest navy, owing to her insular position and her need for communication with her colonies and dependencies, is generally recognized. The President's doctrine of the freedom of the seas is understood to mean that Great Britain may not maintain the largest navy, and at the same time be the exclusive interpreter of sea laws.

Theoretically this may mean everything or nothing; but the important thing is the sense in which the doctrine is being put forward in the Peace Conference. There must be an agreement among the nations regarding the laws and rules of the sea to which all will submit. This would give Great Britain the commercial and other advantages desired without making her sea supremacy a military menace.

It has been contended in England that if the freedom of the seas, as thus interpreted, had prevailed, and if the British Navy had not employed the blockade, Germany would not have been beaten. This is probably true; but Germany has been beaten, and it is argued in some quarters that it is better not to start afresh on the basis that a wrong can be justified because it leads to a good end. It is pointed out that Germany might seek to justify her use of submarines by similar logic. It is asserted that the freedom of the seas as thus interpreted would in no wise hamper England in looking after her worldwide interests, and confidence is felt that her objections to it will disappear with frank discussion.

If the program of a League of Nations should be realized, the question of the freedom of the seas would no longer exist. The seas would be open and free in time of peace and war alike. If the League of Nations were attacked, however, all laws would be in abeyance and the league would defend the world order, of which it would be the trustee and guardian.

The principle would be the same as that which permits a Sheriff to break down a door, although a private person may not do so. With the League of Nations the question of rivalry in fleets would not arise. Each member would probably encourage the others to build war fleets, seeing that they would be used in the common interest. With a new world system thoroughly established and its practical working demonstrated, each nation, it is argued, would be prompted by economic considerations to reduce its building program, and ultimately the question would be how few instead of how many warships should be launched.

GIVES WILSON 10 DAYS AFTER GETTING BILLS

Gregory Decides Period of Signing or Vetoing Begins When Measures Reach President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Attorney General Gregory has given President Wilson an opinion that the period of ten days which the Constitution gives him to sign or veto bills or resolutions passed by Congress does not begin to run until engrossed copies are actually placed in his hands.

All measures sent to the White House since the President sailed for Europe have been taken to Paris by State Department messengers traveling by the fastest steamers. In this way it was planned to give the President two or three days in which to act upon legislation and notify the White House by cable or wireless of what he had done. Under the Attorney General's opinion, he has the same time for consideration he would have if he were at the White House.

So far the Executive offices have not been advised that any of the minor measures forwarded to Paris have been signed.

WILL CONFER ON AIR RULES.

Allied Representatives Soon to Draft Regulations for Airplanes.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—Representatives of several allied powers and the United States will hold a conference in Paris early in the new year to consider the future of international aerial navigation, the Echo de Paris announces. Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, France, and the United States will be represented at the conference, which will study the questions of how to prevent airplanes of different nationalities from crossing customs barriers and how to prevent postal or commercial airplanes from being transformed into bombing machines within a few minutes.

The result of the deliberations of the conference, the paper adds, will have to be accepted by Germany and her former allies in the peace treaty.

Lord Weir, British Secretary of State for Air Forces, announced in London Friday that the British Air Board had drafted articles for an international air convention which would be submitted to the Allies.

OUTLINES LEAGUE PLANS.

Paris Matin Says Germany Must Atone for Crimes Before Admission.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—The Matin today was authorized to print the article which was censored yesterday. The article, the first headline of which read "Yesterday's Utopia Tomorrow's Reality," sets forth the manner of procedure of the "promoters of a League of Nations acting in agreement with the allied Governments."

The Matin says there will be three stages in the formation of the league.

"First, the allied Governments will settle among themselves the principles of the league. As a fundamental rule they will set down the right of peoples to decide their own destinies. As a practical consequence it follows that there will be limitation of armaments and compulsory arbitration among the nations. It seems indispensable that at this point the Entente countries bind themselves to put these clauses in the preliminaries of peace.

"It has appeared absolutely necessary to the promoters that the régime of the future world should be fixed in its main outlines before there are any questions of indemnities and territories, so that for the first time in history the deliberations of the plenipotentiaries should be dominated by higher ideals than mere individual interest.

"The second act will consist in notifying the enemy powers of the fundamental principles laid down in the preliminaries and requiring from them their adhesion to these principles. As to other conditions of peace preliminaries, as in the case of stipulations of a territorial, financial, and economic character, no discussion will be admitted. The Entente delegates will say to Germany and her allies:

"'Compulsory arbitration and limitation of armaments are integral parts of our conditions. You must subscribe to them at once. You will know later how these principles will be applied.'

"The preliminaries once signed, details of the peace treaty will be discussed among the belligerents, and only after the signing of this treaty of peace will the third stage be reached. This will be a universal conference to settle the new relations to be created between the peoples.

"To this conference neutrals may be admitted. No nation, however, will be admitted to full membership in the League of Nations if it does not offer sufficient guarantees. Germany, having started the war, will have been condemned by the Peace Conference to make restitution and reparation. She cannot be regarded as being on an equal footing with other nations until she has paid her debt. Germany has committed a crime, and she must atone for it before she can be admitted to the ranks of honest and civilized peoples.

"Meanwhile the other countries will be united by formal agreements, a world police will have been created, and sanctions of all kinds will have been instituted. An international tribunal will be working, and the spectre of war, as far as it is humanly possible, will be banished from the path of civilization."

ASK AID FOR ITALIAN BABIES.

Head of Relief Organization Tells of Immediate Need for Milk.

The American Free Milk and Relief for Italy, Inc., has been formed to meet the great need of babies in Italy, where milk can be obtained only on a doctor's prescription. Mrs. John A. Drake, President of the new organization, yesterday made an appeal for immediate gifts of dry milk.

"It means the loss of stamina if Italy's babies are not properly nourished," said Mrs. Drake. "We have headquarters for the present at the Vanderbilt Hotel, and have no overhead charges. We have free transportation. Every cent contributed goes for milk, which we must get off at the earliest possible moment. The Royal Italian Consul General Romono Tritonj, who is living in this city, has organized the work in Italy with a committee in Rome under the patronage of the Queen mother, and subcommittees will be formed in other large cities. We have had translated directions for the use of the dry milk for the Italian doctors and nurses, with more simple ones for the use of the mothers."

Other officers of the new organization are First Vice President, Mrs. John E. Mackenty; Second Vice President, Mrs. E. R. Campbell, Secretary, Mrs. Edward N. Breitung; Treasurer, Walter Meacham, Guarantee Trust Company; Assistant Treasurers, Mrs. John Austin Black and Mrs. Charles H. Gurney. The National Committee is being enlarged daily, names over all the country being added. Among those who are already members are the Duchess de Chaulnes, Mrs. Romono Tritonj, Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. Diaz Albertini, Mrs. Rutherford Bingham, and Mrs. Philip D. Armour.

SPREAD OF IDLENESS ALARMS BERLIN

TALK OF COMPELLING WORK

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 22, (via Copenhagen.)—The number of workers out of employment in Berlin is assuming alarming proportions. Official reports mention a total of 86,000.

Among these are many discharged soldiers not domiciled in Berlin, who somehow manage to exist without work. Some of them have been offered employment on the Berlin subway construction, which the war delayed, and other works, but they refused this.

The newly won liberty seems to have an intoxicating effect on large numbers of persons, not permitting them to see the danger of this vastly growing idleness.

In addition there are constant strikes, generally, it is true, for only a very short duration, because employers think it best to settle at whatever cost. These large numbers of idle people throng Berlin's streets, and, together with the many returned and as yet undischarged soldiers and Christmas shoppers, give the city an unusually crowded appearance, cause the prices of foodstuffs to rise still higher, increase the rent of flats and rooms enormously and boom the hotel business to a degree never known before.

In these circumstances, propitious to their cause, all the Berlin waiters have decided to strike unless they get wages high enough on which to subsist without tips. They demand from 100 to 500 marks monthly. Some hotels and large wine restaurants have already granted their demands, which take effect together with the eight-hour law on Jan. 1.

"Do you really mean that you will refuse tips after that date?" I asked waiters at various restaurants. Very few remained firm.

"If guests leave coin on the table or under their plate, we shall certainly not run after them to return it, nor shall we throw it away. But our organization will have a notice posted in each restaurant stating, 'Waiters in this establishment receive decent wages and do not rely on tips,'" was the usual answer.

The cause of the waiters is further complicated by men returned from the front, who demand their old positions which were filled during the war by women. They have formed a Waiter's Council and sent deputations to the large restaurants, demanding the discharge of girls and their own reinstatement. In a few cases they have threatened violence if refused.

Mostly, however, they have accepted the proprietor's statement that he must consult the Restaurant and Hotel Keepers' Association before he can answer. The association will decide today, and unless it grants the demands of employed as well as unemployed waiters, all the restaurant help in Berlin will stop work on Christmas Eve, at 6 o'clock.

Even waitresses disdain the fact that the proprietors assenting will in many cases deprive them of their livelihood in favor of waiters returned from the front. These waitresses earned so much money during the war in tips that they think they can well afford to look on a while till something turns up.

To check the idleness among the men returned from the war the Government is about to issue a decree making work compulsory—as far as that can be done at any rate. Its effect will be that any person will forfeit the right to a legal subsidy if he refuses work that is offered him.

At a meeting of Berlin members of the Central Association of German Citizens of the Hebraic Faith the Executive Committee reported that it was in consultation with the Government about the best means to counteract anti-Semitic movements by reactionaries and to prevent pogroms. One means devised was to send orators to meetings at which anti-Semitic tendencies were propogated and especially to call attention to countless sacrifices which the Jews had made on the battlefields and in other ways during the war. Energetic agitation at the coming elections for the National Convention was decided on.

The meeting expressed regret that the Zionists should accuse the majority of German Jews of Byzantism and servility toward the former Kaiser. In the face of this wrongful accusation, it was held, they must continue to emphasize that they are German citizens and had no use for such a Jewish state as Zionism wishes to create.

It has become quite customary with the Spartacides if they wish to possess themselves of a newspaper to arm a number of men and march them into the composing, machinery, and editorial rooms and the business office, to throw out the old employes and to put in their own, and announce in the next edition that the paper now is a Spartacide organ.

These same tactics were adopted yesterday by a group of independent Socialists in Bremen, which, aided by the Soldiers' Council, took possession of the Buergerzeitung, the principal owner of which is People's Commissioner Ebert.

FRAU COSIMA WAGNER IS DEAD AT BAYREUTH

A Daughter of Liszt, She Was a Large Factor in Composer-Husband's Career.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 22, (via Copenhagen.)—According to the Vorwärts Cosima Wagner, died last night at Bayreuth.

Frau Wagner, known as the "Queen of Bayreuth," was the second wife of the famous composer, Richard Wagner. She was born on Christmas Day in Rome in 1840, her parents being Frans Liszt and the Comtesse Marie Sophie d'Agoult, the latter better known under her pen name of Daniel Stern. Soon after the birth of the child the composer and the author separated and Cosima was educated by Liszt.

At the age of 20 Cosima was married to Hans von Bülow, one of her father's pupils, and because of the interest which her husband took in the work of the then young Richard Wagner the latter became a frequent visitor to the von Bülow home. In 1870 a divorce separated the von Bülows, and at Lucerne Wagner and Frau von Bülow were married.

Inheriting the genius of her father, Frau Wagner immediately became a source of inspiration to the young composer. She helped in the furtherance of his art views and was of notable assistance in his plans at Bayreuth. Upon the death of Richard Wagner in 1883 at Venice, Frau Wagner assumed the management of the Bayreuth festivals, personally directing rehearsals and engaging the singers. In 1896 she visited London for a few days, and while there directed a concert held in St. James's Hall. At that time various publishing houses besought her to issue her biography, but having a pronounced dread of publicity in any form, she always replied that her life was of no interest to any one.

Of late years, due to her advancing age, she had lived in retirement on her large estate near Bayreuth. The management of the festivals and the operas had been turned to her son Siegfried.

BAKER ASKS REWARD FOR FIVE GENERALS

Proposes Present Rank of Pershing, March, Bliss, Liggett, and Bullard Be Made Permanent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Bestowal of the permanent rank of General on John J. Pershing, commander of the American forces in France; Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, and Tasker H. Bliss, military representative of the Supreme War Council, and a permanent rank of Lieutenant General on Hunter Liggett and Robert L. Bullard, commanding the First and Second Armies, was asked by Secretary Baker today in a letter to Chairman Dent of the House Military Committee.

"These officers have performed tremendous tasks involving the greatest responsibility in a manner which reflects credit upon themselves and upon the country and entitles them to permanent recognition," Secretary Baker wrote. "I believe that the sentiment of the country is strongly in favor of such recognition. At present the commissions of these officers as General and Lieutenant General, while in the regular army, are for the period of the emergency only. I recommend that their commissions be made permanent, with the proviso that when any one of these officers vacates his commisson the office shall lapse."

TO END INDUSTRIES BOARD.

Baruch Thanks Producers for Their "Loyal Co-operation."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The War Industries Board will cease its functions January 1, it was officially announced today by Bernard M. Baruch, the Chairman.

Certain activities of the Board, according to the wish of the President, will be transferred to other departments of the Government and will continue in operation for the present. The War Trade Board will take over most of the activities of the War Industries Board, which the administration feels necessary should remain in existence for some time.

Chairman Baruch made a statement, which reads in part:

"It has been arranged that the powers and duties of the Division of Planning and Statistics of the War Industries Board shall, on Jan. 1, be taken over by the War Trade Board, along with such officials or employes of the Board as may be necessary.

"The functions and powers of the Wool Division of the War Industries Board, including especially those relating to the payment by wool dealers or buyers of any sums due by them under 'Government Regulations for Handling the Wool Clip of 1918,' as established by the Board on May 21, 1918, and the disposition of such payments, shall, on Jan. 1., as already announced, be taken over by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture.

"The Price Fixing Committee of the War Industries Board will continue to function until such of the prices already fixed by the committee, as will not expire on or before Jan. 1, shall have expired.

"In thus announcing the final windup of the War Industries Board, the Chairman connot refrain from once more expressing his great appreciation of the devoted efforts of those associated with him in the direction of the Board's activiites, and of the whole-hearted and loyal co-operation of the industries of the country."

AMERICAN POLES IN DANZIG.

Army Landed There Making Short Work of Red Propaganda.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Announcement has been made by Polish leaders here that the contingent from the United States which composes the bulk of the Polish army which has now landed at Danzig has become a missionary as well as a military body.

"Those men," read the announcement, "are recruited mainly from New York, Pittsburgh, New England, Chicago and the Middle West territory, and are so enthusiastically American in their aspirations and beliefs that the task of meeting Bolshevist agitators who are being sent into Polish territory has naturally fallen to them. Speaking a pure Polish, they have an advantage over the agents who speak with German and Russian twists, and because of their general upstanding and the stories they tell of the real American spirit they are making short work of the propaganda.

"The unification of the three parts of Poland is proceeding with a definiteness of purpose which is most encouraging. All the portions have established relations with one another and with the Polish National Committee at Paris. Within the week an assembly of 500 delegates duly elected by the Polish population of German Poland met in Poznan. The whole assembly confirmed the unanimous will of the nation to reunite German Poland with the unified and independent native country."

FRENCH TRIBUTE TO WRIGHT

LE MANS, France, Dec. 22.—The names of Lafayette and Wilbur Wright were joined today by Ex-Premier Painlevé, who spoke at the ceremonies incident to the laying of the foundation stone of the Wilbur Wright monument here. This was because Lafayette was a Deputy of the Department of Sarthe, of which Le Mans is the chief town, from 1812 to 1822, and three eminent French aviators, Fonck, Hurteau and Nungesser, were natives of this department. After sketching the lives of the Wright brothers, M. Painlevé said:

"Let us honor Wilbur Wright's memory, first, as a good worker for human progress; second, because he brought to France the aid of his genius. Let his memory be joined with those, his young fellow-citizens, who spontaneously brought their heroism to our aviation service."

COL. HARVEY ASSAILS PEACE LEAGUE IDEA

Criticises President's Participation in Settlement of After-War Problems.

WOULD CLING TO ISOLATION

Quotes Webster and Washington to New England Society Diners Against Alliances.

Colonel George Harvey compared the League of Nations to Enforce Peace to the Holy Alliance and characterized it as an organization "to enforce war upon every people who refuse to bow to the edicts of the self-appointed tribunal," in an address delivered last night before the 113th annual dinner of the New England Society, held at the Waldorf.

What the penalty to be imposed on Germany shall be is of no concern of the United States, he declared, and added that it should be fixed by those whom Germany most grievously wronged. Repeating the phrase that America "wants nothing 'at the peace table,'" Colonel Harvey added—"wants nothing so badly that even her Chief Magistrate hies himself across the seas to get it."

The audience of about 400 men and women listened attentively to Colonel Harvey, interrupting occasionally with applause. General applause followed his demand that the Kaiser be tried, convicted, and hanged, and when in conclusion he uttered the words of Daniel Webster, "Thank God, I—I also—am an American." There was little applause for his attack on the idea of the League of Nations.

The other speakers were Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard, Marcel Knecht of the French Bureau of Information, and Hamilton Holt of The Independent.

After reading the words of George Washington that it was the true American policy "to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world," and Washington's idea that only temporary alliances should be entered into by this country, Colonel Harvey declared that was all the United States had done in the war, and the country was in no way committed "to a single step further along the path of meddlesome intrusion."

"For fifty long years," he said, "all Europe sat in the shadow of death. The menace no longer exists. Germany lies prostrate, helpless—a skulking, whining suppliant at the bar of righteous judgment. What her penalty shall be is no concern of ours. Fifty years at hard labor she gave to prepare for her campaign of loot and lust. Fifty years at harder labor let her give to make amends. Ever thereafter she should be held in bonds, as a mad dog in a cage, stripped to the bone of power again to menace Christian world.

"But does any one imagine that France and England and Belgium and Serbia are incapable of affixing the guilt and exacting the penalty? Is it incumbent upon us to point to them, the ravished remnants of their races, the way of a peace that shall endure? Why then do we go? What was our impelling motive in setting sail upon a ship made in Germany and misnamed with unconscious irony the George Washington, not in scrupulous avoidance, but in eager pursuit, of entangling alliances? America, we are assured by our former pacifists, now become anaemic altruists, wants nothing. No indemnities! We are told with a sternness almost implying that we, and not the fiendish Huns, are the real criminals.

"But we are told that Germany cannot pay! Cannot pay? With nine-tenths of her productive labor under arms, she furnished seven billions a year for four years in her dastardly attempt to conquer the world. Surely in time of peace she can provide three billions a year for fifty years. At any rate, she can and should be made to try.

"Have times really so changed that we owe it to humanity to toss our cherished Republic into a melting pot to be mashed into a pulp of international socialism? Can better than the glorious results already attained be reasonably anticipated from a mingling of her undefiled spirit with the diverse and incongruous elements of the Old World? All teaching, all tradition, all experience, points the contrary."

Professor Hart said it was impossible that the people of this country should not feel responsible for what goes on in the rest of the world, and asserted that he had no fear for the United States in any combination of powers which it might enter.

At the conclusion of the dinner, Darwin P. Kingsley was introduced as the Chairman of the society for the coming year.

COLONEL WON'T GO TO PARIS

His Secretary Says He Has No Plans to Attend Peace Conference.

Speaking of the report from Paris, published in yesterday's NEW YORK TIMES, that Colonel Roosevelt was planning to visit France soon, presumably for the purpose of attending the Peace Conference, his secretary said yesterday:

"There is absolutely no truth in the report. Colonel Roosevelt has not made any plans for going to France. He may go in two months, or six months, or two years. When Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt go to France to visit their son's grave they will go very quietly. Just when the visit will be made has not been decided.

"Colonel Roosevelt certainly does not intend to go near the Peace Conference."

The Colonel is reported to be making excellent progress toward recovery at Roosevelt Hospital, where he has been for several weeks undergoing treatment for an obstinate case of sciatica. He is not confined to his bed, and is sometimes without pain for four or five days. He has been able to do a large amount of work since he has been in the hospital and devotes a considerable part of each day to reading the newspapers. The hope was expressed yesterday that he would soon be able to return to his home at Sagamore Hill.

LOCATES 41 DIVISIONS OF PERSHING'S ARMY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The exact location of thirty-five combat divisions and six depot divisions of the American Army in France, Germany, and Luxembourg, as they were stationed on Nov. 28, was announced today by the War Department.

Changes in division commanding officers were shown as follows:

First, Major Gen. E. F. McGlachin.
Third, Major Gen. Robert L. Howze.
Twenty-sixth, Major Gen. Harry C. Hale.
Thirty-second, Major Gen. William Lassiter.

STETTINIUS ON VISIT HERE.

Says France Is Grappling Earnestly with Reconstruction Problems.

Edward R. Stettinius, Second Assistant Secretary of War and American member of the Interallied Munitions Council, returned yesterday on the British transport Cedric to spend the holidays with his family. Mr. Stettinius in discussing reconstruction after the war said France would not need so much help from the United States as had been generally believed in this country would be necessary. While the devastation wrought by the enemy in France had been terrible, he said, the French were already showing a spirit of hopefulness and an energy that were amazing in a nation which had suffered more than four years of war.

"Belgium, however, he said, was in bad straits, and would require considerable help from America.

Mr. Stettinius praised the American troops in France and Flanders. Now that the war was ended, he said, they wanted to return to their own country. There was no lack of unity between Great Britain, France, and Italy, he continued, and these countries all showed their appreciation of the part the United States had played in the war. The unification of the allied shipments of munitions and supplies, he said, had proved to be a great success, and if the plan had been adopted earlier much time and money would have been saved.

President's coming. The troops will be on duty in the quadrangle in front of the palace throughout the President's stay. On ceremonial occasions his carriage will be followed by the Sovereign's escort of Household Cavalry.

When President and Mrs. Wilson arrive at Manchester on Sunday evening, after their visit to Carlisle, they will be conducted to the Town Hall, remaining there as guests of the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress. Secretary of State Lansing and Colonel E. M. House, it is stated, are expected to accompany them.

If time permits, President Wilson on Monday will be taken through the principal streets of Manchester, returning to the Town Hall at noon to receive the freedom of the city. Afterward it is planned to give a luncheon in the President's honor.

On their return to London from Manchester on Monday evening President and Mrs. Wilson will again be the guests of King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace, and will probably dine with the King and the Queen.

The arrangements for the departure of the Presidential party on Tuesday morning are similar to those for their arrival on Thursday. There will be a procession from the palace to the station, where many persons of prominence will gather to wish the party farewell. The idea of a visit to Oxford by the President has been abandoned, owing to lack of time, but it is suggested that he pay another visit to England before his return home.

When President Wilson ceases to be the guest of France at Calais at 10:30 o'clock on Thursday morning the British Admiralty will assume the rôle of host. The President will go directly from his train to a cross-Channel boat, probably the Brighton, which is an Admiralty-controlled vessel. The steamer will be escorted by a flotilla of British destroyers, as well as seaplanes, if the weather permits. The crossing will be in charge of Vice Admiral Sir Roger J. B. Keyes.

No American craft are included in the plans for the escort. The American Army and Navy will participate in the reception only through the attachés in the diplomatic service.

DOUBTS OVER WILSON GONE.

London Ready to Greet Him with Real Christmas Spirit.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—There is now a real Christmas feeling about President Wilson's visit to London. Doubts and apprehensions, which parenthetically were never quite so serious as some superficial observations suggested, have vanished like morning mists before the sun.

Lord Northcliffe's organs delicately convey that the President's interview in The London Times was the sun which dispelled those mists, and undoubtedly it did a great deal of good in that way.

There have, however, been other contributory causes and not the least among them were the discussions in the Washington Senate. For the time being, in any case, the disposition is to put aside consideration of any possible points of contention and to regard only the most outstanding fact that a President of the United States is about to set foot for the first time in history on the shores of the old world island from whose loins, as the Lord Chancellor said the other day, sprang the great republic of the new world.

Of the personal appeal which Wilson makes to the people whom he is about to visit, much has already been said, and nothing that has been said has been exaggerated. Among plain people the President's visit is sharing honors with the celebration of Christmas Day, such a Christmas as England has not known since 1913.

Here and there have been heard some criticisms of the British authorities on the ground that the selection of Boxing Day for the President's arrival here was badly advised, seeing that London is usually half empty that day and that between the attractions of afternoon dinner and theatrical matinées the spectacle of the Presidential procession would call forth an indifferent popular demonstration.

The British authorities were really not responsible for fixing the date of the President's advent, and, given decent weather, it is considered pretty certain that London's citizens will turn out in quite sufficient numbers to place the warmth of his welcome beyond dispute.

Strenuous efforts are being made to decorate the line of route between Charing Cross Railway Station and Buckingham Palace on a scale to which London is unaccustomed. The Board of Works has given a contract to a well-known firm which has made a special appeal to its workmen to sacrifice their holiday. The appeal was successful, so that evidently the much maligned British workingman is not so bad as he is often painted in the pages of Punch.

HIGH HOPES OF LONDON PRESS

Wilson's Visit "for International Consecration," Says Daily Mail.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Commenting upon the visit of President Wilson to England, The Daily Mail says:

"We shall give him of our best. It is with that desire that our people have learned with especial satisfaction that the fullest panoply of honor will be spread to welcome so notable a guest. Mr. Wilson is not coming here for politics. His visit is for international consecration and is to visibly cement the two English-speaking peoples, cradled in whose hands reposes the new-born peace of the world.

"We behold a Christmas of joy and a moment unexampled in the rugged history of our race. It is the peace Christmas. Many of our soldiers are back again, and our tortured prisoners are coming home. Gaiety at last is released from bonds of anxiety and privation and glows like fire in our hearts. At this season of all, the President's visit is a heartening augury for the world at peace, since it founds upon rock the solid amity and united purpose of the British and American democracies."

"There are few incidents which can rival the President's visit to our capital," says The Daily Telegraph. "London and Great Britain will be proud to greet the man who is at the head of a vast nation and is himself a foremost citizen of the world. They recognize in his visit a token of a wonderful future and a sign and seal of that great alliance of the Anglo-Saxon peoples on both sides of the Atlantic which means so much for the happiness and tranquility of mankind. They know how valuable will be his advise and counsel in the future parliament of peace, for he brings to the discussions that clarity of judgment and freshness of vision which are so helpful in an emergency like that with which we are confronted.

"If he does not himself sit at the council table, for he is not an Ambassador, delegates of the various powers will have had the advantage of frequent consultations with him. President Wilson's visit marks a great turning point in the history of international politics and a new link binding the Western Hemisphere with eastern communities of interest."

OUR FLAG MUCH DISPLAYED.

Everywhere in London It Is Second Only to Union Jack.

LONDON, Nov. 14, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—If there is not friendly feeling toward the United States in England the flags of London speak untruthfully. There are millions of flags. Where all of them come from is a mystery. They simply appeared from everywhere and nowhere, like a barrage of color, on the day when the armistice was signed. No coronation or royal jubilee has seen such a marvel of cloth.

Hardly a house, however small and humble, in the whole more than twenty-mile radius of the largest city in the world was without its decorations. And the Stars and Stripes were more conspicuous than any flag except the Union Jack.

Wherever two flags hung together the American emblem was one of them. The French flag ranked next, but only a respectable third. As one walked through the streets the American colors saluted the eye everywhere. Big ones, large enough to hide an ordinary house, hung in front of hotels, department stores, and factories. Very many people, of the hundreds of thousands who tied flags to their hats and coats and umbrellas, even to their dogs, sported the Stars and Stripes. They were particularly popular with the girls, but workmen, elderly women, and British soldiers wore them. This seems to spell appreciation.

THIRD ARMY WANTS ONLY TO GET HOME

Believing the Fighting Is Over, Doughboys Lose Enthusiasm for Just Soldiering.

KIND TO GERMAN CHILDREN

Comradeship of Troops and Little Ones Common, but No Fraternizing with Adults.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Dec. 22.—Now, it is like sitting in the bleachers on a rainy afternoon after the game is over. If the people back home want to know what is happening with the American Army of Occupation, the answer is "nothing."

Once upon a time the American soldier used to dream of going to the Rhine. He has now done it and, so far as his desires go, that ends it. It is six weeks since there has been any fighting, and so the impression is growing among the men that the war is over. That being settled, the doughboy wants to go home; soldiering as just soldiering doesn't appeal to him. He does not see any charm in drilling for a fight that is not going to come. Anyway, if he must drill he would prefer to do it in the United States, where all the land is not hills.

When one thinks about it seriously one wonders if the important fact about the Americans' sojourn along the Rhine is not that nothing happens. The first irritation of the inhabitants over our presence is vanishing and people hereabout are about as cordial as the army rules will let them. As one walks along the streets one would think the Americans naturally belonged here. No one bothers them; they bother no one. The American method of occupation of enemy territory is a success so far as maintaining order goes. It is succeeding better than was expected.

Regulations Held Back.

Two sets of regulations had been drafted for the control of the German population. They got even beyond the printer, but were never issued for the simple reason that the wise heads governing the army say that they have no use for them. What is the use of driving people off the streets if they behave, it is argued, or what is the use of closing cafés if nobody gets drunk?

When the military police came they took an old ambulance and refitted it for a police patrol, but every time I have seen it the Black Maria was empty.

We are governing about five thousand square miles of German territory and about a million people with about as much friction as on a Sunday afternoon in Brooklyn.

The Germans are behaving well. This is, perhaps, not from any other motive than discretion, but nevertheless they are behaving well.

As for the Americans, they also are behaving well. It has not been found necessary to discipline either officers or men.

As for fraternization, nothing is feared from that. Here is the only order General Dickman has found necessary: "Officers and men must exercise more care in their relations with the enemy civil population. Conversations, except on official business, will be limited to the minimum demanded by courteous tolerance. Public association with civilians will be discouraged, and commanding officers will see that their officers and men conduct themselves accordingly."

This sounds more severe than it is.

Americans Unlike Allies.

The French and British and Belgians are rather more severe with the German population than are the Americans, and that is but natural. They have more to remember against the German.

Then, again, the doughboy is different from any other soldier on earth. On the battlefield he is the roughest customer that the war brought to France; off the battlefield he is the most human of all the soldiers.

In a hundred ways he shows this, but in none so much as in his devotion to children. In France the doughboy off duty is always surrounded by a group of youngsters, and here in Germany it is much the same, for children are the same the world over, and so is the doughboy.

There are no rules against soldiers fraternizing with children, and if there were it is a question how many more Generals we would have to have to enforce it.

This fondness of the American soldier for children impresses itself upon all who see him. The French remark upon it here along the Rhine and sometimes frown. That is because they do not understand the doughboy.

The poilu when he sees a German, man, woman, or child, thinks of ravaged France and four years of suffering. The doughboy when he sees a German child thinks of a little brother or sister or son or daughter back home. He has already forgotten the suffering of the battlefield.

Doughboy's Gift to a Child.

Yesterday I was coming down the Rheinstrasse when I saw a doughboy and a German lad of 7 or 8 years standing in front of one of the many toy stores in the city. They entered the store. I waited until they came out, and the boy walked away with a bundle under his arm.

I asked the soldier about it. As he turned away I saw he had two wound stripes. "Maybe it wasn't right and maybe it was," he said. "Maybe he is a boche, but he's a kid all the same, and I bought him a Christmas present." Then he laughed and asked: "And what do you think the little son of a gun wanted?—a rifle."

As we walked down the street the doughboy told me that he was wounded south of Soissons and again north of Verdun.

We were in front of what was once a candy store. Now, there is not much candy in Germany this Christmas. The window of this store was filled with poor imitations of candy, unpalitable and uninviting.

I did not say anything about it, but this doughboy said: "You know, to me one of the tragedies of this war is that these kids haven't any candy for Christmas. I don't give a —— if we did fight their fathers and lick them, I wish I could give them all a bag of candy such as they hand out at the church Christmas trees back home."

PERSHING AT THE RHINE.

Entertains American Correspondents at Dinner on Train.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

COBLENZ, Dec. 22.—On the occasion of his first visit to the Rhine General Pershing entertained at dinner last night the accredited correspondents with the American Army. Dinner was served on his train in the Coblenz railroad yards.

The American Commander in Chief thanked the correspondents for their work, saying they had played a good rôle in keeping the American people united behind the efforts directed by him. He talked informally of the American Army's accomplishments in Europe from the first days.

General Pershing would not set any date when the last American soldiers would probably leave France, this indicating that the situation had not developed to an extent where an intelligent opinion could be given on that point.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Dec. 22, (Associated Press.)—General Pershing slept in a castle on the east bank of the Rhine Saturday night as the guest of Major Gen. Hines, corps commander, with headquarters at Neuwied.

In an automobile General Pershing crossed the Rhine at 10:35 o'clock Saturday night on a pontoon bridge at Coblenz, after having entertained the newspaper correspondents at dinner in his private train. This morning he was joined at Neuwied by Major Gen. Dickman, and, with Major Gens. Dickman and Hines, visited the three division headquarters within the bridgehead and other points of interest on the eastern side of the Rhine.

Returning to Coblenz, General Pershing left by special train tonight for Chaumont, going by way of Treves, Luxemburg, and Verdun.

On his way to Coblenz Saturday General Pershing was a luncheon guest of Major Gen. Muir, commander of the 4th Corps, in a castle on the Moselle overlooking the town of Cochem. The castle is owned by a Major who is still in the German Army. It was commandeered by the 4th Corps as headquarters. It stands on the summit of a great bluff rising above the Moselle and Cochem and commands a view for miles around.

General Pershing traveled by motor, visiting Wittlich, the headquarters of Major Gen. Haan of the 7th Corps, at Mayen, and other points of the occupied area. A special train made up of nine cars preceded him from Treves.

Within five minutes after the special train arrived at Coblenz the telephone and telegraph wires of the train were connected with the Signal Corps wires. During the afternoon aids and other officers of the commander's personnel talked with Chaumont and Paris over the Signal Corps wires regarding army affairs.

From Treves to Coblenz and on the return trip the train consisted of French-built cars which were drawn by a German locomotive. The train was run by a German crew.

OUR AIRCRAFT AT WAR'S END.

Could Put 450 Machines in Action on the Front Then.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

COBLENZ, Dec. 23.—On the last day of fighting the American Expeditionary Air Force could have put into the air a total of 450 to 460 airplanes of all kinds—chase, observation, and bombing. Of this number 102 were American-made machines—De Haviland Fours. There were other American-made machines in France and a large number of Liberty motors, but the figures given represent what was at the front at 11 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 11.

In cases where the American forces had several thousand machines massed for special operations that result was obtained by the assistance of French and English airmen.

ARMY CHRISTMAS ON RHINE.

39 Carloads of Candy Among Luxuries for the Doughboys.

COBLENZ, Dec. 22, (Associated Press.)—The arms of Santa Claus, reaching across the Atlantic and France to beyond the Rhine, have brought large quantities of sweets and various luxuries and holiday gifts for the first Christmts in Germany of the American Army of Occupation.

Christmas packages for the soldiers began to arrive several days ago in carload lots and are being distributed rapidly from the railheads to the eight divisions within the area of occupation. The Quartermaster's Department and the American Red Cross have provided thirty carloads of chocolate and stick candy. The Quartermaster also is providing four cars of pastry and material for pies and cakes.

Every officers' mess and every company of soldiers is to have a Christmas tree. Many of the trees were cut by the soldiers themselves.

The Y. M. C. A. is supplying decorations for the trees. Branches of the Knights of Columbus with all the divisions will present to the soldiers extra smokes, in addition to individual gifts and plenty of candy and chewing gum.

The Salvation Army has begun the baking of doughnuts at its various quarters, and by Christmas it hopes to have hundreds of thousands on hand—at fewest, three doughnuts for every soldier. This organization is also to provide gifts of various kinds.

The arrangements provide for beginning early in the morning the distribution of the packages sent to the soldiers from home, while the afternoon and evening are to be devoted to entertainments of various sorts.

On the gastronomic side the men promise to be very well provided for. While no turkey or cranberries will be served at the Christmas dinner the troops will have geese, ducks, and chickens aplenty, as well as roast pig and fish. A general order prohibits the Americans from buying meats or fats from the Germans, but by a system of trading soap, as well as chocolate and other foodstuffs, the prospect appears good of procuring sufficient native products to vary agreeably the army meat diet.

The Germans throughout the occupied area are preparing for an extensive celebration among themselves. They seem determined to have a good time, and are buying extra supplies for their Christmas dinners.

The German weather forecast for Christmas is, cloudy, probably snow.

79TH U. S. DIVISION MAY GO TO RUSSIA

Unconfirmed Report in Washington That Pershing Will Send It from Germany.

RUSSIANS DEFEAT REDS

Said to Have Routed Army on West Siberian Front Without Czech or Allied Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23. — Rumors have been current in Washington that General Pershing, acting under an understanding with President Wilson, has been preparing to send forces from France to Russia. Tonight there was a report, of which it was impossible to obtain confirmation at the War Department, that the 79th National Army Division, commanded by Major Gen. Kuhn, and which is part of the American Army of Occupation in Germany, will be sent to Russia.

Information reaching the Russian Embassy indicates that an iron ring is steadily being formed around the outer edges of those parts of Bolshevist Russie which the Red army has been controlling. This ring extends from the Archangel region, in the northern part of European Russia, where American and allied forces are aligned with Russians against the Bolsheviki, across the Siberian front, and the Ekaterinburg front, to the region of the Don Cossacks, and thence along the Black Sea region to the Ukraine which reaches to Poland. There are also British and French naval forces in the Baltic operating against Bolsheviki on the Esthonian shore.

It was intimated today that the Polish Army of 50,000 men, part of which has been landed at Dantzig, and which has been serving in France under command of General Joseph Haller, may be employed by the Allies along the Polish-Russian front to resist the encroachments of the Bolsheviki, just as the Czechoslovak army on the Siberian-Russian front has been utilized, under French direction, to arrest the eastern movement of the Bolsheviki. The Poles are understood to be willing to co-operate with the Allies in any service that may be properly rendered to Russia in an effort to halt Bolshevist aggressions.

The Bolshevist forces on the Ekaterinburg front of European Russia have been defeated by troops of the Omsk All-Russian Government, according to cable advices received at the Russian Embassy today from Omsk. The dispatch stated that the Red army was in demoralized retreat northward toward Perm, and that the Russians had captured considerable booty. It explained that the defeat of the Bolsheviki was achieved by the Russian forces without the participation of allied or Czechoslovak forces.

The 79th Division, commanded by Major Gen. Joseph E. Kuhn, is made up of troops from Northeastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, and the District of Columbia. It was at Vacherauville, France, on Nov. 28.

SCHOOLS $750,000 SHORT.

Education Board Will Ask Controller for Money to Meet Bills.

At the meeting of the Board of Education yesterday it was moved that President Somers and City Superintendent Ettinger be empowered to call on the Controller and try to get him to afford financial relief to the board by the issuance of special bonds or in some other way. The motion was carried.

The department is worried about the payment of its bills for December. The amount is $3,200,000. The balances in the department reduce the amount to $750,000. If the money appropriated by the State Department of Education to the schools of this city was available, the indebtedness could be easily met.

The money was used, however, by the city to reduce taxation, and the appeal of the Board of Education to the State Commissioner of Education, to decide whether this sum should not be turned over to the Board of Education, has been carried into the courts by the city authorities. If the courts' decision should be against the Board of Education the $750,000 will have to be raised elsewhere.

The board arranged a building program for the next three years. This will be presented today by President Somers at the meeting of the Committee on Finance and Budget, and it is said that the committee will grant all the money the board needs for the next three years.

LAUDS PAGE'S SERVICES.

Eulogy of the Late Ambassador Issued by State Department.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Assistant Secretary William Phillips was designated today to represent the State Department at the funeral at Aberdeen, N. C., tomorrow, of Walter Hines Page, former Ambassador to Great Britain, who died there Saturday night.

The State Department issued this statement on Mr. Page's services:

"From the date of his appointment as Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to Great Britain in April, 1913, until he was forced by illness to relinquish his post, Mr. Page devoted himself most assiduously to bringing about a more complete understanding between the two great English-speaking nations.

"Representing as he did the very best traditions of this country, he was peculiarly well fitted to accomplish the objects of his high mission. His interpretation of the wishes of his Government were of the highest order and his successful conduct of the many delicate negotiations entrusted to him during tenure merited the highest approval of the State Department.

"His high sense of duty, his zealousness and self-sacrificing devotion to the service resulted in his illness and his untimely death."

Eight Nephews for Page Pallbearers

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 23.—In the absence of Secretary Lansing, William Phillips, Assistant Secretary of State, has been appointed to represent the State Department at the funeral service for Walter Hines Page, former Ambassador to Great Britain, to be held at the Page Memorial Church, Aberdeen, N. C., on Tuesday morning. The interment will take place at the cemetery of the Old Bethesda Church, near Aberdeen. Eight nephews, the sons of Dr. Page's four surviving brothers, will act as pallbearers.

ASK TROOPS ABOUT RETURN.

Americans Distribute Circulars to Ascertain Each Man's Wish.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—In order to learn what proportion of the American Army in France wishes to return home immediately, what wishes to remain in France for a time, and what intends to remain here indefinitely, the American Army authorities are now distributing circulars to the troops.

Every effort will be made, so far as possible, to give preferential passage to those soldiers eager to return at once.

GRAVE DISCOVERED MAY BE THE CZAR'S

By CARL W. ACKERMAN.

Romanoff and Alexis Romanoff, get ready. You will be sent away from here. You are allowed to take only the most necessary things, not over thirty or forty pounds.'

"Mastering themselves, but stumbling from side to side, mother and son soon got ready.

"'Tomorrow get him out of here,' the Soviet Chairman commanded the guard, pointing at me.

"Alexandra and Alexis were immediately taken away by an automobile truck, it is not known where.

"The morning of the following day the Commissary again appeared, and ordered me to get out of the room, taking with me some property of the Czar, but all the letters and documents belonging to the Czar were taken by the Commissary. I left, but had great difficulty in procuring a railway ticket, because all the stations and trains were overfilled with soldiers of the Red Army, tossing about and evacuating the city and taking along all precious objects."

Grave Found Near Ekaterinburg.

An epilogue and supplement to the manuscript, also written by Dominin, follow:

"The Cheliabinsk newspaper Utro Sibiri states that the Czar's execution was certified to by a special Government declaration at a place ten versts from Ekaterinburg. On July 30 a tumulus was found containing metal things belonging to each member of the family of the former Czar, and also bones of burned corpses, which may be those of the Romanoff family.

"As hostages, Grand Duchess Elena Petrova, Countess Henrikova, and a third, whose name I don't know, were taken away. The total hostages were about six. The Bolsheviki fled in the direction of Verknoturie.

"The Academician Bunakovhky, a member of the Russian Historical Society, found accidentally in the secret division of the Senate archives the proof sheet of a 'collection of laws ordered of the Government,' dated Oct. 17, 1905, in which was printed the following manifesto:

"Disturbances and riots in the capital and many parts of the empire are filling my heart with painful grief. The welfare of the Russian Emperor is indissolubly joined with the welfare of the people, and the affliction of the people is his grief. From the disturbances which have now arisen may proceed deep disorder among the population, a threat to the unity and integrity of our State.

"In these days, when the fate of Russia is being determined, we consider it the duty of our conscience to fuse our people into a close union and join all the powers of the population for the height of the State's prosperity.

"'Therefore we have decided to abdicate the throne of the Russian Empire and lay down the high power. Desiring not to be separated from our beloved son, we surrender the succession to our brother, the Grand Duke Michael, and bless him upon the ascendance to the Russian throne.

"'NICHOLAS ROMANOFF.

(Countersigned) "Minister of the Court, Baron FREDERICKS.

"'Oct. 16, 1905. Novy Peterhof.'

"Written with a red pencil on the text was 'Hold up printing, Manager of Typography Kedrinsky.'

"He tells me the following details regarding the delay in printing the manifesto. At 8 o'clock on the evening of Oct. 16 I received from a courier a packet from the Minister of the Court, Baron Fredericks, asking me to publish the manifesto in the next number of the Collection of Laws. As the manifesto was not received in the usual way throught the Minister of Justice, Kedrinsky in giving the manifesto to a typographer to prepare the printing, simultaneously informed Shthegtovioff by telephone.

"At first the Minister of Justice only asked for the holding up of the printing, but at 11 o'clock the functionary for special commissions from the Minister visited Kedrinsky and asked for the original of the manifesto and ordered the proof sheet transmitted to the secret archives of the Senate."

Thus the Czar spent the last days as a Bolshevist prisoner, disappearing within a few hours before the Szechoslovak troops freed the terror-stricken city of Ekaterinburg.

LESSENS WAR CURB ON ENEMY ALIENS

Government Retains Only Internment Power and Control of Border Entry and Exit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Effective on Christmas Day, all restrictions will be removed from German enemy aliens in the United States except the free right to enter and depart from the country and the Government's power of internment, it was announced this afternoon at the Department of Justice. This notice means that seventeen of the twenty restrictions under which they have lived will be lifted.

Probably the most important feature of the removal of the ban will be ability of the Germans to move freely in and about the waterfronts of the various cities, where up to this time they have been prohibited. In New York City alone more than 76,000 German enemy aliens had to register, and none of these was allowed in the waterfront area without a pass.

By the order issued this afternoon the Germans will be allowed to enter without passes the zones thrown about arsenals, armories, and military camps.

No Claims for Damage Done by Our Guns, It Is Said.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Dec. 23.—It has been repeatedly stated in America as well as in Europe that the United States has had to pay for damage done by American guns in blasting the boche out of France and that Americans had to pay rent for front line trenches which the French had dug.

I am authorized to state on the highest authority that these reports are groundless and that no such claims will be made by the French Government.

REPORT EBERT FACES BREAK IN CABINET

Resignation of Minority Members Said to be Threatened at Berlin.

MODERATE PARTIES ACTIVE

Aim at Solid Election Front—Vorwaerts Deplores Warning on Propaganda Notes.

ZURICH, Dec. 23.—The Ebert Government in Berlin is reported to be faced with a crisis through the resignation of the minority members of the Cabinet.

Political circles in Berlin, another report says, are agitated by a rumor that General Gröner, who succeeded General Ludendorff as Chief Quartermaster General, has threatened to seize Berlin with troops that have remained faithful if order is not re-established there shortly.

BERLIN, Dec. 22, (Associated Press.)—The bourgeois parties in Germany are striving to erect a solid front against the Majority Socialists in the coming elections to the National Assembly. The elections are only four week distant, and the former Right and Center parties are still much disorganized.

The Socialists have an intact party organization and have a stragetic advantage because they are now in virtual control of the Government. An added factor is that the Ebert-Haase Government has been strengthened in its position by the action of the recent revolutionary congress, which not only widened the jurisdiction of the Cabinet, but placed at its disposal a serviceable central committee of Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils.

This has been interpreted as marking the defeat of the ultra-Radical tendencies championed by the proletarian extremists. The Provisional Government will use the time before the elections in restoring order and alleviating economic conditions.

As the Majority Socialists are virtually in command of the Central Government and dominate the local Governments throughout Germany, they probably will enter the election fight as a solid majority, irrespective of the future action of the Independent Socialists or the Spartacus group.

Naumann Fears "Socialist Flood."

Friedrich Naumann, a Progressive leader, writing in the Tageblatt, recalls that the position of the Majority Socialists is similar to that of the National Liberals at the time the German Empire was founded. He estimates that the Radicals, who polled 35 per cent. of all the votes in 1912, may be able to increase that to 50 per cent. in view of the current political transition to the Left.

Herr Naumann says that the problem is most serious and can only be solved if the German democracy takes united action on behalf of advanced liberalism. He adds:

"The Socialist flood continues to rise, but with it rises our fear of the devastation of German economic and political life. A sound republican democracy is our only salvation."

The National Assembly will be called to order ten days after the elections, which will be held Jan. 19. The intervening period will be used in collecting the vote and arranging details. The session will continue eight weeks.

Cities which are urging that the National Assembly meet there are Frankfort, Cassel, Erfurt, Bayreuth, Weimer and Nuremburg. Berlin is likely to be overlooked, as events at the congress held last week convinced the out-of-town delegates that Berlin is too noisy.

Deplores Propaganda Curb.

It is officially denied that the German Government has continued to address notes exclusively to the United States after receiving the request of the Washington Government that official communications from Berlin in future be forwarded simultaneously to all the Allies.

Commenting upon the report received here that the American State Department had declared that the latest note from Germany was not published because it was evidently of a propagandistic character, the newspaper Vorwärts says:

"The harshness of this charge is incomprehensible. It is inconceivable that the United States goes so far as to expect that the people entirely innocent of starting the war and their new Government will quietly crawl into a corner and expire."

Dr. Carl Duisburg of Leverkusen, head of the German aniline dye industry, is reported to have fled to Switzerland. He was generally looked upon as the connecting link between "business" and General Ludendorff, and was one of the most active of the Pan Germans.

GLOOMY HOLIDAY IN BERLIN.

Many Ex-Soldiers Beg or Sell Trifles in the Streets.

BERLIN, Dec. 22, (Associated Press.)—The outlook for Berlin's first revolutionary Christmas appears to be anything but merry. The disposition of the Berliners seems to be gloomy. The stigma of military defeat has been eclipsed momentarily by political uncertainty, food stringency and disturbed economic conditions.

Never before, even during the war, have beggars and street vendors been seen in such numbers in Berlin. Three years ago a soldier would not have been permitted to walk the streets in uniform and beg. Professional beggars and crippled and invalid soldiers multiply daily, and their numbers are augmented by other soldiers, who sell cigarettes, soap and sweetmeats brought in from west of the Rhine, where such things have been more plentiful than in Berlin. An odd holiday spectacle is an able-bodied soldier in uniform grinding out Christmas music from a street organ.

Uter den Linden, Potsdamer Platz and Friedrichstrasse present an incongruous appearance with street stalls filled with flimsy wares and substitutes for Christmas pastry and wax candles.

There will be little holiday travel, as through trains have been withdrawn and local trains have been stripped of ordinary comforts, such as dining facilities, heating and illumination. Trips which ordinarily took twelve hours now take thirty. Trains are taken off without notice and printed schedules are worthless.

The newspapers also are lacking in Christmas cheer.

The mood of the holiday shopper inclines to books, although the jewellers are garnering their last war profits.

The theatres are filled to their capacity, but the playbills are serious and ponderous.

The prevailing economic unrest gives to the Berlin Christmas an especially sorrowful turn. The unemployed in Greater Berlin, according to estimates made yesterday, number 88,000. New strikes occur daily. The coal shortage contributes to the general cheerlessness and robs the season of light and warmth.

BOLSHEVIST STAFF RETURNS.

Radek Heads Russian Delegation Now Back in Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 23.—While Adolph Joffe, the Russian Bolshevist Ambassador to Germany, has not returned to Berlin after leaving some time ago by request of the Government, the staff of the Embassy is again in the German capital, according to a Berlin telegram today.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 23.—The Berlin correspondent of the Social Demokraten reports the arrival in Berlin of a delegation from the Soviet Government at Moscow, headed by M. Radek.

Berlin advices dated Dec. 11 stated that the Executive Committee of the Soldiers and Workmen's Council had canceled the invitation it had extended to Adolph Joffe, Bolshevist Ambassador to Germany, and M. Radek, a member of the Bolshevist Embassy in Berlin, to come to Berlin for the Congress of the Councils. The cancellation was at the request of the Berlin Cabinet.

EX-KAISER TO PREACH ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Has Arranged for a Religious Service in the Drawing Room of Amerongen Castle.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—William Hohenzollern has arranged for himself a Christmas celebration after the traditional German style, as far as the circumstances will permit, according to a dispatch to the Daily Express from Amsterdam today.

The arrangements, by the ex-Emperor's insistence, will include elaborate religious ceremonies on Christmas Eve. The idea of using the village chapel for these has proved impracticable for various reasons, one of them being the fear of popular hostile demonstrations. The service, accordingly, will be held in the drawing-room of Amerongen Castle, which will be converted into a chapel.

The ex-Emperor desired to have the Court Chaplain, Dr. Ernst von Dryander, come from Berlin to preach at the Christmas Eve ceremony, but the Berlin Government, says the dispatch, has refused permission for the chaplain to go to Holland. The service will be conducted by a German missionary from Zeist, near Amerongen, but Herr Hohenzollern himself will deliver the sermon.

Many friends of Count von Bentinck, the former Emperor's host, have been asked to attend the service, the message adds, but have refused the invitation. The former ruler's audience therefore will consist of Count von Bentinck and his family, the ex-Emperor's suite and the servants of the castle.

Christmas trees will be provided as usual for the celebration. Herr Hohenzollern cut down these himself, with the help of two men of the estate, in the Amerongen pine woods. The trees are new being decorated and loaded with gifts but the former ruler has requested that nothing be given him and the ex-Empress.

The feature of the Christmas dinner will be the turkey. In accordance with Prussian family custom, Herr Hohenzollern will do the carving himself. There will also be a plum pudding, made after an old English recipe, which it is supposed the ex-Emperor's mother, Princess Victoria, took to Germany with her from Windsor Castle.

HINDENBURG ARMY MASSED IN POSEN

Action Follows the Landing of 50,000 Polish Troops in Region.

ZURICH, Dec. 23, (Havas.)—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, according to reports received here from Germany, has concentrated a large force of soldiers in Posen.

Posen is German Poland. Polish Nationalists have claimed it has part of the new Poland, and Polish troops have invaded the territory. According to reports from Berlin last week, the Polish Government has ordered elections to be held in several parts of Posen. Danzig, the Baltic port occupied by Polish forces last week, is in Posen.

SEIZE PRUSSIAN CITIES.

Lithuanians There Rebel Against German Sovereignty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The Lithuanian National Council announces the receipt of a dispatch stating that the Prussian Lithuanians, comprising a dominant element in East Prussia, have rebelled from German sovereignty and under the leadership of Dr. Gaigalaitis have seized control of the cities of Tilsit, Memel, Insterburg, Darkehmen, Velau, and Goldap, and that the German press is expressing serious concern over the trend of affairs in East Prussia and the likelihood of a sufficient force being brought to bear to persuade that part of Prussia to unite with Lithuania proper.

"Dr. Gaigalaitis," the council asserts in an authorized announcement, "and his adherents have organized a council of seventeen members and the Prussian Lithuanians have proclaimed union with Lithuania proper and declared their intention of sending delegates to the convention to be held at Vilna, in January next, authorized to demand the incorporation of East Prussia with that of the parent State from which it was torn a long time ago by the Germans.

"The addition of this territory to Lithuania would mean an increase in the territory of that State of approximately 4,800 square miles and a population of about 600,000, thereby adding that much weight to the demands of the Lithuanians for liberty and independence and entire freedom from any interference with their political destiny on the part of Germany, Russia, and Poland."

PEOPLE TO PAY WORKERS.

Bavarians Made Idle by Coal Scarcity to Draw Wages.

MUNICH, Dec. 23, (Associated Press.)—All Bavarian industries employing more than ten persons have been ordered to shut down from Dec. 23 until Jan. 2 for the purpose of saving coal.

The workers will receive 90 per cent. of their ordinary wages, of which the employers will collect two-thirds from the communities in which they are located, under a State Treasury ruling made for the purpose of guarding industries.

TROTZKY DERIDES CZERNIN'S STATEMENTS

Says That Austrian's Only Role at Brest-Litovsk Was to Obey Kuehlmann.

LONDON, Dec. 23, (British Wireless Service.)—Leon Trotzky, the Russian Bolshevist Minister of War and Marine, has made a statement regarding the recent efforts of Count Czernin, former Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, to excuse Czernin for the part he played in the negotiation of the Brest-Litovsk treaty.

"Count Czernin," says Trotzky, "insists now very strongly upon a difference between the policy of Dr. Richard von Kühlmann (former German Foreign Secretary) and his own. We have actually noticed between them some difference, but this difference was due simply to the fact that von Kühlmann commanded and Czernin obeyed. It would be still more correct to say that General Hoffmann (one of the German delegates to Brest-Litovsk) gave orders to von Kühlmann and that Kühlmann conveyed them to Czernin.

"Czernin now discloses that it was his conviction that it was necessary that Poland, Lithuania and Courland should themselves determine their future government. In the Brest-Litovsk negotiations Czernin did not in any way display this conviction. When General Hoffmann wanted to express in ex pecially cynical form contempt of the victors for the right of self-determination of peoples, von Kühlmann charged Czernin with this task and Czernin carried it out.

"As to the special pacific propositions supposed to have been made by Czernin and to have miscarried owing to my opposition, no propositions differing from those of von Kühlmann were made by Czernin, either during the official sessions of the conference or during the few conversations which he had with me. Shorthand reports of the Brest-Litovsk negotiations will be published soon.

"Moreover, acts have more value than words. Austro-Hungarian troops, in a manner similar to the German troops, invaded the Ukraine and oppressed the people. It is true they now are hastily evacuating this territory, but this fact is not due to Count Czernin."

WASHINGTON BRINGS WOUNDED MEN HERE

President's Ship Comes Back Quickly After Landing Wilson Party at Brest.

PRESIDENT ENJOYED TRIP

Stayed on Deck Much of the Time and Showed Interest in Work of the Crew.

One of the two big transports which arrived yesterday from abroad with troops coming home for Christmas was the George Washington, the ship upon which the President and Mrs. Wilson, with the party of peace delegates and foreign diplomats, sailed from New York on Dec. 4. The only difference in her appearance yesterday was that her decks were crowded with soldiers in khaki.

The ship's officers said that on the eastern trip the President appeared to be taking a good rest to prepare himself for the functions and conferences during his visits in Paris and London. They said he spent a good deal of his time writing and reading in his cabin, but that he exercised frequently in walks on the deck.

No Storms on Trip.

Captain Edward McCauley, Jr., U. S. N., who was in command of the transport, said that the voyage to Brest and back to New York had been pleasant. The George Washington reached Brest at 1:20 P. M. on Friday, Dec. 13. He said he had been surprised to read that the transport had encountered severe storms on her voyage. There were one or two overcast days, he continued, but no bad weather. So far as he knew, no members of the party had been seasick. In telling how the President enjoyed the trip, Captain McCauley said:

"He appeared to take a great interest in the work of the ship and the duties performed by the crew, and spent the greater part of the day on deck watching the men. He was present at the fire and boat drills, and expressed his satisfaction at the manner in which the crew went through them. The voyage appeared to have benefited both the President and Mrs. Wilson. We averaged seventeen knots on the trip."

Entertained the Delegates.

The President and Mrs. Wilson had nearly all their meals served in their suite on the C deck, and dined out only twice on the voyage, officers said. Once he entertained the peace delegates at dinner in the saloon on deck, and on the night before arriving at Brest the President and Mrs. Wilson, Admiral Grayson, and Miss Benham dined in the Captain's cabin.

One of the executive officers of the transport said that the voyage over took nine days because they steered by the Azores to get warm weather. The highest speed attained for a brief period, he added, was eighteen and one-half knots. At the Azores the ships in the convoy were joined by seven other destroyers. Four hours out of Brest they were met by ten battleships, three cruisers, and twenty-four more American destroyers, two French cruisers and one Italian cruiser.

Among the troops on the George Washington were 2,000 men from the "Cyclone" Division, made up of the 137th and 139th Field Artillery Regiments from Indiana. There was also the marine guard of honor, composed of seventy-two men, who went to Brest on the transport with President Wilson. About 968 sick and wounded were on board, including a number of pneumonia and bronchial cases. Other transports arriving yesterday from France and England had on board 398 officers and 5,631 men, which included 1,300 sick and wounded. Those aboard were chiefly men from the 27th Division who had been hit by shrapnel at St. Quentin and Cambrai in the fights to break the Hindenburg line.

One of the wounded officers on board was Colonel Halstead Dorey of Washington, D. C., who wore four wound stripes and walked on crutches. He commanded the 4th Infantry, 3d Division, in fighting near Verdun. Colonel Dorey formerly was stationed at Governors Island.

Wounded from 27th Division.

Survivors of the old 22d New York Engineers related how valiantly the boys of that unit fought before St. Souplet and the other territory through which they built roads and erected bridges. Praise of the deeds of Sergeant T. Raymond Brady of 1,858 Cedar Avenue, Morris Heights, the Bronx, was expressed by his comrades. He swam the canal at St. Souplet, under heavy machine-gun fire, with a rope hitched to his waist, and, driving stakes into the ground on the opposite shore, made fast the hawser, so that the American doughboys and Anzacs could cross the stream.

Among the aviators on board was Lieutenant George W. Puryear of Memphis, Tenn., who made his first flight at Château-Thierry. He encountered a German airplane and shot it down and, thinking he was behind the allied lines, descended. He was in five German prison camps, and eventually escaped by swimming the Rhine, walking through Belgium, and getting back into the American lines.

Another aviator who returned was Lieutenant Edgar Boligney of New Orleans. He has been in France since August, 1914. He served as an aviator with the Foreign Legion until this country entered the war. In the fighting in Albania in July his plane was shot down from a height of 7,000 feet, his gas tank was punctured with a dozen bullets, and one of his wings was so badly damaged that it barely hung together.

Troops on the Cedric were casuals from aero and medical squadrons in training in England, including a number of colored troops. They were sent to Camp Mills. The wounded, about 538 in number, were taken to the General Debarkation Hospital at Ellis Island.

The wounded men had many stories to tell of their encounters with the Huns in France and Flanders. Corporal William Duncuson of 370 West 127th Street, a member of the 102d Infantry, said that when his regiment was fighting near Bellecourt they found a tunnel three miles long under the canal. At first it looked like a trench, and they threw smoke bombs into it, which brought out three Germans, whom they captured. Men who went in to explore found the dugout full of Germans, who retreated by the other end of the tunnel. They captured altogether 4,000 prisoners from the tunnel, Duncusen said, and quantities of provisions of all kinds, clothing, and ammunition stored in recesses.

Saw Women Machine Gunners.

Major R. F. Sullivan of Chicago, attached to the Quartermaster's Corps in Liverpool, said that 22,000 troops had already been shipped from that port, and there were 1,000 wounded waiting in the hospitals for transports to bring them home. Private Harold Coyne of the 108th Infantry, whose right leg was fractured at St. Quentin on Sept. 28, said he was positive that he had seen German women manning machine guns.

Sergeant Archie Rasler of the 108th Infantry said he was the only survivor of thirty who went into action on Sept. 29 at St. Quentin. He lost his left eye and sixty-four pieces of shrapnel penetrated his body. There were many other men in the wards from the 27th Division who had lost legs and arms, but they were all cheerful and glad to be home for Christmas.

There was not quite so much tooting in the river yesterday from the various craft because the pilots have complained that they could not hear the signals in the confusion and an accident might occur.

Soldiers said they had learned that the 76th Division would embark soon for home from St. Nazaire; others said they had heard the 27th and 30th would soon be on the way.

FINDS AGAINST PIRATING NEWS

its peculiar value is in spreading the news while it is fresh. But the court points out that it has been held in one important case that collections of news quotations were entitled to legal protection like trade secrets, also in another case that the gathering and communicating of news was a legitimate business partaking of the nature of property in the sense that it is entitled to court protection.

The International News Service insisted before the highest court that when members of The Associated Press communicated news to the public by posting on bulletin boards, so that all may read it, or distribute the news to its newspaper clients, The Associated Press no longer had any right to control the use made if its news, and that this news becomes common possession when it reaches the light of day. The Supreme Court denied this contention.

"The fault in the reasoning," says Mr. Pitney's opinion, representing the majority view of the Court, "lies in applying as a test the right of the complainant as against the public instead of considering the rights of the complainant and defendant, competitors in business, as between themselves. The right of the purchaser of a single newspaper to spread knowledge of its contents gratuitously, for any legitimate purpose not unreasonably interfering with complainant's right to make merchandise of it, may be admitted; but to transmit that news for general commercial use, in competition with the complainant—which is what the defendant has done and seeks to justify—is a very different mattter."

Declared Unfair Trade.

The court holds that, "stripped of all disguises," this process amounts to an unauthorized interference with the normal operation of complainant's legitimate business precisely at the point where the profit is to be reaped, in order to divert a material portion of the profit from those who have earned it to those who have not, with special advantage to the defendant in the competition because of the fact that it is not burdened with part of the expense of gathering the news. It is held that a court of equity ought not to hesitate long in characterizing it as unfair competition in business.

The contention that the news is abandoned to the public for all purposes when published in the first newspaper is declared to be untenable.

"The cost of the service," says Justice Pitney, "would be prohibitive if the reward were to be so limited. No single newspaper or group of newspapers could sustain the expenditure. Indeed, it is one of the obvious results of the defendant's theory that, by permitting indiscriminate publication by anybody and everybody for purposes of profit in competition with the news-gatherer, it would render publication profitless, or so little profitable as in effect to cut off the service by rendering the cost prohibitive in comparison with the return."

Justice Pitney asserts that the view adopted by the majority of the court does not result in giving to the complainant the right to "monopolize" either the gathering or the distribution of the news, or, without complying with the copyright act, to prevent the reproduction of its news articles. But he makes plain that the view adopted by the court "only postpones participation by complainant's competitor in the processes of distribution and reproduction of news that it has gathered and only to the extent necessary to prevent that competitor from reaping the fruits of complainant's efforts and expenditure, to the partial exclusion of complainant, and in violation of the principle that underlies the maximum sic utere tuo."

Status of the Litigants.

The full text of the majority opinion follows:

"The parties are competitors in the gathering and distribution of news and its publication for profit in newspapers throughout the United States. The Associated Press, which was complainant in the District Court, is a co-operative organization, incorporated under the Membership Corporations Law of the State of New York, its members being individuals who are either proprietors or representatives of about 950 daily newspapers published in all parts of the United States. That a corporation may be organized under that act for the purpose of gathering news for the use and benefit of its members and for publication in newspapers owned or represented by them is recognized by an amendment enacted in 1901 (Laws N. Y., 1901, Chap. 436.)

"Complainant gathers in all parts of the world, by means of various instrumentalities of its own, by exchange with its members, and by other appropriate means, news and intelligence of current and recent events of interest to newspaper readers, and distributes it daily to its members for publication in their newspapers. The cost of the service, amounting approximately to $3,500,000 per annum, is assessed upon the members and becomes a part of their costs of operation, to be recouped, presumably with profit, through the publication of their several newspapers. Under complainant's by-laws each member agrees, upon assuming membership, that news received through complainant's service is received exclusively for publication in a particular newspaper, language, and place, specified in the certificate of membership, that no other use of it shall be permitted and that no member shall furnish, or permit any one in his employ or connected with his newspaper to furnish any of complainant's news in advance of publication to any person not a member. And each member is required to gather the local news of his district, and supply it to The Associated Press, and to no one else.

"Defendant is a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, whose business is the gathering and selling of news to its customers and clients, consisting of newspapers published throughout the United States, under contracts by which they pay certain amounts at stated times for defendant's service. It has widespread news gathering agencies; the cost of its operations amounts, it is said, to more than $2,000,000 per annum, and it serves about 400 newspapers, located in the various cities of the United States and abroad, a few of which are represented also, in the membership of the Associated Press.

"The parties are in the keenest competition between themselves in the distribution of news throughout the United States; and so, as a rule, are the newspapers that they serve, in their several districts.

Value of News Service.

"Compainant in its bill, defendant in its answer, have set forth in almost identical terms the rather obvious circumstances and conditions under which their business is conducted. The value of the service and of the news furnished depends upon the promptness of transmission, as well as upon the accuracy and impartiality of the news; it being essential that the news be transmitted to members or subscribers as early or earlier than any similar information can be furnished to competing newspapers by other news services, and that the news furnished by each agency shall not be furnished to newspapers which do not contribute to the expense of gathering it. And, further, to quote from the answer:

"'Prompt knowledge and publication of worldwide news is essential to the conduct of a modern newspaper, and, by reason of the enormous expense incident to the gathering and distribution of such news, the only practical way in which a proprietor of a newspaper can obtain the same is either through co-operation with a considerable number of other newspaper proprietors in the work of collecting and distributing such news, and the equitable division with them of the expenses thereof, or by the purchase of such news from some existing agency engaged in that business.'

"The bill was filed to restrain the pirating of complainant's news by defendant in three ways: First, by bribing employes of newspapers published by complainant's members to furnish Associated Press news to defendant before publication, for transmission by telegraph and telephone to defendant's clients for publication by them; second, by inducing Associated Press members to violate its by-laws and permit defendant to obtain news before publication, and, third, by copying news from bulletin boards and from early editions of complainant's newspapers and selling this, either bodily or after rewriting it, to defendant's customers.

"The District Court, upon consideration of the bill and answer, with voluminous affidavits on both sides, granted a preliminary injunction under the first and second heads; but refused at that stage to restrain the systematic practice admittedly pursued by defendant of taking news bodily from the bulletin boards and early editions of complainant's newspapers and selling it as its own. The court expressed itself as satisfied that this practice amounted to unfair trade, but, as the legal question was one of first impression, it considered that the allowance of an injunction should await the outcome of an appeal. (240 Fed. Rep., 983,996.)

"Both parties having appealed, the Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the injunction order so far as it went, and, upon complainant's appeal, modified it and remanded the cause, with directions to issue an injunction also against any bodily taking of the words or substance of complainant's news until its commercial value as news had passed away. (245 Fed. Rep., 244,253.) The present writ of certiorari was then allowed. (245 U. S., 644.)

The Underlying Questions.

"The only matter that has been argued before us is whether defendant may lawfully be restrained from appropriating news taken from bulletins issued by complainant or any of its members or from newspapers published by them, for the purpose of selling it to defendant's clients. Complainant asserts that defendant's admitted course of conduct in this regard both violates complainant's property right in the news and constitutes unfair competition in business.

"And, notwithstanding the case has proceeded only to the stage of a preliminary injunction, we have deemed it proper to consider the underlying questions, since they go to the very merits of the action and are presented upon facts that are not in dispute. As presented in argument, these questions are:

"1. Whether there is any property in news.

"2. Whether, if there be property in news collected for the purpose of being published, it survives the instant of its publication in the first newspaper to which it is communicated by the news gatherer, and,

"3. Whether defendant's admitted course of conduct in appropriating for commercial use matter taken from bulletins or early editions of Associated Press publications constitutes unfair competition in trade.

"The Federal jurisdiction was invoked because of diversity of citizenship, not upon the ground that the suit arose under the copyright or other laws of the United States. Complainant's news matter is not copyrighted. It is said that it could not, in practice, be copyrighted, because of the large number of dispatches that are sent daily, and, according to complainant's contention, news is not within the operation of the Copyright act.

"Defendant, while apparently conceding this, nevertheless invokes the analogies of the law of literary property and copyright, insisting as its principal contention that, assuming complainant has a right or property in its news, it can be maintained (unless the Copyright act be complied with) only by being kept secret and confidential, and that, upon the publication, with complainant's consent, of uncopyrighted news by any of complainant's members in a newspaper or upon a bulletin board, the right of property is lost, and the subsequent use of the news by the public or by defendant for any purpose whatever becomes lawful.

Preliminary Objection.

"A preliminary objection to the form in which the suit is brought may be disposed of at the outset. It is said that the Circuit Court of Appeals granted relief upon considerations applicable to particular members of The Associated Press and that that was erroneous, because the suit was brought by complainant as a corporate entity, and not by its members, the argument being that their interests cannot be protected in this proceeding any more than the individual rights of a stockholder can be enforced in an action brought by the corporation. From the averments of the bill, however, it is plain that the suit in substance was brought for the benefit of complainant's members and that they would be proper parties, and, except for their members, perhaps necessary parties. Complainant is a proper party to conduct the suit as representing their interests, and since no specific objection, based upon the want of parties, appears to have been made below, we will treat the objection as waived. See equity rules 38, 43, 44.

"In considering the general question of property in news matter, it is necessary to recognize its dual character, distinguishing between the substance of the information and the particular form or collocation of words in which the writer has communicated it.

"No doubt news articles often possess a literary quality and are the subject of literary property at the common law. Nor do we question that such an article as a literary production is the subject of copyright by the terms of the act as it now stands. In an early case at the Circuit, Mr. Justice Thompson held in effect that a newspaper was not within the protection of the copyright acts of 1790 and 1802. (Clayton v. Stone, 2 Paine, 382, 5 Fed., Case No. 2872.) But the present act is broader. It provides that works for which copyrights may be secured shall include 'all the writings of an author' and specifically mentions 'periodicals, including newspapers.' (Act of March 4, 1909, CH 320, Secs. 4 and 5, 35 Stat., 1075, 1076.) Evidently this admits to copyright a contribution to a newspaper, notwithstanding it also may convey news, and such is the practice of the Copyright Office, as the newspapers of the day bear witness. See Copyright Office Bulletin No. 15, (1917,) pp. 7, 14, 16-17.

"But the news element—the information respecting current events contained in the literary production—is not the creation of the writer, but is a report of matters that ordinary are publici juris, it is the history of the day. It is not to be supposed that the framers of the Constitution, when they empowered Congress 'to promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries' (Const. Art. 1, Sec. 8, Par. 8,) intended to confer upon one who might happen to be the first to report a historic event the exclusive right for any period to spread the knowledge of it.

Unfair Competition.

"We need spend no time, however, upon the general question of property in news matter at common law, or the application of the Copyright act, since it seems to us the case must turn upon the question of unfair competition in business. And, in our opinion, this does not depend upon any general right of property analogous to the the common law right of the proprietor of an unpublished work to prevent its publication without his consent; nor is it foreclosed by showing that the benefits of the Copyright act have been waived. We are dealing here, not with restrictions upon publication, but with the very facilities and processes of publication.

"The peculiar value of news is in the spreading of it while it is fresh, and it is evident that a valuable property interest in the news as news cannot be maintained by keeping it secret. Besides, except for matters improperly disclosed, or published in breach of trust or confidence, or in violation of law, none of which is involved in this branch of the case, the news of current events may be regarded as common property.

"What we are concerned with is the business of making know the news to the world, in which both parties to the present suit are engaged. That business consists in maintaining a prompt, sure, steady, and reliable service, designed to place the daily events of the world at the breakfast table of the millions at a price that, while of trifling moment to each reader, is sufficient in the aggregate to afford compensation for the cost of gathering and distributing it, with the added profit so necessary as an incentive to effective action in the commercial world.

"The service thus performed for newspaper readers is not only innocent, but extremely useful in itself, and indubitably constitutes a legitimate business. The parties are competitors in this field, and, on fundamental principles, applicable here as elsewhere, when the rights or privileges of the one are liable to conflict with those of the other, each party is under a duty so to conduct its own business as not unnecessarily or unfairly to injure that of the other. (Hitchman Coal and Coke Co. v. Mitchell, 245 U. S. 229, 254.)

"Obviously the question of what is unfair competition in business must be determined with particular reference to the character and circumstances of the business. The question here is not so much the rights of either party as against the public, but their rights as between themselves. (See Morison v. Moat, 9, Hare 241, 258.) And, although we may and do assume that neither party has any remaining property interest as against the public in uncopyrighted news matter after the moment of its first publication, it by no means follows that there is no remaining property interest in it as between themselves. For to both of them alike news matetr, however little susceptible of ownership or dominion in the absolute sense, is stock in trade, to be gathered at the cost of enterprise, organization, skill, labor, and money, and to be distributed and sold to those who will pay money for it, as for any other merchandise.

"Regarding the news, therefore, as but the material out of which both parties are seeking to make profits at the same time and in the same field, we hardly can fail to recognize that for this purpose and as between them it must be regarded as quasi property, irrespective of the rights of either as against the public.

News Is Property.

"In order to sustain the jurisdiction of equity over the controversy we need not affirm any general and absolute property in the news as such. The rule that a court of equity concerns itself only in the protection of property rights treats any civil right of a pecuniary nature as a property right. (in re Sawyer, 124, U. S. 200, 210; in re Debs, 158, U. S. 564, 593,) and the right to acquire property by honest labor or the conduct of a lawful business is as much entitled to protection as the right to guard property already acquired, (Truax v. Raich, 239 U. S. 33, 37-38; Brennan v. United Hatters, 73, N J. Law 729, 742; Barr v. Essex Trades Council, 53, N. J. Eq. 101.) It is this right that furnishes the basis of the jurisdiction in the ordinary case of unfair competition.

"The question whether one who has gathered general information or news at pains and expense for the purpose of subsequent publication through the press has such an interest in its publication as may be protected from interference, has been raised many times, although never, perhaps, in the precise form in which it is now presented.

"Board of Trade versus Christie Grain and Stock Company, 198 U. S. 236, 250, related to the distribution of quotations of prices on dealings upon a Board of Trade which were collected by plaintiff and communicated on confidential terms to numerous persons under a contract not to make them public. This court held that, apart from certain special objections that were overruled, plaintiff's collection of quotations was entitled to the protection of the law; that like a trade secret plaintiff might keep to itself the work done at its expense and did not lose its right by communicating the result to persons, even if many, in confidential relations to itself, under a contract not to make it public, and that strangers should be restrained from getting at the knowledge by inducing a breach of trust.

"In National Tel. News Company versus Western Union Tel. Company, 119 Fed. Rep. 294, the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit dealt with news matter gathered and transmitted by a telegraph company and consisting merely of a notation of current events having but a transient value, due to quick transmission and distribution; and, while declaring that this was not copyrightable, although printed on a tape by tickers in the offices of the recipients, and that it was a commercial, not a literary, product, nevertheless held that the business of gahering and communicating the news—the service of purveying it—was a legitimate business meeting a distinctive commercial want and adding to the facilities of the business world and partaking of the nature of property, in the sense that entitled it to the protection of a court of equity against piracy.

"Other cases are cited, but none that we deem it necessary to mention.

Peculiar Features.

"Not only do the acquisition and transmission of news require elaborate organization and a large expenditure of money skill, and effort; not only has it an exchange value to the gatherer, dependent chiefly upon its novelty and freshness, the regularity of the service, its reputed reliability and thoroughness, and its adaptability to the public needs, but also, as is evident, the news has an exchange value to one who can misappropriate it.

"The peculiar features of the case arise from the fact that, while novelty and freshness form so important an element in the success of the business, the very processes of distribution and publication necessarily occupy a good deal of time. Complainant's service, as well as defendant's, is a daily service to daily newspapers. Most of the foreign news reaches this country at the Atlantic seaboard, principally at the City of New York, and because of this, and of time differentials due to the earth's rotation, the distribution of news matter throughout the country is principally from East to West; and, since in speed the telegraph and telephone easily outstrip the rotation of the earth, it is a simple matter for defendant to make complainant's news from bulletins or early editions of complainant's members in the Eastern cities, and, at the mere cost of telegraphic transmission, cause it to be published in Western papers issued at least as early as those served by complainant. Besides this and irrespective of time differentials, irregularities in telegraphic transmission on different lines and the normal consumption of time in printing and distributing the newspaper result in permitting pirated news to be placed in the hands of defendant's readers sometimes simultaneously with the service of competing Associated Press papers, occasionally even earlier.

"Defendant insists that when, with the sanction and approval of complainant and as a result of the use of its news for the very purpose for which it is distributed, a portion of the complainant's members communicate it to the general public by posting it on bulletin boards so that all may read, or by issuing it to newspapers and distributing it indiscriminately, complainant no longer has the right to control the use to be made of it; that when it thus reaches the light of day it becomes the common possession of all to whom it is accessible, and that any purchaser of a newspaper has the right to communicate the intelligence which it contains to anybody and for any purpose, even for the purpose of selling it for profit to newspapers published for profit in competition with complainant's members.

Fault in the Reasoning.

"The fault in the reasoning lies in applying as a test the right of the complainant as against the public, instead of considering the rights of complainant and defendant, competitors in business, as between themselves. The right of the purchaser of a single newspaper to spread knowledge of its contents gratuitously, for any legitimate purpose, not unreasonably interfering with complainant's right to make merchandise of it, may be admitted, but to transmit that news for commercial use, in competition with complainant—which is what defendant has done and seeks to justify—is a very different matter. In doing this, defendant, by its very act, admits that it is taking material that has been acquired by complainant as the result of organization and the expenditure of labor, skill and money, and which is salable by complainant for money, and that defendant, in appropriating it and selling it as its own, is endeavoring to reap where it has not sown, and, by disposing of it to newspapers that are competitors of complainant's members, is appropriating to itself the harvest of those who have sown.

"Stripped of all disguises, the process amounts to an unauthorized interference with the normal operation of complainant's legitimate business precisely at the point where the profit is to be reaped, in order to divert a material portion of the profit from those who have earned it to those who have not, with special advantage to defendant in the competition, because of the fact that it is not burdened with any part of the expense of gathering the news. The transaction speaks for itself, and a court of equity ought not to hesitate long in characterizing it as unfair competition in business.

"The underlying principle is much the same as that which lies at the base of the equitable theory of consideration in the law of trusts—that he who has fairly paid the price should have the beneficial use of the property. (Pom. Eq. Jur. Sec. 981.) It is no answer to say that complainant spends its money for that which is too fugitive or evanescent to be the subject of property. That might, and for the purposes of the discussion we are assuming that it would, furnish an answer in a common-law controversy. But in a court of equity, where the question is one of unfair competition, if that which the complainant has acquired fairly at substantial cost may be sold fairly at substantial profit, a competitor who is misappropriating it for the purpose of disposing of it to his own profit and to the disadvantage of complainant cannot be heard to say that it is too fugitive or evanescent to be regarded as property. It has all the attributes of property necessary for determining that a misappropriation of it by a competitor is unfair competition, because contrary to good conscience.

Abandonment of News.

"The contention that the news is abandoned to the public for all purposes when published in the first newspaper is untenable. Abandonment is a question of intent, and the entire organization of The Associated Press negatives such a purpose. The cost of the service would be prohibitive if the reward were to be so limited. No single newspaper, no small group of newspapers could sustain the expenditure. Indeed, it is one of the most obvious results of defendant's theory that, by permitting indiscriminate publication by anybody and everybody, for purposes of profit, in competition with the news gatherer, it would render publication profitless or so little profitable as in effect to cut off the service by rendering the cost prohibitive in comparison with the return.

"The practical needs and requirements of the business are reflected in complainant's by-laws, which have been referred to. Their effect is that publication by each member must be deemed, not by any means an abandonment of news to the world for any and all purposes, but a publication for limited purposes; for the benefit of the readers of the bulletin or the newspaper as such; not for the purpose of making merchandise of it as news, with the result of depriving complainant's other members of their reasonable opportunity to obtain just returns for their expenditures.

"It is to be observed that the view we adopt does not result in giving to complainant the right to monopolise either the gathering or the distribution of the news, or, without complying with the Copyright act, to prevent the reproduction of its news articles, but only postpones participation by complainant's competitor in the processes of distribution and reproduction of news that it has not gathered and only to the extent necessary to prevent that competitor from reaping the fruits of complainant's efforts and expenditure, to the partial exclusion of complainant and in violation of the principle that underlies the maxim sic utero tuo.

"It is said that the elements of unfair competition are lacking because there is no attempt by defendant to palm off its goods as those of the complainant, characteristic of the most familiar, if not most typical, cases of unfair competition. (Howe Scale Company v. Wyckoff, Seamans, &c., 198 U. S. 118, 140.) But we cannot concede that the right to equitable relief is confined to that class of cases. In the present case, the fraud upon complainant's rights is more direct and obvious. Regarding news matter as the mere material from which these two competing parties are endeavoring to make money, and treating it, therefore as quasi property for the purposes of their business, because they are both selling it as such, defendant's conduct differs from the ordinary case of unfair competition in trade principally in this, that, instead of selling its own goods as those of complainant, it substitutes misappropriation in the place of misrepresentation, and sells complainant's goods as its own.

False Pretense.

"Besides the misappropriation, there are elements of imitation, of false pretense in defendant's practices. The device of rewriting complainant's news articles, frequently resorted to, carries its own comment. The habitual failure to give credit to complainant for that which is taken is significant. Indeed, the entire system of appropriating complainant's news and transmitting it as a comercial product to defendant's clients and patrons amounts to a false representation to them and to their newspaper readers that the news transmitted is the result of defendant's own investigation in the field.

"But these elements, although accentuating the wrong, are not the essence of it. It is something more than the advantage of celebrity of which complainant is being deprived.

"The doctrine of unclean hands is invoked as a bar to relief, it being insisted that defendant's practices against which complainant seeks an injunction are not different from the practice attributed to complainant of utilizing defendant's news published by its subscribers. At this point it becomes necessary to consider a distinction that is drawn by complainant and, as we understand it, was recognized by defendant also, in the submission of proofs in the District Court, between two kinds of use that may be made by one news agency of news taken from the bulletins and newspapers of the other.

"The first is the bodily appropriation of a statement of fact or a news article, with or without rewriting, but without independent investigation or other expense. This form of pirating was found by both courts to have been pursued by defendant systematically with respect to complainant's news, and against it the Circuit Court of Appeals granted an injunction. This practice complainant denies having pursued, and the denial was sustained by the finding of the District Court. It is not contended by defendant that the finding can be set aside, upon the proofs as they now stand.

"The other use is to take the news of a rival agency as a 'tip' to be investigated, and, if verified by independent investigation, the news thus gathered is sold. This practice complainant admits that it has pursued and still is willing that defendant shall employ.

"Both courts held that complainant could not be debarred on the ground of unclean hands upon the score of pirating defendant's news, because not shown to be guilty of sanctioning this practice.

Employment of "Tips."

"As to securing 'tips' from a competing news agency, the District Court (240 Fed. Rep. 991, 995), while not sanctioning the practice, found that both parties had adopted it, in accordance with common business usage, in the belief that their conduct was technically lawful, and hence did not find in it any sufficient ground for attributing unclean hands to complainant. The Circuit Court of Appeals (245 Fed. Rep. 247) found that the 'tip' habit, though discouraged by complainant, was 'incurably journalistic,' and that there was 'no difficulty in discriminating between the utilization of tips and the bodily appropriation of another's labor in accumulating and stating information.'

"We are inclined to think a distinction may be drawn between the utilization of tips and the bodily appropriation of news matter, either in its original form or after rewriting and without independent investigation and verification. Whatever may appear at the final hearing, the proofs, as they now stand, recognize such a distinction; both parties avowedly recognize the practice of taking tips, and nether party alleges it to be unlawful or to amount to unfair competition in business.

"In a line of English cases, a somewhat analogous practice has been held not to amount to an infringement of the copyright of a directory or other book containing compiled information, in Kelly v. Morris, L. R. 1 EQ. 697, 701, 702, Vice Chancellor Sir William Page Wood, (afterwards Lord Hatherly,) dealing with such a case, said that defendant was 'not entitled to take one word of the information previously published, without independently working out the matter for himself, so as to arrive at the same result from the same common sources of information, and the only use that he can legitimately make of a previous publication is to verify his own calculations and results when obtained.'

"This was followed by Vice Chancellor Giffard in Morris v. Ashbee, L.R. 7 EQ. 34, where he said, 'In a case such as this, no one has a right to take the results of the labor and expense incurred by another for the purposes of a rival publication and thereby save himself the expense and labor of working out and arrival at these results by some independent road.'

"A similar view was adopted by Lord Chancellor Hatherly and the former Vice Chancellor, then Giffard, L. J., in Pike vs. Nicholas, L. R. 5, Ch. App. Cas. 251, and shortly afterward by the latter Judge in Morris vs. Wright, L. R. 5, Ch. App. Cas. 279, 287, where he said, commenting upon Pike vs. Nicholas: 'It was a perfectly legitimate course for the defendant to refer to the plaintiff's book, and if, taking that book as his guide, he went to the original authorities and compiled his book from them, he made no unfair or improper use of the plaintiff's book, and so here, if the fact be that Mr. Wright used the plaintiff's book in order to guide himself to the persons on whom it would be worth his while to call, and for no other purpose, he made a perfectly legitimate use of the plaintiff's book.'

"A like distinction was recognized by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Edward Thompson Company vs. American Law Book Company, 122 Fed. Rep. 922, and in West. Pub. Company vs. Edward Thompson Company, 176 Fed. Rep. 833, 838.

Matter of Clean Hands.

"In the case before us, in the present state of the pleadings and proofs, we need go no further than to hold, as we do, that the admitted pursuit by complainant of the practice of taking news items published by defendant's subscribers as tips to be investigated, and if verified, the result of the investigation to be sold—the practice having been followed by defendant, also, and by news agencies generally—is not shown to be such as to constitute an unconscientious or inequitable attitude toward its adversary so as to fix upon complainant the taint of unclean hands and debar it on this ground from the relief to which it is otherwise entitled.

"There is some criticism of the injunction that was directed by the District Court upon the going down of the mandate from the Circuit Court of Appeals. In brief, it restrains any taking or gainfully using of the complainant's news, either bodily or in substance, from bulletins issued by the complainant or any of its members, or from editions of their newspapers, until its commercial value as news to the complainant and all of its members has passed away.

"The part complained of is the clause we have italicized, but if this be indefinite, it is no more so than the criticism. Perhaps it would be better that the terms of the injunction be made specific, and so framed as to confine the restraint to an extent consistent with the reasonable protection of complainant's newspapers, each in its own area and for a specified time after its publication, against the competitive use of pirated news by defendant's customers. But the case presents practical difficulties, and we have not the materials, either in the way of a definite suggestion of amendment, or in the way of proofs, upon which to frame a specific injunction; hence, while not expressing approval of the form adopted by the District Court, we decline to modify it at this preliminary stage of the case, and will leave that court to deal with the matter upon appropriate application made to it for the purpose."

The Associate Opinion.

The associate opinion of Justice Holmes, in which Justice McKenna concurred, follows:

"When an uncopyrighted combination of words is published there is no general right to forbid other people repeating them; in other words, there is no property in the combination or in the thoughts or facts that the words express. Property, a creation of law, does not arise from value, although exchangeable as a matter of fact. Many exchangeable values may be destroyed intentionally without compensation. Property depends upon exclusion by law from interference, and a person is not excluded from using any combination of words merely because some one has used it before, even if it took labor and genius to make it.

"If a given person is to be prohibited from making the use of words that his neighbors are free to make, some other ground must be found. One such ground is vaguely expressed in the phrase unfair trade. This means that the words are repeated by a competitor in business in such a way as to convey a misrepresentation that materially injures the person who first used them by appropriating credit of some kind which the first user has earned. The ordinary case is a representation by devise, appearance or other indirection, that the defendant's goods come from the plaintiff. But the only reason why it is actionable to make such a representation is that it tends to give the defendant an advantage in his competition with the plaintiff, and that it is thought undesirable that an advantage should be gained in that way. Apart from that, the defendant may use such unpatented devices and uncopyrighted combinations of words as he likes.

"The ordinary case, I say, is palming off the defendant's product as the plaintiff's, but the same evil may follow from the opposite falsehood—from saying, whether in words or by implication, that the plaintiff's product is the defendant's, and that, it seems to me, is what has happened here.

"Fresh news is got only by enterprise and expense. To produce such news as it is produced by the defendant represents by implication that it has been acquired by the defendant's enterprise and at its expense. When it comes from one of the great news collecting agencies like The Associated Press, the source generally is indicated, plainly importing that credit; and that such a representation is implied may be inferred with some confidence from the unwillingness of the defendant to give the credit and tell the truth.

"If the plaintiff produces the news at the same time that the defendant does, the defendant's presentation impliedly denies to the plaintiff the credit of collecting the facts and assumes that credit to the defendant. If the plaintiff is later in Western cities, it naturally will be supposed to have obtained its information from the defendant.

"The falsehood is a little more subtle, the injury a little more indirect, than in ordinary cases of unfair trade, but I think that the principle that condemns the one condemns the other. It is a question of how strong an infusion of fraud is necessary to turn a flavor into a poison. The dose seems to me strong enough here to need a remedy from the law. But as, in my view, the only ground of complaint that can be recognized without legislation is the implied misstatement. It can be corrected by stating the truth, and a suitable acknowledgement of the source is all that the plaintiff can require. I think that, within the limits recognized by the decision of the court, the defendant should be enjoined from publishing news obtained from The Associated Press for ——hours after publication by the plaintiff, unless it gives express credit to The Associated Press, the number of hours and the form of acknowledgement to be settled by the District Court."

The Dissenting Opinion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23, (Associated Press.)—Associate Justice Brandeis in his dissenting opinion in the news pirating case, said in part:

"The means by which the International News Service obtains news gathered by The Associated Press is clearly unobjectionable. It is taken from papers bought in the open market or from bulletins publicly posted; no breach of contract or of trust, neither fraud nor force, is involved. The manner of use is likewise unobjectionable. No reference is made by word or by act to The Associated Press, either in transmitting the news to subscribers or by them in publishing it in their papers. Neither the International News service nor its subscribers is gaining or seeking to gain in its business a benefit from the reputation of The Associated Press. They are merely using its product without making compensation. That they have a legal right to do, because the product is not property; and they do not stand in any relation to The Associated Press, either by contract or trust, which otherwise precludes such use. The argument is not advanced by characterizing such taking and use as a misappropriation. Nor is the use made by the International News Service of the information taken from papers or bulletins of Associated Press members legally objectionable by reason of the purpose for which it was employed. * * *

"The great development of agencies now furnishing country-wide distribution of news, the vastness of our territory and improvements in the means of transmitting intelligence, have made it possible for a news agency or newspaper to obtain, without paying compensation, the fruit of another's efforts and to use news so obtained gainfully in competition with the original collector. The injustice of such action is obvious. But to give relief against it would involve more than the application of existing rules of law to new facts. It would require the making of a new rule in an analogy to existing ones.

"The rule for which the plaintiff contends would effect an important extension of property rights and a corresponding curtailment of the free use of knowledge and ideas, and the facts of this admonish us of the danger involved in recognizing such a property right in news without imposing upon news gatherers corresponding obligations.

"Courts are ill equipped to make the investigations which should precede a determination of the limitations which should be set upon any property right in news or of the circumstances under which news gathered by a private agency should be deemed affected with a public interest. Courts would be powerless to prescribe the detailed regulations essential to full enjoyment of the rights conferred or to introduce the machinery required for enforcement of such regulations. Considerations such as these should lead us to decline to establish a new rule of law in the effort to redress a newly disclosed wrong, although the propriety of some remedy appears to be clear.

"If the news involved in the case at bar had been posted in violation of any agreement between The Associated Press and its members, questions similar to those in the 'ticker' cases might have arisen. But the plaintiff does not contend that the posting was wrongful, or that any papers were wrongfully issued by its subscribers. On the contrary, it is conceded that both the bulletins and the papers were issued in accordance with the regulations of the plaintiff. Under such circumstances, for a reader of the papers purchased in the open market or a reader of the bulletins publicly posted to procure and use gainfully information therein contained does not involve inducing any one to commit a breach either of contract or of trust, or committing or in any way abetting a breach of confidence."

Justice Brandeis declared "a general publication is effective to dedicate literary property to the public, regardless of the actual incent of its owner.

"Plaintiff further contended," the opinion continued, "that defendant's practice constitutes unfair competition, because there is 'appropriation without cost to itself of values created by' the plaintiff, and it is upon this ground that the decision of this court appears to be based. To appropriate and use for profit knowledge and ideas produced by other men, without making compensation or even acknowledgment, may be inconsistent with a finer sense of propriety, but, with the exceptions indicated above, the law has heretofore sanctioned the practice. Such taking and gainful use of a product of another which for reasons of public policy the law has refused to endow with the attributes of property does not become unlawful because the product happens to have been taken from a rival and is used in competition with him."

SEAMEN'S ACT UPHELD.

Supreme Court Declares Valid Sections Regulating Wage Payments.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—In its first interpretation of the La Follette Seamen's act the United States Supreme Court, answering questions certified from the lower court, today declared constitutional the sections regulating the payment of wages to seamen, but limiting its application to foreign vessels only while they are in American waters. Under the act, seamen are entitled to receive upon demand, at every port after the voyage has been started, one-half of the wages earned up to that time, the master's refusal to comply serving to release them from service.

In deciding proceedings brought by Erik Sandberg and other seamen against the ship Talus, the Supreme Court upheld opinions of the Circuit Court of Appeals, holding that, in computing the amount that can be paid on the wages due, advances made in foreign ports are to be taken into consideration.

Court Releases Ellis O. Jones.

Ellis O. Jones, a writer, who was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct at the parade of Socialist "mourners" in Central Park on Dec. 13 and was committed by Magistrate Robert C. Ten Eyck in the West Side Court to Bellevue Hospital for ten days' observation, was yesterday rearraigned before the Magistrate. Dr. Stephen P. Jewett, Acting Director of Bellevue Hospital, in a letter to the court, said that he found the man sane. The defendant's wife said that her husband had suffered from a nervous breakdown and that if he was discharged under a suspended sentence, she would send him to an institution where he could obtain a needed rest. Magistrate Ten Eyck then released the defendant.

Of ALGERNON BLACKWOOD'S beautiful book
The Garden of Survival
MRS. CHARLOTTE BREWSTER JORDAN, translator of Vicente Blasco Ibanez' great novels, writes:

"With 'The Garden of Survival' I not only beguiled the tedium of my journey, but came home with my soul singing to find that the inexpressible was at last expressed. # HITCHCOCK ATTACKS SEIZURE OF CABLES

Calls It "High-Handed Outrage," Which "Smacks of Bad Faith."

Nebraska Senator Defends Burleson from Blame for Delay in Soldiers' Mail.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23. — Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, discussing today the alleged failure of the Post Office Department to deliver mails promptly to American soldiers in France, in the debate on the Revenue bill, precipitated an attack on the seizure by the Government of the cables and control of the telegraph and telephone systems.

Senator Hitchcock sought to exonerate the Post Office Department from full responsibility for the alleged failure in mail deliveries in France. He read a letter from the department in which it was stated that the department merely delivered mails to certain points in France, where the War Department took charge. It was intimated by him that, perhaps, the War Department was responsible for the long delays.

Many Senators took exception to this conclusion, among them Senator Borah, who asserted that it was the duty of the Post Office Department to see that the mails charged to its care were delivered promptly.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota upheld the Post Office Department. He said that the department could not deliver the mails to the front and to division headquarters, and pointed out the difficulties resulting from the constant movement of troops.

After telling about sending a telegram from Harrisburg, Penn., at 2 P. M., and having it delivered, after breakfast, at his home here the next morning, Senator Smith of Michigan said:

"So far as I am concerned, there is not a branch of this Government to which I would not willingly trust the mails in preference to that branch which has had charge of it."

Senator Hitchcock said he believed that in view of all of the conditions of labor and employment the service had been conducted as well as might be expected. The trouble had been, he declared, in the branching out of Postmaster General Burleson in his effort to assume control of outside lines.

"It is a serious mistake which the Postmaster General has made," he said, "in reaching out to control business activities at this time which Congress did not intend to put in his hands.

"I think that the seizure of the cables was an utterly unjustifiable proceeding. I will go so far as to say that it smacks of bad faith. Congress consented to give certain war powers to the President. Among those war powers were—if there was a war necessity—that he could take the telegraphs and telephones, and when he took them in the name of the Postmaster General there arose no general complaint because then we were in the midst of war, and there may have been a justification for the seizure; but when, after the war had closed, in fact, if not in law, the Postmaster General took possession not only of the Atlantic cables communicating with countries with which we were associated in the war, but of the Pacific cables, which had no possible relation to the case, this, I think, was a high-handed outrage, and I am frank to say so.

"Congress deliberately put the power in the hands of the Administration for war purposes, but after the war is over it has been used to gratify the personal convictions, personal opinions, and personal wishes of the Postmaster General.

"If the Postmaster General desired to secure from Congress the right to take over the cables he should have asked for it. I think there is no justification at all, in any reason that has been stated, or which can be stated, for that seizure."

Senator Smith then resumed his attack on the Burleson administration. Addressing himself to Senator Hitchcock, he said:

"I tell you the Post Office Department has voluntarily overburdened itself with responsibilities—political and otherwise—and we lack the efficiency which should go with the management of that office. From the head down it is incompetent, and yet we are talking about giving it new and added responsibilities.

"I wish there were some way to have a vote on the suggestion of the Postmaster General that he wants to buy the telegraphs and telephones. I think Congress would turn them over to private control so quickly that he would realize that his administration of the Post Office Department had not been successful."

FAVORS FLIGHT TO POLE.

But Stefansson Thinks a Submarine Also Could Do Good Work.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, explorer of the artic regions, believes that it is feasible to explore the country about the north pole with an airplane, and he thinks much valuable information may be obtained by Captain Robert A. Bartlett and his associates on their proposed air voyage over the lands of the furthest north. Mr. Stefansson thinks, however, more detailed and more valuable information may be obtained by cruising the northern seas in the latest and biggest type of submarine.

"If, as I have been informed," said Mr. Stefansson, "they now have submarines that can submerge to the depth of 200 feet, with a cruising radius of 10,000 miles, then a party of scientists, in such a craft, could make known practically all that there is yet unknown in that vast area. I am more interested in a submarine expedition than in one by aircraft, because I am more interested in the purely scientific aspects of arctic exploration. The submarine, it seems to me, offers the opportunity that all along has been needed successfully to make detailed scientific investigation.

"The submarine of the type of which I speak can pass under the largest icebergs and can cruise through all the waters of the arctic regions. In such a craft it would be possible to carry a sufficiently large company of scientists, equipped with all necessary instruments, to obtain detailed data on sea chemistry, sea life, and ocean currents. The study could be made as leisurely as might be necessary to make it thorough. I do not know enough about the work of airplanes to be able to say how accurately surveying can be done from the air. But I fear there is not room in an airplane to carry many instruments and other scientific equipment. I doubt, also, if aircraft explorers could do much valuable undersea work.

"The promoters of the proposed airplane expedition have been good enough to tell me of their plans, and I am in hearty accord with them. I believe they may accomplish just what they hope to accomplish. The expedition will use seaplanes, and they not only can fly all over the polar regions, but there is so much water area up there that they will be able to make safe landing almost anywhere they choose."

6-BILLION TAX BILL PASSED BY SENATE

hose, on the amount in excess of $2 a pair.

Men's shirts, on the amount in excess of $3 each.

Men's, women's, misses', and boys' pajamas, night gowns, and underwear, on the amount in excess of $5 each.

Kimonos, petticoats, and waists, on the amount in excess of $15 each.

Vote on Restoring Levy.

The vote by which the luxury tax was restored, the vote being on the committee's recommendation to strike out the House tax, was as follows:

AGAINST THE TAX.

Democrats — Bankhead, Culberson, Gerry, Gore, Henderson, Jones, (N. M.;) Lewis, Martin, (Va.;) Saulsbury, Simmons, Smith, (Ariz.;) Smith, (Ga.;) Smith, (Md.;) Swanson, Thomas, Underwood, Williams, Wolcott.—18.

Republicans—Brandegee, Dillingham, Knox, Lodge, McCumber, Moses, Page, Penrose, Smith, (Mich.;) Smoot, Spencer, Sutherland, Warren, Watson.—14. Total, 32.

FOR THE TAX.

Democrats—Ashurst, Beckham, Chamberlain, Fletcher, Hitchcock, Johnson, (S. D.;) Kendrick, King, McKellar, Martin, (Ky.;) Nugent, Overman, Phelan, Pollock, Pomerene, Shafroth, Sheppard, Trammell, Vardaman, Kirby.—20.

Republicans — Borah, Cummins, Curtis, France, Gronna, Hale, Harding, Johnson, (Cal.;) Kellogg, Kenyon, La Follette, Lenroot. McNary, Nelson, Norris, Poindexter. Weeks, Fernald.—18. Total, 38.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa opened the debate on the committee's action in striking out the luxury tax. He accused the Democrats of having departed from the policies of all the former leaders in Congress by "putting the heaviest taxes on those who can least bear them."

"I wish some one would tell me why, when everything under the sun except the air we breathe, is being taxed, these luxuries taxes are dropped," he demanded.

The Senator asserted that "this was the day in court of the wealthy conscriptionists." The Revenue bill as drafted, he said, aimed at making those who had gained large war profits pay something like their share of war tax.

Senator Johnson of California said that the Senate Finance Committee had swung around, in its conscription of wealth, to the attitude taken by the radical element in Congress a year ago. At that time he said, seventeen Senators, of whom nine were Republicans and eight Democrats, held out for a tax of 80 per cent. on war profits. But the majority of the Senate "looked askance" at this minority and refused to put the high tax in the measure.

Cites President's Speech.

Senator Johnson refers to the revenue speech of President Wilson to Congress in May of this year in which it was suggested that Congress should turn to war profits, incomes and luxuries for additional revenue, and in which the President also stated that the Treasury Department had abundant evidence of profiteering.

Senator Lenroot asked if the Senate was to understand that the war profits tax, as drafted by the Finance Committee, actually amounted to 80 per cent. Senator Kenyon, replying, said the Finance Committee had given that estimate itself.

Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee, insisted that there had been no change of front on the part of the committee as to taxing war profits, but that the exigencies of war made it necessary to put a bigger yield in the pending measure than in the existing one.

The Senate adopted, 34 to 28, with only brief debate, an amendment of Senator Thomas to put a 100 per cent. tax upon political contributions in excess of $500. In urging the amendment, Senator Thomas said some legislation was needed to make the Corrupt Practice act really operative. As it stood, he insisted, it was of no avail in preventing huge expenditures in campaigns.

"Dry" Rider Affixed.

Senator Sheppard of Texas, seizing the opportunity to affix a prohibition rider to a Senate measure, offered an amendment to the Reed bone dry law so as to make it operative in the District of Columbia. The District has been "dry," but not bone dry, since Nov. 1, 1917. The traffic from Baltimore and Philadelphia had been appreciable, Senator Sheppard said, and the District police wanted to stop it, but were powerless.

The vote, 42 to 18, by which the amendment was put into the bill came as a surprise to leaders. Many Senators who had heretofore fought prohibition voted with the dry forces. If it stays no liquor may be brought into the District of Columbia after the bill goes into effect.

An amendment offered by Senator Johnson of South Dakota to eliminate the manufacturers' sale tax on motor tractors, trailers, and trucks from the motor tax was adopted, 33 to 28. The tax of 5 per cent. now embraced in that section will apply only to automobiles, motor cycles, and accessories. The elimination of the tax on tractors, trailers, and trucks means a loss of approximately $30,000,000 in revenue. The tax left in the measure will yield $55,000,000.

By a viva voce vote the Senate adopted an amendment offered by Senator Trammel, providing that all soldiers and sailors discharged after Nov. 11 be allowed an extra month's pay. This will involve an expenditure of about $250,000,000.

Zone Rate Changes Stand.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—On a final vote of 41 to 22 the Senate sustained its previous action in approving the committee amendment of the War Revenue bill to repeal existing zone rates on second class mail and substitute a rate of 1 cent a pound within 150 miles and 1½ cents beyond.

The Senate, without objection, adopted the committee's amendment for taxation of inheritances in lieu of the tax on estates as provided in the House bill. The inheritance tax plan proposes a graduated levy ranging from 1 per cent. on inheritances between $10,000 and $25,000 to 25 per cent. on those exceeding $2,500,000.

An important amendment adopted by the Senate, according to members, exempts from inheritance taxes life insurance policies payable to beneficiaries, regardless of their amount. A clause imposing taxes on life insurance receipts in excess of $25,000 was eliminated.

An amendment by Senator Kirby of Arkansas, Democrat, revoking the present power of the Secretary of the Treasury to make loans or advance credits to foreign Governments without specific authority from Congress, was defeated by viva voce vote.

The Senate also rejected an amendment by Senator Pollock of South Carolina, extending the thanks of Congress to the members of the district and local draft boards and authorizing the Secretary of War to present bronze medals to them.

An amendment by Senator Jones of New Mexico, permitting any taxpayer who is head of a family to deduct from his gross income the amount not exceeding $1,000 paid by him annually as rent on his residence, also was rejected.

The Senate adopted an amendment by Senator Jones of Washington providing that, where a railroad corporation is in competition with a foreign road, the tax of the American line shall not exceed that of the foreign line. The purpose of the amendment, Senator Jones said, was to meet a situation in the Northwest where a Canadian line competes with an American road.

Income Tax Provisions.

The bill fixes the normal income tax at 12 per cent. instead of 4 per cent. in the present laws, and surtaxes start at 1 per cent. on incomes over $5,000 and reach 65 per cent. on incomes in excess of $1,000,000. Exemptions of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married ones are allowed. In addition, a head of a family has $200 exemption for each person dependent upon him other than his wife.

In lieu of the tax imposed by the act of 1917 the new bill provides that in addition to other taxes imposed by it there shall be levied for the taxable year 1918 upon every corporation:

First Bracket—30 per cent. of the amount of net income in excess of the excess profits credit and not in excess of 20 per cent. of the invested capital.

Second Bracket — 60 per cent. of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per cent. of the invested capital.

Third Bracket—The sum, if any, by which 80 per cent. of the amount of the net income in excess of the war profits credit exceeds the amount of the tax computed under the first and second brackets.

For the taxable year 1910 and each tenable year thereafter the bill provides that there shall be collected upon the net income of every corporation:

First Bracket—20 per cent. of the amount of the net income in excess of the excess profits credit and not in excess of 20 per cent. of the invested capital.

Second Bracket—40 per cent. of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per cent. of the invested capital.

B. R. T. OFFICIALS ASK FOR PUBLIC OPINION

Distribute Cards to Passengers Seeking Expressions as to Wreck Indictments.

HYLAN CALLS IT A TRICK

Mayor Warns of Scheme to Obtain Change of Venue—Many Appeal to District Attorney.

Thousands of passengers on B. R. T. lines in Brooklyn received cards from conductors and station agents yesterday asking for their opinion of Mayor Hylan's decision in the investigation of the recent Malbone Street tunnel wreck which resulted in five of the company's employes and officials being indicted by the Kings County Grand Jury. The cards were distributed on all the cars of all the company's lines, elevated, surface, and subway, and occasioned much comment. The following is the form of the card:

Name ......................................
Address ......................................

Mayor Hylan, as committing Magistrate, has held certain employes and officials of the undersigned companies in proceedings seeking to fix criminal responsibility upon them for the wreck which occurred Nov. 1 in the Malbone Street tunnel.

Q.—Do you approve his action? A.......

REMARKS:

We invite the freest expression of your views. Please fill out and hand to any conductor.

NEW YORK CONSOLIDATED RAILROAD CO.
BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT CO.

The circulation of the cards was denounced by city and Kings County officials and others as a bold attempt of the railway officials to establish a ground work on which to base a plea for a change of venue when the cases come to trial. According to one official the intention was to show that hostility toward the management of the B. R. T. system prevailed to such an extent as to render it impossible that the officials of the road under arrest for manslaughter could obtain a fair trial in Brooklyn.

The circulation of the "change of venue cards," as they were popularly called, followed a canvass among shopkeepers and others which a private detective agency, supposed to be in the employ of the company, had been making for some days to collect opinions about the management of the railroad. The activities of the detectives and the attempted poll of passengers yesterday excited much interest in the borough.

When the matter was brought to the attention of Mayor Hylan, he issued this statement:

"The attempt on the part of the New York Consolidated Railway, a subsidiary of the B. R. T., to get an expression of opinion from the people of Brooklyn on the action of myself, as a committing Magistrate, in holding certain employes and officials of the company for criminal negligence in the wreck which occurred on Nov. 1 in the Malbone Street tunnel, is the most brazen attempt to lay a foundation for an application for a change of venue that any corporation has ever made in the history of New York to interfere with the due process of law.

"The cards which the B. R. T. is issuing for this purpose should not be signed by the people of Brooklyn. The people of the Borough of Brooklyn should take warning that this is an attempt on the part of B. R. T. officials and their attorneys to secure a change of venue; that is, to change the place of trial to some up-State county. This method of transferring criminal cases to another county up the State was successfully resorted to in New York City when the indictments against the Milk Trust representatives were transferred to another county for trial on the application of John B. Stanchfield, their attorney.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly that the people in whose hands these cards fall should not, under any circumstances, give an expression of their opinions."

It was regarded as significant that the cards were given mostly to men, and it was pointed out that if the cards were answered generally by men in a manner showing opposition the jury panels for trial of the cases might be affected. Just how many of the cards were returned signed could not be learned, but it is believed that only a few passengers availed themselves of the opportunity to put their sentiments on record.

No explanation as to why the cards were printed and distributed could be obtained from the officials of the company. The following statement was issued by Stephen C. Baldwin, Isaac R. Oeland, Meier Steinbrink, and Patrick E. Callahan, counsel for the accused railroad men:

"It was the unanimous opinion of the counsel representing the various defendants that this should be done. Accordingly the counsel had it done."

Many people who had received cards or had heard about their circulation called the office of District Attorney Lewis seeking information. One of these was Joseph T. Griffin, Chairman of the Brighton Victims' and Passengers' Protective Association, who expressed indignation and warned Brooklynites not to sign the cards.

"We are confident that our courts of justice will not be deceived by such action," said Mr. Griffin. "The people certainly are not."

"Many persons with whom I have talked," said Assistant District Attorney Warbasse, "seem fully aware of the purpose of this procedure, while others have professed to see in it some sort of a trick to use their names and opinions for reasons which were withheld.

"These declare that there is only one purpose for which such information could be used in any legal proceeding, and that would be an application for a change of venue. The question asked in the circular is viewed as adroitly worded and designed to get just what they want. The question does not allow a man to express an opinion such as a talesman might be asked to give if he were called to the jury box. It does not permit a man to say whether, if he were a juror, he could give the defendants a fair trial on the evidence."

LIEUT. A. H. FAWKNER KILLED

Brooklyn Officer Lost Life Less Than Two Hours Before Fighting Stopped.

Lieut. Alfred H. Fawkner, who lived at 1,368 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn, was killed on Nov. 11, less than two hours before hostilities ceased. He was serving in Company I, 321st Infantry, and the news of his death came from a brother, Corporal Charles Fawkner, of the same unit. Lieut. Fawkner formerly was employed by the Guaranty Trust Company of 140 Broadway.

Lieut. William Hopkins Chandler, who gave up his studies at Union Theological Seminary when war came, was killed Oct. 6. He was serving in Battery B. 7th Artillery. He was a graduate of Yale and was commissioned at the Plattsburg Camp.

Lieut. Robert W. Doye of Co. I, 38th Infantry, who lives at 117 Berkely Place, Brooklyn, was wounded on Nov. 11. He was a graduate of New York University and recently won promotion for bravery at the battle of the Marne.

Lieut. John J. Callaghan of Co. A, 106th Infantry, was wounded in action on Sept. 26. He lives at 485 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn. He was one of the noncommissioned officers of the old 71st Regiment who were sent to Plattsburg.

Sergt. Harold Embree of Co. K, 165th Infantry, was killed in action on July 18 in the crossing of the Ourcq, according to word just received by his father, John G. Embree, principal of the Oppenheusen Institute, at College Point, L. I.

RED CROSS DRIVE ENDS IN A RUSH

Campaign Closed at Midnight, and Final Count May Wait Till After Holidays.

SAY 25,000,000 ENROLLED

Nation's Total Put at 19 Per Cent. of Entire People, While City's Membership Still Grows.

Estimates compiled by officials of the American Red Cross yesterday, after a study of the preliminary figures of the Christmas Roll Call Committees in all parts of the country, indicated that more than 25,000,000 American citizens had been enrolled as members of the organization of mercy for 1919 when the campaign closed at 12 o'clock last night. In Manhattan it was estimated early in the day that the number of members for 1919 would be several thousands in excess of the borough total of 285,000 for 1918, and similar encouraging reports were received from the other quarters of the city. Brooklyn's early totals gave 150,000 members.

Thousands of volunteer workers have yet to send in their reports for their entire week's work because they have kept busy soliciting memberships all the time, and it is expected that their figures will entitle the city to hang out its service flag bearing the Red Cross emblem immediately after these figures are compiled.

Manhattan Putting It Over Top.

A conservative estimate of the figures yesterday dispelled the early impression of the committee that Manhattan might not equal the figures of last year, but it was pointed out by the members that already the many thousands enrolled by all the workers, by the Police Reserves, and by the appeals of the pastors in all the churches at the end of the campaign, would increase the 1919 totals over those of 1918. No definite figures have been received yet from the police, but the unofficial report was that their work had been encouraging to the committee.

H. K. Thomson, Executive Secretary of the Midtown Division, said that the several hundred women volunteer workers in his division had done remarkable work in the campaign through their voluntary desire to work more than the usual number of hours a day. It was expected that this division, canvassing all the stores, small loft buildings, and small industries not under the control of the Industries Division, would send in about 40,000 names from the section between Fourteenth and Fifty-ninth Streets. They had sent in more than 50,000 names on Saturday night, and an estimate was that their total would be near 60,000.

All Try for 100 Per Cent. Here.

The industries and the downtown divisions were unable to make adequate reports of their memberships yesterday because, their Chairmen said, hundreds of firms were holding back figures of enrollments among their employes until they could report 100 per cent. enrollment. These reports will come in within the next few days, and may send the totals much higher than the first conservative estimate.

Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, who has been directing the campaign in the hospitals, reported that more than nine-tenths of the institutions would have 100 per cent. enrollment. Colleges failed to reach 100 per cent. enrollment, but libraries and museums and many other educational institutions have reported high enrollment.

Hundreds of volunteer workers continued their work in Times Square last night, as well as in other parts of the city where there are large theatre crowds. Results of their work will not be known until the figures of the 450 booths are sent in.

Nation Enrolling Millions.

Figures compiled on Sunday night showed that up to that day 3,083,500 had enrolled in the Atlantic Division, comprising New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut; approximately 4,000,000 had enrolled in the Central Division, 1,600,000 in the Lake Division, 1,228,400 in the Southwest, 1,000,000 in Pennsylvania and Delaware, and about 1,000,000 in the Northeast Division. The junior membership of school children probably will be about 6,000,000, including about 2,000,000 in the Atlantic Division.

NAMED BY SMITH TO MILITARY STAFF

Governor-Elect Will Appoint 4 More Men Later Who Have Seen Active Service.

RESIGNS FROM ALDERMEN

Will Use Governor's Room at City Hall to Meet Persons Here on Official Business.

Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith announced yesterday the appointment of twelve members of his Military Staff. They are as follows: Captain W. Walker Wear, Binghamton; Captain Herbert S. Sackett, Buffalo; Commander L. M. Josephthal, Naval Reserve; Major Frank Foley, National Guard Reserve; Captain George D. Morris, 71st Infantry; Major William Forbes Morgan, 12th Infantry; Dr. John H. O'Connor, 69th Infantry; William Ottman, Captain William L. Sayles, 23d Infantry, Brooklyn; Captain Frank Lockman, 22d Engineers, New York City; Captain W. R. Fern, National Guard Reserve of New York City, and Major Edward G. Murray, 13th Coast Artillery, New York.

The staff consists of eighteen members, but Mr. Smith will select the others, principally among men who have seen active service in France.

The Governor-elect received word yesterday that William A. Orr, who was Governor Whitman's secretary, and who was appointed Superintendent of Prisons immediately after the election, would resign on Dec. 31. This will obviate any difficulty to the Governor-elect in filling the position with a Democrat. It was reported the Senate might refuse to confirm the new Governor's appointment. Mr. Orr, it was stated, is to take a place with a New York City corporation.

Resigns as Aldermanic Head.

Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith resigned as President of the Board of Aldermen at its meeting yesterday. The resignation is to take effect on Dec. 31, when Robert L. Moran, Vice Chairman of the board, becomes President to serve until December, 1919. At the November election next year a President of the board will be elected.

"I desire to say to the board that this will be my last appearance here as its President," said Mr. Smith in taking farewell. "I have enjoyed every minute of the time I spent in this chair and in this building. I'll always carry with me fond memories of the friendships that have sprung up during my year as presiding officer. I am thankful to the majority for their support, as well as to the minority.

"I propose to come to the City Hall every time I visit the city. I made that promise before election and I renew it now. I believe it was upon the theory that the Governor would sometimes visit the City Hall that a room in this building was set aside for him. While this room, in recent years, has been used as a museum, I propose to use it now whenever I come to the city so that I can be visited by the people who wish to see me on official business and I will give them whatever time I can. In parting with you I wish you success in your official efforts, as well as a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

As he turned the gavel over to his successor and left the building, Mr. Smith was roundly applauded by the Aldermen.

Defeat News Stand Resolution.

During the session of the board Alderman Falconer offered a resolution that the board direct the Committee on General Welfare to report out at the next meeting his resolution directing Park Commissioner Harmon of Brooklyn to appear before the board and explain the wording of his advertisement in the City Record concerning the letting of news stands in Brooklyn to the highest bidder and reserving the right to say what newspapers should be sold at the stands. After considerable discussion the resolution was defeated.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Callman, Socialist, calling upon Health Commissioner Copeland to appear before the board at its next meeting and report what measures were being taken to combat a recurrence of influenza in this city was referred to the General Welfare Committee.

The board re-elected as Commissioners of Elections John R. Voorhis and James Kane, Democrats, and Moses McKee and Jacob A. Livingston, Republicans, the terms to expire on Dec. 31, 1920. The names selected were certified to the Aldermen by the two political county committees, and it was mandatory on the board to elect. The board adjourned until Jan. 6, 1919.

"BACK TO EARTH" IS NOVEL.

A Play Within a Play That Comically Introduces a Heavenly Angel.

BACK TO EARTH, a comedy in three acts, by William Le Baron; suggested by a story by Oscar Graeve. At Henry Miller's Theatre.

| John Baker | Charles Cherry |
| George Carr | Harold Hendee |
| Harry Kennedy | James Dyrenforth |
| Ambrose Strange | Wallace Eddinger |
| Parsons | James Kearney |
| O'N[illegible] | Jay Wilson |
| The Old Man | Fred W. Peters |
| Emily Carr | Ruth Shepley |
| Marjorie Haddon | Paula Sterling |
| Grace Carr | Minna Gombel |
| Anna | Kirby Davis |

It is extremely adroit handling of a difficult idea which William Le Baron has shown in "Back to Earth," played here for the first time last night at Henry Miller's Theatre. By the device of a play within a play he brings a heavenly angel to this terrestrial globe, and thereby precipitates a variety of amusing farcical situations. The inner play solves the playwright's problem of how to lay so obviously unreal a groundwork before an audience, but in this instance, since it consumes so large a portion of the evening, it also has a tendency to give the entire proceedings the semblance of unreality. Thus the impression left at the end of the performance is of an unimportant job well done, and there is a certain sense of disappointment that technical skill and much bright dialogue should have been employed to so slight an end.

The play within begins about five minutes after the rise of the curtain, when the playwright's playwright starts to read his manuscript to his assembled guests. So far as the audience is concerned, however, it is acted by the dramatis personae of the first play. It is in the second play that the angel, given two weeks' leave of absence from heaven, comes back to earth to submit his heavenly innocence in humorous contrast with worldly sophistication, and finally to fall in love with The Girl. But when he would prolong his sojourn upon earth by revealing the mysteries of heaven he changes to an old man—the man he was when he left the earth for the first time. Both plays come to an end shortly thereafter. There is an attempt to bring a love story into the outer play by causing two persons to fall into each other's arms at the curtain, but it fails of its purpose for the reason that they are characters of whom the audience has seen little or nothing, and about whom it accordingly cannot be expected to care.

The play, as intimated, is excellently written, for Mr. Le Baron is a past master of the bright line. The acting is reasonably good. Wallace Eddinger, not quite happily cast as the angel, nevertheless does good work, and Charles Cherry gives a brisk performance as the playwright. Ruth Shepley looks quite at her prettiest and plays well, and other good performances are given by Minna Gombel and James Kearney. The latter, as a calm butler, is particularly to be commended.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

DEAR BRUTUS, a comedy in three acts, by J. M. Barrie. At the Empire.

|---|---|
| Mr. Dearth | William Gillette |
| Mr. Purdie | Sam Sothern |
| Mr. Coade | Grant Stewart |
| Matey | Louis Calvert |
| Lob | J. H. Brewer |
| Mrs. Dearth | Hilda Spong |
| Mrs. Purdie | Myrtle Tannehill |
| Mrs. Coade | Marie Wainwright |
| Joanna Trout | Elizabeth Risdon |
| Lady Caroline Laney | Violet Kemble Cooper |
| Margaret | Helen Hayes |

Gillette in Barrie's "Dear Brutus."

Dear Audience, if we are underlings, and even if we are overlings, the fault is not in our stars, but in ourselves. The lean and hungry Cassius (wasn't it?) said something of the kind to "dear Brutus;" and J. M. Barrie is repeating the attack upon fatalism, or astrology, in his new play in which William Gillette and his admirable associates are appearing at the Empire.

There is no Brutus in the dramatis personae. The hero (who is also the heroine and all the rest of the cast) is merely the dear public—all sorts of people prone to reflect upon what they are and what they might have been. Maeterlinck is speaking to them concurrently in "The Betrothal" and Channing Pollock in "Roads of Destiny." But Sentimental Tommy has "found the way" to dramatize character and fate in terms that illuminate our minds as inevitably as they delight our risibilities and our nether regions of the heart.

In the body of the play even more than in the title, Barrie harks back to Shakespeare, with whose Celtic exuberance of humor and fantasy the Scotsman has always had so much in common. The first act shows an assortment of mortals who have been assembled as a house party on Midsummer Night by one "Mr. Lob"—whose evening clothes do not at all conceal the fact that he is that "lob of spirits" one Puck of an earlier Midsummer Night's Dream.

It is a various and rather representative body of folk in the middle years. There is a philandering husband with his wife and one other. There is a couple of the commonplace happy ones. There is a butler whose pet aversion is the spinster Lady Caroline. And there is a poor devil of an artist (Mr. Gillette) who is driven to drink by the disdain of his former model, whom he has married. At midnight a Celtic forest springs up about the house and they one and all walk out boldly into it, to find the selves they might have been if (as Mr. Pollock would put it) they had in their youth taken the other road of destiny.

In this Land of Might Have Been the philanderer is married to the affinity and flirting with the wife of Act. I. The happy, commonplace husband is a bachelor—no less happy, and perhaps quite as commonplace, as he dances through the forest piping on a birchen whistle. The butler is a successful promoter of the city and adored for his wealth and power even by the Lady Caroline, who in Act I. had scorned him. Mr. Gillette comes to sketch in the forest by moonlight, accompanied by a daughter with whom he is adorably, dotingly in love. His wife, the scornful ex-model, appears to him and the child as an abandoned mistress, embittered and half starved.

It is all very Barriesque in its impish satire and poetic humor, in its intrinsic sweetness and its prevailing truth to the deeper channels of the human spirit. And in the last act the return of the party to the world of present actuality accentuates and even philosophizes their experiences.

For the most part—touched, mystified, impressed as they are—they sink back helplessly into their old selves. Commonplace character is their commonplace fate. The philanderer even sighs on the spot for a new world of affinity in Lady Caroline. The philosophy is, if you will, one of despair, but to these people of the play it spells contentment. Even the potential profiteer goes back with a smile to his calculations as to tips and to his Autolycus snatching up of unconsidered trifles. But with the artist and his wife it is different.

The scene in the enchanted forest between the happy if commonplace artist and his adorable daughter who might have been has all the spiritual comprehension and the wistful beauty in affection of Barrie at his best. Mr. Gillette has never been more humanly gracious and delicately real; and he is admirably seconded by Helen Hays, whose little Margaret is a wonderful blending of dream beauty and girlish actuality. [illegible] outcast wastra[illegible] turned to be a m[illegible] by Hilda Spong, [illegible] In the final act [illegible] more, but he[illegible] hearts of the dis[illegible] ends with a [illegible] been touched [illegible] glance backwa[illegible] of their youth.

As the Puck-like Mr. Lob, J. H. Brewer very delicately blends an impish caprice with wilding Celtic fantasy—a very original and persuasive creation. The butler-profiteer of Louis Calvert is notable for robustness of characterization and unction of humor. And these performances are admirably at one with the work of a cast of remarkably uniform excellence.

It cannot be denied that the fabric wears thin at times and that the action at best is episodic. To those who judge by externals alone the play may well seem tenuous in its atmosphere and deficient in concentrated action. Yet all that is most precious in Barrie is there; and the inner spirit of the whole is riper, richer, and deeper than ever before.

15,000 APPEAL TO BAKER.

Mrs. Villard and Others Ask Release of Objectors in Albany.

A delegation of twenty men and women, more than half of whom were the relatives of conscientious objectors now serving terms in prison for failure or refusal to perform military duty, left last night for Washington, where they will present to Secretary of War Baker a petition signed by 15,000 persons asking for the release of all objectors. Among the delegates were Mrs. Henry Villard, the Rev. Richard Hogue, Mrs. Brent Allinsen, the Rev. Allan McCurdy, and Dr. John L. Elliott.

According to Dr. Elliott, who was spokesman of the party, the delegates will point out to Secretary Baker that the refusal of a majority of conscientious objectors to serve in the army was based on ethical, social, or religious conceptions. They had no desire, Dr. Elliott declared, to set up their opinions against those of the Government, but they "felt it would have been hypocrisy of the worst type to disregard their religious scruples."

WARSHIPS DUE HERE EARLY ON THURSDAY

R. Dyer will be the Grand Marshal of the parade.

Grover Whalen, Secretary to the Mayor, said yesterday that landing stages on the North River would be available to the public at Seventy-ninth Street, Ninety-fifth Street, Ninety-sixth Street, Ninety-seventh Street, 129th Street, 130th Street, and 155th Street. The charges for boat rides to the fleet, according to the Mayor's Committee of Welcome, will not exceed 25 cents each way. The Committee of Welcome, according to a statement yesterday, will take cognizance of any charge above this rate.

Paul Chalfin, Chairman of the Decorations Committee of the Welcome Committee, said yesterday that the committee had requested that the arches erected for the Red Cross block party should be left standing. Appropriate decorations will be placed on them. The committee sent a request to all civil bodies to have their members carry small signs bearing the inscription "Welcome Home." Hotels and clubs along the line of march have been requested to have banners bearing the same sign.

Otto B. Shulhof, Chairman of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Relatives Committee, yesterday received word from Mayors of nearby cities that they will co-operate with his committee in assisting relatives of marines and sailors who desire to see the parade. Mr. Shulhof sent a letter to all members of the Fifth Avenue Association, Boards of Commerce, and the Merchants' Association, in which he said:

"The committee wishes to emphasize the fact that all members of the families of sailors and marines will be able to view the land parade on Dec. 26 from the store windows of prominent merchants on Fifth Avenue. This committee purposes to put all its facilities at the disposal of members of the families of sailors and marines of the incoming fleet. Those relatives of the sailors and marines wishing hotel or lodging accommodations can communicate with this committee at Room 602, Hall of Records."

Precautions for the protection of the men of the fleet while ashore will be taken by the city police and the military and naval police. A warning has been sent to saloon and restaurant keepers not to serve intoxicating beverages to men in uniform.

The fleet is expected to remain in New York waters until Jan. 2, when most of the vessels will sail for the Winter base at Guantanamo, Cuba. In January the regular Winter manoeuvres and drill exercises in Southern waters will be resumed for the first time since this country entered the war.

Galbraith of 147th Infantry and Miner of 109th Field Artillery Mentioned by Gen. Pershing.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The Commander in Chief, in the name of the President, has awarded the distinguished service cross to the following officers and soldiers for the acts of extraordinary heroism described after their names:

Sgt. Walter W. Klinger, (deceased,) Co. B, 113th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action at Bois d'Etrayes, on Oct. 23. Two of his companions having been killed, he advanced alone upon one of the enemies' strongest machine gun nests and destroyed it with hand grenades. He was later killed while administering first aid to a wounded soldier. Next of kin: Mrs. John Klinger (mother), 70 Ogden St., Newark, N. J.

Second Lieut. Otto E. Benell, S. C., 135th Aero Squadron, for extraordinary heroism in action near Thiaucourt, on Sept. 12. He went out on a two-hour counterattack artillery adjustment under adverse weather conditions. Soon after he suffered an accident to his right hand, which made it useless. In spite of this injury, he continued to operate his wireless key with his left hand, directing the fire of the batteries on concentrations behind the enemy lines. Home address: Mrs. Mary Benell, (mother,) Fort Collins, Col.

Colonel Raymond Sheldon, 307th Infantry, for repeated acts of extraordinary heroism in action near Grandpré on Oct. 15, and near Oches and Raucourt, between Nov. 4 and 6. In the attack on Grandpré on Oct. 15, he displayed gallant conduct in going forward under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and taking personal command of the leading battalion of his regiment, by his presence inspiring his men and facilitating the capture of this town. During the advance on Oches on Nov. 4, when his leading units were held up by machine-gun fire, Colonel Sheldon went forward to the skirmish line in order to estimate the strength of the enemy's position. The location by him of certain enemy machine guns resulted in their destruction by our artillery. During the advance on the Meuse, between Nov. 4 and 6, he was constantly with the advance elements of his regiment. Home address: Mrs. George W. Sheldon, 113 Woodland Avenue, Summit, N. J.

Colonel F. W. Galbraith, Jr., 147th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action near Ivry, on Sept. 29. When an enemy counterattack was imminent, he went into the front lines under a violent artillery and machine-gun barrage and, by the coolness and certainty of his orders and the inspiring example of his personal courage, reorganized his own command and took command of other units whose officers had been lost or diverted in the confusion of battle. Knocked down by a shell, he refused to be evacuated and continued to carry on the work of reorganizing his position and disposing the troops to a successful conclusion.

Colonel Asher Miner, 109th Field Artillery, for extraordinary heroism in action at Apremont, on Oct. 4. One of the batteries of the regiment commanded by this officer, assigned to an advanced position in direct support of an infantry attack, was heavily shelled by the enemy while it was going into action. It being necessary, therefore, to take another position, he went forward under heavy shell fire and personally supervised the placing of the guns in the new position. He continued his efforts until he received a severe wound that later necessitated the amputation of his leg. Home address: Mrs. Asher Miner, 292 South Franklin Street, Wilkes-Barre, Penn.

'SOMEBODY'S SWEETHEART'

Wm. Kent and Louise Allen Frolic in Play with Good Music.

SOMEBODY'S SWEETHEART, a musical play in two acts. Book and lyrics by Alonzo Price; music by Antonio Bafunno. At the Central.

|---|---|
| Andrews | Bernard Gorcey |
| A Troubador | Rose De Granada |
| Colonel Williams | Albert Sackett |

| Helen Williams | Eva Fallon |
| Roderic | Arthur Klein |
| Bessie Williams | Louise Allen |
| Sam Benton | William Kent |
| Dolores | Carmen Granada |

| Ben Hud | John Dunsmure |
| Machaquito | Chester Brown |
| Oriental Dancer | Veronica |
| Scriploo | Basil Stratti |

"Somebody's Sweetheart" arrived at the Central Theatre last night with William Kent. It brought along a lot of others, too—Nonette, Eva Fallon, Louise Allen, John Dunsmure, Walter Scanlan, Arthur Klein, and the rest—but most noticeably William Kent, whose fool antics made even the persons on the stage laugh. So it may be imagined what they did to the house. Miss Allen was Kent's particular accomplice in comicality, and she aided and abetted him well.

But the whole show was not just foolishness. Its music made a hit with the audience. Nonette with her violin and voice had a hard time stopping the encores, and among others who made catchy songs catch were Miss Fallon and Messrs. Dunsmure and Scanlan. There was also one Veronica, an oriental dancer with occidental restraint.

The scenes of "Somebody's Sweetheart" are laid in Seville, where the American Consul's daughter is to be married to an American traveler. This start permits as much of the Spanish to come in as the author desires, and makes room, too, for "straight United States." The two are mixed in entertaining quantities and served to the taste of the many. The settings are Spanish—at least of musical comedy Spain; the costumes are richly of both countries concerned, and so is the music.

There is a story, full of complications and situations, which keeps pretty well up with the performance.

Tuneful Singing, Also, of Musical Comedy Kind, in "Listen, Lester."

LISTEN, LESTER, a musical comedy in two acts. Book and lyrics by Harry L. Cort and George E. Stoddard; music by Harold Orlob. At the Knickerbocker.

| Miss Upp | Irma Marwick |
| Miss Belle | Esther Ingham |
| Col. Rufus Dodge | Eddie Garvie |
| Miss Pink | Ruth Mabee |
| William Penn, Jr. | Johnny Dooley |
| Jack Griffin | Clifton Webb |
| Mary Dodge | Ada Mae Weeks |
| Mrs. Tillie Mumm | Ada Lewis |
| Lester Lite | Hansford Wilson |
| Arbutus Quilty | Gertrude Vanderbilt |

A "terpsichorean whirl and a punning spree" are what the publicity agent forgot to call "Listen, Lester." For another so-called "musical entertainment" has come to town—musical to those for whom the bass drum and the triangle typify virtuosity, and entertainment to those for whom the pun stands forth as even a little better than bourgeois wit. There is dancing, much of it; some is graceful, as that of Ada Weeks; some is unbeautiful and bordering on the vulgar, as that of Gertrude Vanderbilt; some grotesque and delightful, as that of Johnny Dooley and Hanford Wilson. And there was singing, of the musical comedy kind. It was tuneful. "Waiting for You," "I'd Love To," and "Sweet Stuff," will stick, and it would not be too much to say that New York, that part of New York that goes to listen to Lester and sometimes stays in New York as long as a day or two, will whistle them. Let it be said that the audience liked it all—even when old jokes were dragged in by the scruff of the neck instead of being choked to death.

There was a plot, too, about a Colonel Dodge who was dodging (yes, the pun was on the program) Arbutus Quiltie, who had trailed him to Palm Beach, (trailing arbutus, of course.) Nothing much happened when she got him there except that the "vamp" and the sweet thing and the coy widow and the naughty woman detective, all the old musical comedy characters, were properly or improperly paired off with the nearest convenient male persons. Even the allied nations were drawn upon—this has been a terrible war—so that their bathing costumes might be shown to the audience, and incidentally California came in as one of the "nations," undoubtedly one of the new small nationalities and another complication in the international complex. But the girls were good to look at—some of them—the orchestra took care of their voices, and when everything else threatened to fail they danced.

How long New York will listen to Lester—who can tell? It is of the stuff of which such shows are made. The old jokes did not fail. They came in new dress; some of them wore less than usual. There were some new episodes. That of the foodless meal interrupted by patriotic airs and the necessity of standing while the waiters frisked away the edibles, was the best received. So with the primitive rhythmics, the elemental emotions, and the tickling of the everlasting love of the risque, Lester will linger with us a while at the Knickerbocker Theatre and musical comedy will not vanish from the face of the earth.

Three Puccini Operas Sung Again.

The Metropolitan stars last night presented for the second time their successful "world première" bill of three new one-act operas by Puccini. In spite of Christmas gayeties in and out of town, the house was sold up to the last few boxes of the grand tier. Miss Muzio, Messrs. Crimi and Montesanto reappeared in the triangle tragedy of "Il Tabarro," and Mme. Farrar in the mystery play, "Sister Angelica," while Mr. De Luca, Miss Easton and others made a roaring finish in the quaint farce of "Gianni Schicchi."

FRENCH PLAYERS AMUSE.

Give Rostand's "Les Romanesques" and an Old Moliere Farce.

|---|---|

| Angelique | Jane Lory |
| Valere | Marcel Millet |
| Cathau | Suzanne Bing |
| Gorgibus | Robert Bogaert |
| Villebrequin | Lucien Weber |
| La Vallee | Henri Bart |

Jacques Copeau's French players at the Théâtre du Vieux Colombier last night presented a double bill—Rostand's "Les Romanesques" and Molière's one-act farce "La Jalousie du Barbouillé." Both performances, by virtue particularly of the French players' excellent mastery of the grotesque in all the details of facial, physical, and vocal action, were well received by a friendly and amused audience.

In the Rostand play, a romantic comedy farce in verse, Marcel Millet and Robert Casa appeared creditably and ludicrously as the two old fathers of the over-romantic young lovers who must needs be provided with the excitement of a "first-class elopement with all supplements" before they could be won to the more prosaic detail of matrimony. The two old cronies, in their pretended "eternal feud," which almost became a real one once they had tricked their offspring into reconciling them through their own young plighted troth, were more interesting on the whole than the mooing young lovers with their over-outpourings of the romanesque. One automatically forgave Renée Bouquet her rôle as the Juliet of this moon-struck mating, for she was extremely pretty and had as always a very winning charm. Suzanne Bing, on the other hand, playing the part of the lovelorn swain, Percinet, suffered by reason of the fact that just as one could not help recalling that Madame Bernhardt created a stage tradition by playing the male parts of this sort, so one could not help realizing also that Madame Bernhardt was not in the house last night. It would have been better if the young he had been a he.

In the Molière farce Jane Lory, as the buxom and sharp-tongued wife; Romain Bouquet as the wine-red and very comical jealous husband, and Louis Jouvet as the loquacious doctor, kept the audience in a cordial ripple of laughter, despite the musty age of the playlet and the fact that it was one of Molière's earlier and cruder productions.

Frank Tinney Shines in 'Atta Boy.'

With Frank Tinney (now Captain Tinney, U. S. A., if you please) as a headliner, "Atta Boy," a soldier show of the musical type given by the boys of the Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, opened last night at the Lexington Theatre. Like many of its predecessors, there are the burlesques on camp life and the amusing antics of the male chorus girls. Of course, Frank Tinney was the pièce de résistance, and he lived up to his well-deserved reputation as a comedian. The music of "Atta Boy" is unusually tuneful, and no doubt Broadway will be whistling, "Strolling 'round the Camp with Mary," which seemed particularly to please the good-sized first-night audience which greeted the soldier-actors.

11TH ENGINEERS ARE CITED.

Rendered Fine Service at St. Mihiel and in Meuse-Argonne Battles.

The 11th Engineers of New York has been cited for conspicuous services in the fighting at St. Mihiel, and between the Meuse and the Argonne Forest, according to a letter received yesterday at the Headquarters of the American Association of 11th Engineers from Colonel William Barclay Parsons, regimental commander, now in France. The letter also transmitted a copy of a communication received from Colonel George S. Spalding, Chief Engineer of the First American Army, as follows:

"The Chief Engineer desires to express his highest appreciation to you and your regiment for the services rendered by you to the First Army in connection with the St. Mihiel offensive, starting Sept. 12, and the offensive between the Meuse and the Argonne, starting Sept. 26, and the continuance of that offensive Nov. 1. The success of these offensives and supply of the army is largely due to the excellent work performed by your regiment."

WAR CONTRACT SETTLEMENTS.

According to the survey of the Merchants' Association, "the largest single factor affecting industry" is the Government's cancellation of war contracts and withdrawal from the market. According to figures from Washington, there are $1,675,000,000 involved in 6,600 contracts which were verbal and informal, often telegraphic or telephonic. The Treasury Controller holds that they are unlawful because not "signed." There is no charge that they were irregular in any other respect than that the Government was eager to get the goods in the quickest way, and that the contractors co-operated with the Government in the Government's way. Such fault as there is is without reproach, and the unlocking of the frozen credits is a matter of interest extending far beyond the Government and the contractors. The banks need their resources, and the money should be put to work in other lines of production, paying wages, and so on.

The first attempts to meet the requirement of Treasury formalities were not well considered. Bills were offered for the adjustment of claims by the Secretary of War, without appeal in case of dissatisfaction. Another proposal was to refer contractors to the Court of Claims. Years are required for its decisions, and the interest charge is added to the bills against the Government. In civil war experience the interest paid exceeded the contract claim, and some payments were made to the executors of the contractors, who were all embarrassed and some ruined. Other pending proposals disallow all profit on canceled contracts, and propose an allowance only of "reasonable" costs. The reason to be used is that of the department which gave its orders informally, and which is said to have now four billions of unaudited accounts, including those of the services in which there is no question of any neglect of duty by those who should receive their dues. There is no question that this is an unhappy state of affairs, and no suggestion from any quarter that there should be any settlement except upon the merits, as the cases shall be proved. An example of promptness and liberality is set in the adjustment of some British contracts, where the Government takes a loss exceeding the payment to the contractors.

Now comes the Chamber of Commerce with a bill prepared by its counsel and the Chairman of the Chamber's Committee upon Arbitration. From such a source there could not come a bill adverse to public interests, nor unduly partial to the contractors. The Chamber's bill differs from the others in that it proposes an adjustment not by courts or lawyers, or upon technical considerations. The merits of the informal contracts are to be referred to regional boards of examiners, nominated by Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, merchants' associations, and similar bodies within the districts where the contracts were to be executed and should be adjusted. These boards are not to be paid, except as the President may direct. They are to find the facts and report them to the Treasury, their findings being "final and conclusive, "except for manifest error or injus"tice * * * through fraud or de"ceit." An example will illustrate the application of the proposal. A manufacturer had an order for wagon parts suitable for no other than army use, and had expended $400,000 when the order was canceled. In seeking to adjust the cancellation it appeared that, according to the Treasury, he had no contract, for lack of an authorized signature, the deputy's signature being without authority. Obviously it is necessary to validate the contract, and then to give the Treasury authority to adjust the account according to findings of fact. That is the way in which business men think the matter should be settled, and it seems better than the ways previously proposed.

THE DEATH OF NICHOLAS.

It cannot be said that the narrative of DOMININ, Major-Domo to the last Czar of Russia, throws much new light on the end of NICHOLAS ROMANOFF, or on his character. We see him pictured as a man of personal courage, of religious faith; as a kind husband and father; but as one wholly unable to meet successfully serious emergencies. All of this the world knew before. DOMININ's story does, however, give a detailed account of the circumstances leading up to his trial, an account at first hand, apparently, and as such is a document of value bearing on the last days of NICHOLAS. The Czechs were advancing on Ekaterinburg; NICHOLAS was suspected, whether rightly or wrongly, of planning to escape to them (Heaven knows what they could have done for him or with him;) he was in constant correspondence with old friends and supporters, and the Bolsheviki asserted that they had evidence that he was intriguing with Generals DENIKIN, DUTOFF, and DOGERT for his restoration. DENIKIN and DUTOFF between them now appear to control all of Southern Russia; to what extent they represent an actual monarchist sentiment, to what extent they control merely by virtue of present armed force, remains to be seen.

On this charge the Czar was tried before the local Soviet, and sentenced to be shot on the morning of July 17. His wife begged for mercy on her knees, but in vain; after bidding farewell to her and her son, NICHOLAS was led away to be shot some seven miles out of town—a statement which discredits the picturesque tale of the cellar room with bullet-marked plaster and blood-stained floor, from which evidence of the killing was laboriously removed before the Czechs took the town.

Everybody in Ekaterinburg believes that NICHOLAS is dead, but so far eyewitnesses of the actual killing have not been found; for the murder of his family no better additional evidence is adduced but the somewhat dubious authority of a newspaper in Tcheliabinsk. To those who weigh such evidence as remains there is likely to be little room for doubt that NICHOLAS is actually dead; but the mythmakers and myth-believers are legion, and the Nicholas legend is likely to stay with us for a good many years.

NEWS IS PROPERTY.

By the decision of the United States Supreme Court handed down yesterday in the case of The Associated Press against the International News Service, it is declared that news obtained by the expenditure of money and of labor is property and that the courts will protect the property rights of the owner therein. The case arose in an action to enjoin the International News Service from copying news dispatches of The Associated Press from the early editions of its member papers or from bulletins of those newspapers, and from bribing employés of member newspapers of The Associated Press to furnish it with "tips" of news to be rewritten, expanded, and sent out as its own. The injunctions granted by the Federal Court in New York are sustained by the Supreme Court. It upholds all the contentions of The Associated Press and stamps as unwarranted the charge of the defendant that The Associated Press also had been guilty of practices similar to those of which the International News Service was found to be guilty.

The decision is of very great importance, not only to The Associated Press but as a protection to individual newspapers spending large sums of money for cable and other news specially obtained by them for their own use. News dispatches which are the product of their expenditure and enterprise are now guaranteed protection against piracy. Of the practices specifically enjoined, the Court declares that they constitute "an unauthorized interference with "the normal operation of complain"ant's legitimate business, precisely "at the point where the profit is to "be reaped." Freshness is an essential element in the value of news. If it is purloined from its lawful owner and simultaneously distributed to the public by a rival, it is evident that the rival association or newspaper reaps without cost to itself benefits which the owner of the news had sought to obtain by the expenditure of time, money, and labor, often large sums of money. Of such a transaction the Court says that it "speaks for itself "and a court of equity ought not to "hesitate long in characterizing it as "unfair competition in business."

In a dissenting opinion it was declared that to set up a property right in news would be to establish a monopoly in news. The Court's opinion makes it clear that this is not the case. News of spontaneous origin is open to anybody; reports of it may be written and transmitted by the agents of any organization or newspaper who happen to be on the spot. Nobody has ever thought to establish a monopoly of the right to report an earthquake, a conflagration, a dethronement, or a revolution. But when a news-gathering organization like The Associated Press or an individual newspaper has secured a report of any of these events written by its own agents, and has caused it to be transmitted, it may be thousands of miles by cable, at large cost, that news report is property, it has value in the hands of its owner; and to hold that any other association or newspaper may at once seize upon that report and, without cost to itself save that of the act of seizure, may deliver it to its own subscribers, thus securing for itself gratuitous advantages which its rivals have spent much money to obtain, would be to make plain theft a legitimate form of enterprise. That the pirating of news in this manner is an unlawful act and may be restrained by injunction is what the Court decides. If a contrary decision had been reached by the Court the owner of the news would have no protection except by keeping it secret, a process by which, as the Court observes, the owner would deprive himself of his only valuable interest in his own property. The moment of distribution to the public through early editions of newspapers or by posting of bulletins is the one seized upon by the news pirate for converting it to its own use. That is where protection is needed, that is where it is extended by the decision of the Supreme Court.

THE HOHENZOLLERN CHRISTMAS.

Because a King and Kaiser has abdicated, shall he therefore cease to bombinate and pontificate? Mr. WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN, that memorable exponent of peace on earth, good will to men, is going to enjoy himself to the top of his bent in Amerongen Castle tomorrow. Actor-manager as well as preacher, he has transformed the Count VON BENTINCK's drawing room into a chapel. Among the small Amerongen pines the imperial axe, if it be not a hatchet in graceful memory of WASHINGTON and veracity, has cut store of Christmas trees. The statement that "he cut these down "himself, with the help of two men "of the estate," should be interpreted, probably, as meaning that he furnished the mind, gave the directions, sermonized the woodcutters on forest lore, Christmas rites, German Truth, and what not.

At any rate, the trees were felled, transported to the drawing room, decorated and decked with gifts according to instructions from the sometime leading Royal-Imperial scenic artist. Historic doubts arise about the story that Mr. HOHENZOLLERN wanted the Court Chaplain, Dr. VON DRYANDER, to come from Berlin and preach, and that the Berlin Government, presumably seeing no economic advantage in carrying coals to Newcastle, wouldn't let the Chaplain go. If he was sent for, 'twas to be preached to, not to preach. We may be sure of that; and it is no news that Mr. HOHENZOLLERN will deliver the Christmas sermon himself.

Many friends of Count VON BENTINCK have been asked to hear that sermon. Cynically and cruelly they have refused to go and be bored. What a satisfaction it would have been to the poor exile of Potsdam to beat the "drum ecclesiastic," edify the Dutch nobility and gentry, hold forth interminably! He is sure of an audience in spite of those churlish declinations. The Count and his family have to go as a matter of courtesy. A guest is sacred though he be as loquacious as all the katydids singing antiphonally to all the frogs. The Count's servants, Mr. HOHENZOLLERN's suite, are paid to go. It is part of their work, and, since the man is always preaching, an hour or two more or less doesn't matter.

What a privilege to hear this man, who has covered the earth and the sea with blood, discourse of religion and peace and righteousness! Barnes Newcome on the progress of the domestic affections was fine; but HOHENZOLLERN in a Christmas pulpit is perfect.

NIAGARA SPEAKS.

From Niagara, and with more than the grandiose surge and thunder of the Falls, reform rushes to engulf Albany. Senator GEORGE F. THOMPSON, whose zeal for the beautiful, the good, and the inexpensive, especially in the matter of visiting investigating committees of the Legislature, is remembered in Manhattan, is still a candidate for President pro tem. of the State Senate. He has sworn to smash the Senate rules, begetters of all iniquity, and notably that sum of all villainies, "failure of the Legis"lature to exercise its constitutional "duty in regard to the ratification of "an amendment to the Federal Con"stitution in relation to intoxicating "liquors."

Enough to know that reform of the Senate rules and ratification of the Dry Amendment are two lovely berries growing on one stem; that to the Old Guard Republicans, sons of reaction, advocates of a referendum on prohibition, THOMPSON of Niagara sounds his terrible approach. The glorious victory of prohibition and WHITMAN, one and inseparable, has naturally inflamed the Republican Drys and the Anti-Saloon League to seek new conquests.

AN INTERSTATE TREATY.

There is no novelty about treaties between States of the United States, but the suggestion that the treaty between New York and New Jersey of 1834 should be brought up to date has all the shock of surprise to some. There are those who know that the treaty has been made use of in nuisance, pollution, and immigration cases, but they are few indeed. Now it is proposed to revise this treaty between sovereignties, subject only to the powers they conveyed to the Federal Government, so as to end the troubles resulting from the lighterage cases. It will be recalled what a Pandora's box was opened when the Interstate Commerce Commission thought to solve a rate dispute by recommending that the terminal charges should be separated from the line haul. It would be futile and tiresome to trace through the reconsiderations and unexpected applications of this seemingly moderate and harmless suggestion. The point is that New Jersey seized upon it as a pretext for the division of the national port into two, therefore dividing its usefulness to commerce by four or half a dozen or more times.

Now comes the sequel. The port instead of being divided is to be unified more than ever. Politics and commerce have no natural incompatibility, but they can be made to quarrel. This was a case for separation merely, not for alimony. The decision handed down by the New York-New Jersey Port Commission is that the quarreling couple shall compose their differences and live in peace and greater prosperity than ever. The easy objection that the commerce of the port is national and that a Federal charter would be better than a treaty between the States has been anticipated. The interstate clause of the Constitution was fully considered, and inconsistencies avoided by provision that Federal control should be preserved, and that nothing proposed should be inconsistent with the Constitution of either State or of the United States. The proposal is merely that the States shall co-operate in creating a single jurisdiction over interests which are crippled by the lack of a single control and by jealousies which will be allayed by joining those whom commerce has joined and whom no jealousies should put asunder.

Our descendants may perhaps rejoice that we make a right decision upon the subject which the Interstate Commission has decided several times, without deciding it at all. Our jealous rivals, the outports, have no cause for their envy. We are only providing ourselves with what they enjoy. Most of them are placed entirely within a single State, and need no treaty. Few of them are divided by rivers, and need the joining of islands to the continent.

OLD FAMILIAR VOICES.

Vorwärts, under a Socialist masque a voice of the imperialist régime for much of the war, preserves the "official" contempt of facts still. It speaks of the Germans as "the "people entirely innocent of starting "the war."

FRIEDRICH NAUMANN, the sometime pastor who was the most active disseminator of the Central Europe poison among his countrymen, now pretends to "tremble at the Socialist "flood," which threatens "the dev"astation of German economic and "political life. A sound republican "democracy is our only salvation."

What sort of sound republican democracy can be expected from him? When old party and Government hacks, Progressive, Conservative, Centrist, call for democracy, the kind of polity they have at heart can be conjectured only from their not too honest past.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Service at Home and Abroad

In behalf of the silver chevron no argument is made except the one that if the relation between service in the United States and service overseas were as well understood and appreciated as it should be this mark on a uniform would be viewed by everybody as a badge of honor.

That argument is sound, but unfortunately it does not in the slightest degree affect either of two large facts. The first of them is that most wearers of the blue or gold foreign service stripe think, and many of them say, that theirs was the more, if not the only, important part in winning the war. The second fact is that all except a small part of the public agree with them. Such being the case, it is useless to rehearse all that the men who stayed at home did for the country or to emphasize the dependence of the men at the front on those who remained in the training camps or at the ports of debarkation.

Probably it would be worse than useless to make clear what was hinted in the letter from WESLEY M. OLER, printed yesterday, as to the considerations which, in not a few instances, determined who should be chosen first to go abroad. In truth, that selection was not always a matter of luck, and true also is it that in as many instances men who remained behind in the camps did so simply because they could not be spared and their replacement could not be left to chance. To talk much about this, however, might be taken as an effort to prove that the men who wear the white chevron are better than those who went to France.

Such an effort would be equally absurd and outrageous. It is quite enough to say that many of the men who remained behind were superior in soldierly qualities, especially those required for turning civilians into soldiers, to some of the men who crossed the sea.

Unanimous in Their Disapproval.

In the many letters THE TIMES has printed from men who took a deep personal interest in the questions raised by the invention of the silver chevron there has been full admission that it should be taken by all beholders as indicative of important duty well done. But in all of them was the implicit or explicit complaint that it was not so taken, and that therefore the silver chevron was a burden—at best an advertisement of ill-luck, and at worst an invitation for sneers and derision. It has been suggested that if no service stripes were worn by anybody, as has been proposed as a possible solution of the difficulty, then those who now wear one or more white stripes would be much embarrassed when they were asked at what part of the front they did their fighting. And it would be somewhat unpleasant, perhaps, to reply that it was done at Upton or Merritt or one of the more sequestered soldier factories. But the men are apparently something more than willing to risk that, and surely attention in official circles is deserved by the fact that, so far as can be recalled, of all military insignia only this one ever excited the protests of those required to wear it. That is a significant circumstance.

Acquired the Habit of Giving.

Present indications make it practically certain that the contributions to be made this year for the relief of the "hundred neediest cases" presented by THE TIMES are going to exceed by a considerable amount the contributions of previous years. That is much to be desired, of course, for the "cases" of which these are typical are now at least as numerous as they ever were in the past, while the cost of setting on their feet and rendering self-supporting the victims of accident, illness, and misfortune is as much larger than formerly as is the often mentioned and lamented "cost of living."

That the gifts are coming in so rapidly, in spite of the innumerable demands to which all purses have been subjected of late, shows that there really is such a thing as a "habit of giving" and that since the war began many people have acquired it. To have given seemingly makes it not harder, but easier, to give some more. That may be regarded as a fanciful paradox by cold economists and statisticians, but the experience of the professional agents of philanthropy confirms the truth of the theory.

Certainly there is no lack of appreciation among TIMES readers that these "cases" provide one of the best of all opportunities to manifest the Christmas spirit—to be a real Santa Claus. They have a chance to be charitable without encountering either the embarrassments or the taints of charity and without the slightest fear that the money given will result in the pauperization of those who get it. Not a penny goes to the professional beggar and there is no duplication of effort, no waste of funds.

Planning to Fly in the Arctic.

With both poles "discovered" it was the general belief that those particularly desolate regions of the earth would lose the mysterious charm that has dragged so many men so many times to, or more often toward, them. Common folk who have not invaded the white wastes never understood very well what the attraction of the world's ends was or what benefits were to be derived from reaching them. The men with the exploring instinct have never had any doubts on either point, however, and now the indefatigable PEARY, not content with having reached the "Big Nail" on foot, is preparing to take at least a supervisory part in an expedition to reach it by means of that newest vehicle, the plane.

There is still much to be done and learned in the Far North, he and the other members of his remarkable tribe insist, and they talk about precious minerals that in their opinion may or will reward flights in that direction. Of course, aviation in the arctic regions is practicable in Summer, but are the facilities for safe landings good? The pictures in the Admiral's own book more than hint of difficulties of that sort, and of even greater difficulties in the way of rising after a landing has been made. But presumably he has considered all that and he hardly needs to be warned as to the nature of the arctic ice. Almost any use for airplanes is better than that of dropping bombs on cities.

Our Russian Policy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your able and condensed editorial in Sunday's issue, "German Aims in Russia," tells the whole story, covers the whole ground. It should be read by every member of Congress, every member of the Cabinet, and by the entire people. It is absolutely the fact that German propaganda will have won for Germany a great war if it succeeds in persuading us not to give assistance to the law and order party in Russia against the disorder party. The painful and halting indecision which has for a year marked our course is the result of socialistic doctrines artfully advanced in favor of the Bolsheviki by the friends of disorder and of Germany in this country. Whenever we find loss of lives, loss of resources, loss of honor, occasioned during the past four years in this country, it has been capable of being traced to the pro-German idealists—our "internationalists," our Bolsheviki.

CHARLES STEWART DAVISON.
New York, Dec. 22, 1918.

Is Prague to be Praha?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Czechoslovaks have earned the esteem of the world by their valiant stand for the allied cause in this war. Why do the newspapers persist in using the German names of their cities instead of the more appropriate Czech? St. Petersburg was changed to Petrograd, why not Prague to Praha, when it never really bore any other name among the natives of that city themselves? There are arguments advanced for the boycotting of everything German, why not begin with the names of the cities and continue until the Slavs are seen through other than German minds? They are big and virile enough to have this recognition.

CHARLES H. B. STEPANEK.
New York, Dec. 21, 1918.

For a Christmas Protest.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Ever since the latest pogrom perpetrated in Galicia I've looked for some expostulation from the pulpits or pens of our Christian clergymen against these un-Christian and fanatical mobs who continue to massacre their fellow-creatures of the Jewish faith. The time is ripe to do something to prevent future crimes of such mad butcheries. I would ask the Christian clergymen in the world to bestir themselves in stemming such crimes upon unoffending citizens everywhere. Of all seasons, do it now for the "Glory of God in the Highest," and there will be "Peace on earth, good-will toward men."

New York, Dec. 19, 1918. A JEWESS.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS.

Fair spirit of the Christmas day,
Thrilled with delight thou comest! Joy of life
Is in thy step! In thine all gracious sway,
How is the sting of sordid, earthly strife
Forgotten! Comest thou in glee
Of childish pleasure, music and the dance,
A thousand new-born fancies to entrance,
And bygone memories, rich in ecstasy
Of loving! Prithee! Canst not tarry here
Where sorely needed is thy tenderness?
Thy rare good fellowship was meant to bless
Lone hearts and weary. Earth is drear!
Our lives are full of sorrow! Spirit, stay!

HEROES TO SHARE HOME CHRISTMAS

Holiday Appeal of War Camp Service Taps Vast Reserves of Hospitality Here.

ALL IN UNIFORM WILL DINE

Thousands Invited Into City's Homes as Part of Entertainments Starting Tonight with Armory Dancing.

This Yuletide will be a time of rejoicing over victory, and in camps and hospitals, in homes and in the churches, elaborate preparations have been made to make the "Victory Christmas" a day long to be remembered by all, both in and out of uniform. The various organizations for civic betterment have programs which, when carried out, should by tomorrow night find no unfed or unentertained man or woman in this city. The War Camp Community Service, the Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army, the Volunteers of America, the various community houses, neighborhood centres of the Red Cross, and kindred organizations, religious and other, are all planning for the feeding and entertainment of thousands.

Popular response to the appeal of the War Camp Community that men in uniform be entertained in private homes has been hearty, and it was announced that in 10,000 homes, one or two, and sometimes more, places have been reserved for guests. Besides this, thousands of dinners will be served to soldiers and sailors through the War Camp at hotels and restaurants, and men in uniform will be the guests of honor in canteens, clubs, or units of the War Camp.

To begin with, the War Camp Community will have ten sightseeing buses running about the city by day, taking men to and from points of interest. At night the buses will be used to transport the men to and from those theatrical performances to which their uniforms will admit them. More than 10,000 tickets to Broadway shows will be issued to men in uniform by the War Camp.

Pershing Theatre to Start 'Em Going.

Tonight there will be a Christmas Eve opening of the Pershing Theatre, Madison Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, where there will also be a continuous vaudeville all through Christmas Day.

The War Camp program includes a Khaki and Blue dance in the 71st Regiment Armory tonight. Besides the fun and the dancing there will be 300 pounds of chocolate fudge made by pretty girls, and ever so many pounds of iced cake, mostly made by their mothers.

Waiting as partners for the guests will be most of the 4,000 girl members of the Social Department of the War Camp. In order that there may be no partnerless soldier or sailor, each girl has written a "Home Christmas Letter," to which her name is signed. When the men in uniform arrive, each one will receive a letter to be handed to him by one of the many hostesses. Then he will seek out the writer of the letter, and she will become his partner for the first dance.

Have a Forest of Christmas Trees.

The Christmas tree will play an important part in all these celebrations. There will be more than fifty Christmas tree parties under the auspices of the War Camp. While many of these tree celebrations have been made possible through War Camp co-operation with citizens, there will also be trees at more than thirty of the War Camp units. Indeed, at nearly every entertainment and dinner the tree will have a place of honor.

As part of the Christmas entertainment the War Camp plans that no man on leave in New York during the holidays shall be without sleeping quarters. Men in uniform are asked to apply at any of the units of the War Camp. Others will be taken care of if they will apply at the Hotel Earlington, 55 West Twenty-seventh Street. In the units 15,000 men can be taken care of, and more than that—it is promised that they will be visited by Santa Claus while they sleep. Every man spending Christmas Eve at a War Camp unit will wake on Christmas morning to find a well-filled sock at the head of his bed. It will be just as though he were still a kiddie.

Mothers Provided For, Also

Announcement was made yesterday by Miss Fannie Cook Gates, General Secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, that a Debarkation Hostess House, Forty-first Street and Lexington Avenue, will be opened at 4 o'clock Christmas Day. It is planned to have this house as a place where boys who have just arrived may meet their wives, mothers, sisters, sweethearts or other relatives. There will be rest rooms for the women and a smoking room for the men. There will be a cafeteria and two floors of sleeping rooms, where women who come to the city to meet arriving soldiers may obtain sleeping accommodations at a low cost.

The New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children will hold its annual Christmas entertainment at the society building, 297 Fourth Avenue, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. A great tree has been put up in the centre of the playroom, and about 150 children will share the hospitality of the society.

The National League for Woman's Service will begin its Christmas program by the distribution today of thousands of flowers to the military and naval hospitals. The two debarkation hospitals, in Grand Central Palace and in the old Greenhut store, will be visited tomorrow by Mrs. J. Clarke Curtin, Chairman of the Home and Overseas Relief Division of the League, which has undertaken the distribution of the flowers.

Special turkey dinners will be served at the league canteens and 200 dinners will be given away at each canteen. The nominal charge for the regular dinner will be 25 cents. The canteens are located at 261 Madison Avenue, the Harvard Club Unit, Seventh Avenue at Thirty-third Street; Harlem Home Club, 70 Manhattan Street; Grace Church Canteen, Ninety-eighth Street and Fourth Avenue; the Negro Sailors and Soldiers' Canteens, 2,388 Seventh Avenue.

Mrs. Straus to Dine 400.

At the Lavanburg Home, 319 East Seventeenth Street, 400 dinners will be served to the men from the land battleship Recruit. The dinners are given by Mrs. Oscar Straus. More than 500 volunteer women workers will serve in the canteens on Christmas Day.

The league will give several dances, but the big dance will be held at the Sailors, Soldiers, and Marines' Club tomorrow evening, and a great Christmas tree and the distribution of gifts will be features of the entertainment.

Tonight the men in Surgical Ward 6 of the Brooklyn Naval Hospital will hang up their stockings and they will be filled by young women of the league who last night started decorating the ward in anticipation of the day.

The league and the Transportation Club together will entertain 100 men, the majority of them convalescents, today at the matinée at Keith's Colonial Theatre. Later two buses will transport the men, with twenty-five more added to the party, to the Manhattan Hotel for dinner and a dance.

Mrs. Frederick Courtland Penfield is giving a dinner for sixty men at Mrs. Copeland's Tea Room, 16 East Forty-third Street, tomorrow at noon. Tickets for this dinner are being distributed by Mrs. Guy Tolman at the headquarters of the league, 257 Madison Avenue.

Christmas at Bellevue.

Preparations have been made for an elaborate Christmas observance at Bellevue Hospital. Every ward will have its Christmas tree. The children's ward will be decorated with a snow scene designed by Joseph Hart and John Maguire, employes of Bellevue. On Christmas morning the curtains before this scene will be drawn and the children in the ward will find not only that they have been transported out of doors, but that there is a Christmas tree and heaps of presents for them.

Foreign-born girls representing fifteen different nations will give a pageant of nations and a Christmas festival on Friday night in the Washington Irving High School.

The 200 children in Seaside Hospital will have their Christmas tree tomorrow afternoon. The children are from 2 to 12 years old and are orphans, who lost their parents in the epidemic of influenza.

Health Commissioner Copeland has a lengthy list of children who have been affected by the influenza epidemic, and to these also it has been arranged to distribute gifts.

There will be plenty of Christmas cheer in Brooklyn. Some 4,000 children who live in the neighborhood of the Robbins Dry Dock plant will be the guests of the employes on Christmas Day. The celebration will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning about a big tree, and George Robinson, President of the Robbins Dry Dock and Repair Co., will be the Santa Claus. There will be similar celebrations in the Tebo Yacht Basin and at the Teitjen & Lang shipbuilding plant in Hoboken.

Brooklyn's Tree Party Tonight.

The Central Branch of the Y. M. C. A., 55 Hanson Place, will be a centre of good cheer distribution in Brooklyn. From here many men will be sent out as guests in private homes. In the Central Branch there will be a breakfast served early Christmas morning and to which the uniform will be the only ticket of admission. Charles W. Dietrich, General Secretary of the branch, will give a talk.

Because of the holiday congestion on Flatbush Avenue it has been decided to light the community Christmas tree which will dedicate the New Temple Place, Flatbush, Lafayette Avenue, and Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, at 7:30 this Christmas Eve, instead of two hours earlier. This will give the community residents an opportunity to be present after dinner, instead of the commuter crowd, hurrying away to the stations close by.

The thirty-five-foot tree was raised late Saturday, near the Central Y. W. C. A., which is sponsor for the affair, in co-operation with the Central Y. M. C. A. and churches and merchants of the vicinity. More than 200 multi-colored lights have been strung on the tree, along with ornaments and a star at the top. The War Camp Community Service will be in charge of the lighting. A marine band will play, church bells will chime, and children from Public School 15, the Church of Our Lady of Mercy, and Y. W. C. A. girls will sing carols. Many of those from neighborhood houses of the section will take part in the ceremonies.

Local Celebrations Start Early.

More than 1,200 wounded soldiers were the guests of the War Camp Community Service yesterday morning at the Strand Theatre. They came from the Debarkation Hospital in the old Greenhut store.

Miss Marie Dressler, in the dress of a "Mrs. Santa Claus," was the centre of a jollification yesterday afternoon on Pier 4, Hoboken, when she distributed Christmas presents to almost 3,000 soldiers and sailors who are stationed on the pier. These comprised members of the medical detachment, Motor Transport Corps, field clerks, men and women of the Quartermaster Corps, and sailors.

On the pier, which was decorated with flags of the Allies, there was a giant Christmas tree from the estate of Professor William C. Clark of Columbia University, which was illuminated by thousands of small electric lights, and at the top of which was a large Red Cross. Piled up under the tree were packages, each consisting of a pair of socks, cigarettes, candy, and a bar of chocolate, which Miss Dressler, with Vice Admiral Albert Gleaves and Major Gen. David C. Shanks, handed to the guests.

The first package given by Miss Dressler was to Major Gen. Shanks, who then helped in the distribution of the gifts. The Women's Emergency Canteen Service served coffee and doughnuts. Speeches by the three distributors of the presents, together with music and dancing, ended the festivities. Arrangements for the celebration were in the hands of Major John T. Axton, Chaplain of the Port, Chairman, and Chaplains Burkhalter, Catterlin, and Cox.

TO DECORATE WHITTLESEY.

"Lost Battalion" Commander Will Receive Medal on Boston Common.

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—Lieut. Col. Charles W. Whittlesey of Pittsfield, Commander of the famous "Lost Battalion" which for five days was cut off from its division in France, will be publicly decorated tomorrow with a Congressional medal of honor.

The exercises will take place on Boston Common and Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, Commander of the Northeastern Department, will personally make the presentation in accordance with instructions received today from the War Department.

The medal was awarded "for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action with the Germans northeast of Binarville, in the Forest d'Argonne, France, Oct. 2 to 7, 1918." Colonel Whittlesey recently returned to this country and was mustered out at Camp Dix.

POWER TO ENFORCE NATION'S TREATIES

Senator Sutherland Declares Sovereign People Will Uphold All Pledges.

STATE RIGHTS NO BARRIER

Treaties Involving Money Appropriation "Obligatory" on Congress, Subject to Constitution.

Former United States Senator George Sutherland, of Utah, delivered the last but one in his series of lectures on the George Blumenthal foundation of Columbia University, before a large audience in Havemeyer Hall last evening. The subject of the lecture was, "How Far Is the Treaty-making Power of the National Government Limited?" The last lecture in the course will be delivered next Friday.

After discussing what kinds of treaties treaty commissioners of the United States may and may not make, Senator Sutherland laid down this axiom: "In one way or another, whatever the Government of the United States has the right to promise, it has the power to enforce."

In part he said: "One of the most important questions connected with the subject of treaty-making is that which concerns the extent of the power. Is this power plenary or limited? If the latter, how and by what authority is it limited and what are the limitations? The first question is susceptible of a ready answer; the second is one of difficulty.

"The power is subject to limitations imposed both by international law and by the terms and implications of the Constitution. The limitations of the first class arise from certain fundamental principles of the law of nations essentially analogous to what is called in municipal law 'public policy.'

"The freedom of international contract is limited by these principles as the freedom of private contract is limited by this policy. And precisely as public policy is more or less elastic, these principles are more or less elastic and expand and contract in response to the prevailing opinions of the times.

"It is true in one sense that nations may make with one another such contracts as they please, but, nevertheless certain stipulations which are opposed to international principles and policies are unlawful. A treaty may not require the doing of something undeniably contrary to morality or justice.

"Thus, a treaty requiring one of the contracting parties without cause to break a treaty obligation due to a third party would be clearly obnoxious to the plainest principles of international morality, and it is impossible to concede that the authority to make such a treaty is within the legitimate power of any treaty-making agency.

"The same would be true of a treaty which undertook to re-establish the slave trade, to control the use of the sea, that common international highway, or to invade and subjugate another independent and unoffending nation.

Constitution Limits All Treaties.

"Theoretically, the United States might be bound by the obligations of a treaty under the law of nations, from which it would be absolved under the Constitution. Since, however, foreign Governments in dealing with us must look into the Constitution sufficiently, at least, to see what political agencies have the treaty-making power, it is not without reason to maintain that they will also be bound to take notice of the limitations upon the authority of these agencies, in analogy to a similar principle in the law of agency which denies the liability of the principal for his agent's acts, beyond the known or apparent scope of the latter's authority.

"If a treaty should be concluded with the United States making disposition of exclusively internal affairs, undoubtedly it would be invalid, as an attempt to deal with matters not the subject of treaty with a foreign power. Such a treaty would be either a specious subterfuge or an intolerable and inadmissible interference on the part of another nation with our domestic concerns.

"When the Constitution directs that an act shall be done only in a particular way, it may not be stipulated for in a treaty if that involve the doing of it in another and different way; as, for example, an appropriation of money from the Treasury, since the Constitution provides that 'no money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law.' However, a treaty stipulation for the payment of money, although requiring Congressional action, will ordinarily constitute a moral obligation upon Congress to enact the necessary legislation. Such a treaty is obligatory though not effective.

"Clearly it would not be competent by treaty to change the form of government or usurp functions of the Constitution-making power or alter the nature or structure of the government, or the objects for which it was formed. Such action would constitute a gratuitous intrusion upon the purely internal affairs of the nation; therefore, a subject outside the scope of international negotiation and agreement. There is, however, nothing in the Constitution which specifically prohibits such a treaty.

The States and the Treaty Power.

"May the treaty-making power, without the concurrence of Congress, lawfully dispose of a matter which, by the Constitution, is committed to the jurisdiction of that body? We have seen that an attempt by treaty to appropriate money from the Treasury would not be operative; but this does not quite answer the question, since that may result not from the fact that the affirmative power to appropriate money belongs to Congress but from the fact that the Constitution clearly requires that no money shall be drawn from the Treasury in any other way.

"Now, in one sense, it is quite correct to say that no essential power can be taken from a State in furtherance of the treaty-making power. A treaty stipulation to the effect that the State should no longer have the power to enact laws to safeguard the public health, for example, would be utterly void, just as an act of Congress so providing would be utterly void.

"But a State statute enacted under this police power, which conflicts with a treaty provision on the same subject concededly valid in other respects, must yield to the supremacy of the treaty just as it must in similar circumstances yield to the supremacy of an act of Congress passed in pursuance, let us say, of the authority to regulate commerce.

Nation Holds Power of Enforcement.

"The powers reserved to the States are not reserved against the powers of the United States, but in harmony with and in subordination to every such power. The tenth amendment read in connection with the supremacy clause can mean nothing else.

"If an American citizen should suffer outrage at the hands of a mob in Devonshire or the County Cork, we should look to London for satisfaction. If an Englishman be similarly maltreated in Maine or Colorado, it is incomprehensible that Washington may not be held internationally accountable.

"Concede the theory of State supremacy, however, and the treaty rights of a foreigner may be grossly violated by the action or through the neglect of a State without remedy or redress—the nation taking refuge behind the claim of State sovereignty, and the State escaping because it is not an international person nor bound by the treaty.

"The suggestion is not fanciful. In 1880 certain Chinese, resident in Colorado, were, because of their race, brutally assaulted and murdered and their property destroyed by a mob. The Secretary of State, replying to the Chinese Minister, asserted the utter helplessness of the National Government in the matter. The same thing occurred in the case of certain Italians who were the victims of mob violence in Louisiana.

"But it is not true that the National Government is thus powerless to vindicate its treaty obligations. It is the Government of a completely sovereign nation. If not, the weaknesses of the Confederation were exposed and denounced in vain; and the declared purpose of the Constitution 'to form a more perfect Union' has failed of realization in one of its most vital phases."

$55,553 GIVEN FOR FUND TO AID THE 100 NEEDIEST

LAST CHRISTMAS APPEAL

NAVY MEN SEND A GIFT

Call It "Small Recompense" for New York's Hospitality—Woman Gives a Home to a Child.

Contributions for New York's Hundred Neediest Cases yesterday were $8,746.41, bringing the total this year to $55,553.06. One of the largest contributions received by THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday was $200.65, accompanied by the following letter:

Officer Material School for the Pay Corps,
Princeton, N. J., Dec. 21, 1918.

THE NEW YORK TIMES: The Fourth Battalion of the Officer Material School for the Pay Corps, (United States Navy,) Princeton, N. J., takes pleasure in inclosing a check for two hundred dollars and sixty-five cents ($200.65) as their contribution for THE NEW YORK TIMES Christmas Fund for the "One Hundred Neediest Cases."

All of the men in the Fourth Battalion have spent much time in New York City during their recent stay at the Pelham Bay naval training camp, and feel that this contribution to the Christmas Fund is but small recompense for the hospitality shown them in New York. Very truly yours,

R. F. PRUDDEN,
H. F. QUIRIN, } Committee.
E. BERANDE,

The gifts received so far this year are within less than $7,000 of the total contributions for the Hundred Neediest Cases last year, when $62,103.47 was raised. The fund last year provided for the Hundred Neediest Cases and forty supplemental cases of the same nature, with some to spare, which was used to aid others whose stories were scarcely less appealing. In all 872 persons were aided through the present year by the contributions of 1917.

Many of the recent contributors have asked that their gifts should be used for the benefit of other families, similarly destitute and grief-stricken, after the Hundred Neediest Cases had been provided for, and the total now insures that many other unfortunate families and helpless children will be aided. One contributor wrote yesterday in a letter accompanying a gift to the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor:

"If funds are coming in readily for the Hundred Neediest Cases, use my check for the hundred and first. Why not help two hundred needy cases, appealing to boys and girls to help needy boys and girls of their own age?"

The Hundred Neediest Cases are striking examples of the misfortunes and threatened tragedies in the many hundreds of other cases from which they have been selected. Many of these other cases are already receiving help. Specific contributions received for given cases, after they have been fully provided for, are now being used, always with the consent of the giver, for other families outside of the list.

Some of the families on the list of the Hundred Neediest have not been fully cared for by gifts expressly intended for them, and specific contributions for them will be used for them, but money sent generally to the Hundred Neediest Cases is to be used in many cases, with the permission of the contributors, to increase the list of needy families receiving help. All of the hundred cases, whose needs are not met by specified contributions, will share in the general fund.

Distress in Wake of Epidemic.

The sum of $62,103.47, given last year by 8,500 TIMES readers, will have to be increased considerably this year, if the individuals receiving help are to number 872, as they did last year. The increased cost of the necessaries of life require this. It has to be greatly increased if the relief is to bear as great a proportion to the need as in 1917. The havoc wrought by influenza and pneumonia among poor families is responsible for this. There has never been a time in the city's history when so many mothers and helpless children were suddenly rendered destitute by the death of the bread-winner.

This is the last day when gifts can be made in time to bring happiness and hope into stricken households on Christmas Day. The number of visits that a big, generous Santa Claus makes tomorrow to sick and sorrowful homes depends on the size and multitude of the contributions sent today.

Many contributions were received yesterday in the form of collections taken in schools and among groups of employes. Alabama was a new State represented in contributions to the Hundred Neediest cases yesterday by a gift of $5 from Norman E. Heldreth. A gift of $100 came yesterday from Charleston, S. C., accompanied by the following:

"Under instructions from our senior, W. Gordon McCabe, Jr., of Charleston, S. C., we inclose our check for $100 as his contribution to your Hundred Neediest Cases to be used as you see fit."

One of the large contributions received yesterday by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor came from a man whose family twenty years ago was in such plight that it would certainly have been among the Hundred Neediest Cases had the appeal been started that long ago. He was the oldest of a family of eight, seven young children and their mother, recently left destitute by the sudden death of the father.

The children would have been scattered among institutions but for the help of this organization, and the mother, broken-hearted and deprived of familiar, affectionate contact with her children, would probably have lost hope. But the family was aided and kept together until the children, one after another, were old enough to work, and the group was soon not only self-supporting but prosperous. The whole family is well-to-do and the oldest son, who made the contribution yesterday, is wealthy.

Sentiments of Contributors.

Some of the letters accompanying contributions to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday were as follows:

Lewis H. Allen—Enclosed please find check for $3, representing contribution of the Primary Class of the First Congregational Sunday School of Flushing, to be applied to Case No. 53.

Monroe Froelich—Enclosed please find check for $25 collected at luncheon today by the F. E. A. Club. Will you be good enough to kindly use same for any of the Hundred Neediest Cases.

The De Laval Separator Company: "Will you please use this for your Neediest Cases Fund, where you think it will do the most good? The New York office employes of the De Laval Company had a '500 party' on Dec. 14 to raise money for Xmas boxes for wounded soldiers, but as we made quite a little more than was expected, we decided to use it in this way."

Charles W. Clark: "Inclosed herein please find my check to your order for $8, the proceeds of which will you kindly use toward the relief of the Hundred Neediest Cases, as published in your paper, this being a small contribution from the employes of this office?"

W. F. McClelland: "At the request of Mrs. Simon Guggenheim, I am inclosing herewith a check for $100, as a personal contribution from Mrs. Guggenheim to the fund for New York City's Hundred Neediest Cases. In making this remittance, Mrs. Guggenheim wishes me to say that it affords her pleasure to be of assistance in this splendid work."

Mrs. A. F. Rickest, Scranton, Penn.: "I read in last Sunday's paper about all the needy. Please accept $2 for the largest family that is poor. I am not a rich person, but God has blessed us with enough to eat and wear, and my husband has his health, which I praise God for."

Rose, Dorothy, and Louise Blumgardt, 330 West 102d Street: "Instead of bringing a Christmas tree to my sisters and myself, wish that you would use the inclosed money ($28) for little Doris, Case 42."

Janet R. Shriner, Bolivar, Ohio: "I see by a recent paper that the little girl cases are getting most of the attention, so I would like to have the $3 devoted to the boys especially, as I am the mother of two boys, I'd like to help some other boy along. However, you are at liberty to use this small sum as you see fit."

Charles A. Hull, 66 Leonard Street: "I think I have been fortunate in being able to contribute at least a little something to your One Hundred Neediest Cases ever since you started this excellent charity, and I am happy to once more be able to inclose my small check at Christmas time and will ask you to apply it to the particular needy case 17, which you have so well described in this morning's issue of your paper."

Mrs. F. E. Stanton, Glen Ridge, N. J.—I am sending you a check of $8 from my three little children, as they wish to use their Liberty bond interest to help some of the little children of The Hundred Neediest Cases. They would like you to apply their mite to the least popular child's case.

Betty Herzog, 3,495 Broadway—Please accept inclosed from a litle girl who would like you to apply it to helping any one of the 100 Neediest Cases.

Miss Dorothy Darling, 507 West 170th Street—It is not necessary for me to wish you lots of success in your good work. The spirit of the season and the spirit of kindliness will prompt the people of New York to give, and give generously, and let us hope that the poor of this city will enjoy this Christmas more than ever.

Some of the contriubtors sending gifts to the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor wrote as follows:

"TIMES Reader"—Inclosed find check for $75 in response to the special TIMES appeal of last Sunday. The contribution has been increased this year on account of this higher cost of everything.

"Anonymous"—This check represents interest on Liberty bonds, and I am sure that I cannot make any better use than to send it for the poor mother in Case 53.

The following letter was received yesterday from Theodore W. Hanigan, Financial Secretary of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, which has received fewer contributions than the other organizations:

Dec. 23, 1918.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Such unprecedented interest has been aroused this year in the needy cases published in THE TIMES that I feel a few lines to you at this time would be in order.

The help actually given is not limited to money contributions, but includes daily offers of food, clothing, and toys for the afflicted families, invitations to Christmas dinner, offers of adoption for orphans, &c.

One of the gratifying features of the campaign is that a large number of people throughout the greater city and from several distant States have sent in contributions for Brooklyn cases, thus recognizing that in charity matters there should be no such artificial boundary as the East River. It is to be hoped that more people will contribute to the bureau's cases during the remainnig days of the campaign, as the amount thus far received is not at all in proportion to the need.

The bureau is the third oldest organization of its kind in the United States, and perhaps the most comprehensive of all in the scope of its work. Its helping hand reaches out to the poor, the sick, the crippled, the blind, the tuberculous, the aged, the infirm—in fact, there is no phase of human distress or misery which appeals in vain for aid. The bureau's work is supported entirely by voluntary contributions, and the sixteen family stories published were selected from several hundred others of almost equal need. Very sincerely yours,

THEO. W. HANIGAN,
Financial Secretary.

Gives Home to a Child.

One woman, who read the Hundred Neediest Cases, called at the State Charities Aid Association and said that her contribution was to be that of giving a home to a child. Instead of picking out the rosiest and prettiest, she took up a crying and under nourished child, who happened to be in the rooms of the association, quieted it and took it home where her own three little children were waiting enthusiastically for the newcomer.

"I haven't any money to spare," the woman told the workers of the association, "but I have plenty of clothing that my own babies have outgrown, and it is no trouble at all to take care of a baby. What I wanted was one that needed plenty of care."

The contributions have taken all sorts of forms besides money. Clothing and toys have been the most popular. Susan, the little girl in Case 39, who loved music, is now receiving free music lessons from a woman who read about her.

Gifts can be made for the "Hundred Neediest Cases" to THE NEW YORK TIMES direct or to the charitable organization which selected the cases as among the neediest. Widows for whom help is asked are only those who are ineligible for State pensions. The associations reporting the cases are as follows:

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street. Telephone, Gramercy 7040.

The Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street. Telephone, Gramercy 4066.

The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 95 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. Telephone, Main 8200.

DAY'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO FUND FOR NEEDIEST

Contributions for the Hundred Neediest Cases yesterday amounted to $8,746.41, of which $4,344.15 was sent directly to THE NEW YORK TIMES, the rest going to the four charitable organizations having the cases in charge. The contributions were received as follows:

TYPES OF NEEDY CASES WHERE AID IS URGENT

The cases, which have received comparatively few direct contributions, which are printed below, are presented as types of hundreds of other cases from which the Hundred Neediest Cases were selected.

For several years past readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES have taken care of the Hundred Neediest Cases and a good many more after that. This year the contributions so far received have assured full provision for all of the hundred cases and for some others. The number of additional cases to be provided for will be determined by the size and number of contributions received from now on. There are many other families, besides those whose stories have been printed, for whom a Christmas miracle will be worked by the contributions of TIMES readers.

Contributions sent specifically for these cases will be used for them until full provision is made for them in this manner. The stories of misfortune are types of many others, outside of the Hundred Neediest who are in need of help.

CASE 40.

Their Struggle Almost Hopeless.

[Reported by Charity Organization Society.]

The struggle that Mrs. B. has been making to support her two little ones—Olga, a golden-haired, blue-eyed child, and her six-year-old boy—has become almost a hopeless task. Her husband left her without means when he died of consumption. She has been working in a restaurant, earning $8 and $10 a week. She succeeded fairly well until the influenza came, and she and both the children fell ill. She is threatened with consumption, and it may be many months before she can take up her task as breadwinner. Total amount needed, $420.

CASE 84.

Another Insane Father.

[Reported by Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.]

Mrs. Mary K. needs help in caring for her three little children, because their father has lost his mind and been taken to an insane asylum. There is a chance that the family may be held together and supported by the mother later on, but they will need $500 in the year which they are facing.

CASE 89.

Wants Little Family Back.

[Reported by Brooklyn Bureau of Charities.]

Mr. V. died suddenly of influenza, leaving his wife with six children and another coming. Mrs. V. and two of the children have had the same disease. The mother will not be able to work for many weeks. Already the mother has had to see her three eldest children—little girls of 10 and 7 and a nine-year-old boy—taken to institutions. She hopes they are gone for only a little while. If she is given help for six months, she can help to draw her family together again. $300 is asked for her.

Taken from Drunken Father.

[Reported by State Charities Aid Association.]

When Peter Wells's mother died she left him and his two older brothers to the care of a drunken father whose treatment was such that the courts had to take them away from him. Peter is 14, a frail child with a weak heart who needs constant care. He has been placed in a good boarding home and receives medical care. He will need education, for he is intellectually bright. These things must be paid for, and Peter has nothing at all. Total amount needed $208.

CASE 28.

A Mother Overcome by Misfortune.

Mrs. S. was left to support her three children when her husband died. She worked hard at the impossible task. An unheard of temptation came in her way when a woman offered to pay $5 a day to have her nine-month-old baby act in the movies. She accepted and sent nine-year-old Jeanne along to make sure it was properly looked after. Jeanne was sent on an errand and the woman and baby disappeared. The woman landed in the Tombs and then in an insane asylum. The baby, badly treated by the crazy woman, was returned home ill and it died. The mother broke down completely. She and Jeanne and another daughter, six-year-old Grace, are destitute. They can get a fresh start if they are helped through this year. They need $720.

Influenza Cripples a Family.

[Reported by Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.]

The head of this family was committed to an insane asylum last Summer. The mother went to work and moved with her children, of 6, 4, and 2 years old, into a basement tenement. They were all attacked by influenza. If the mother can rest and build up her strength she can undertake at least a part of the burden of supporting them. For the year they need $500.

CASE 23.

Girl in Desperate Straits.

Pauline, a girl of 18 years, is in desperate straits. She was left fatherless and motherless as a child. She had a good home for years with a foster mother, but when Pauline was still a child the foster mother died. She had no one to protect her and keep a good influence over her when she entered upon early life. She will soon be a mother. She will do well, nevertheless, it is reported, if she is helped through the hard days just ahead of her. Three hundred dollars is asked.

Widow and Fatherless Need Aid.

[Reported by Brooklyn Bureau of Charities.]

Mr. U. died last Spring after years of ill-health, leaving his delicate wife with three children, 11, 7, and 3 years old. Another child was born soon after the father's death. She has worked hard for them, but her health gave way completely. It will be months before she can take up the battle again. Five hundred dollars is asked for them for the coming year.

P. C. HEWITT WED DEC. 21.

His Marriage to Mrs. Maryon J. Bruguiere Held in Paterson, N. J.

Peter Cooper Hewitt and Mrs. Maryon J. Bruguiere were married last Saturday in the Third Presbyterian Church, at Paterson, N. J., by the Rev. O. M. Demcott. The formal announcement of their marriage appears today among the wedding notices of THE TIMES.

When the report was published last week that Mr. Hewitt was divorced and was to wed Mrs. Bruguiere it caused widespread interest, owing to the prominence of Mr. Hewitt as an electrical inventor and a member of one of New York's notable families. The first report was that the marriage had already taken place.

The first Mrs. Hewitt sailed for England last week on the Adriatic to engage in war work. No disclosure concerning the divorce of Mr. Hewitt and his first wife had been made. They were married on April 27, 1887.

Mr. Hewitt's second wife is the daughter of the late Tunstall T. Andrews of Virginia. Her first husband was Dr. Pedar Bruguiere, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bruguiere of New York and Newport.

WEDS LIEUT. TILLINGHAST.

Miss Elizabeth K. Osborne Marries Aviator in St. Bartholomew's Chapel

The wedding of Lieutenant Frederick Tillinghast, Aviation Corps, U. S. A., a son of Mrs. Frederick Tillinghast and the late Mr. Tillinghast of Albany, and Miss Elizabeth Kathlyn Osborne, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Osborne of New York, took place at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church, the Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks officiating.

The bride wore a hand-embroidered taffeta gown trimmed with silver lace, and instead of a veil wore only a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair, and carried orchids and lilies.

SCHOOLBOY RACQUET WIELDERS IN FIRST ROUND OF INDOOR TENNIS TOURNAMENT

TAYLOR IS WINNER IN OPENING MATCH

ANDERSON IN GOOD FORM

Long Island Titleholder Also Victorious in Early Round at the Seventh Regiment Armory.

The national indoor tennis tournaments for boys and juniors started with a lively display of the court game at the 7th Regiment Armory yesterday. The field in the junior event includes the best of the youthful racquet wielders who established their tennis reputations last season. Yale, Columbia, New York Universities, and many high schools are represented. Harold L. Taylor of Brooklyn Prep, who was the runner-up in the event to Edmund H. Hendrickson of Amherst last season, and also played the record match in the national championships, is regarded as one of the strongest contenders for the title this year. He got under way yesterday in his first round match with an easy victory over Michael E. Macksoud, a promising player of Boys' High School, Brooklyn.

Taylor had the match in hand from the start, and won, 6—1, 6—0, without being forced to extend himself. He played a back court game most of the time, and was only forced to the net a few times. Taylor's service was too much for his opponent to handle, and his placements were swift and accurate. Taylor will have stiffer opposition as the tournament progresses, as several of the juniors played the sort of tennis yesterday which will make Taylor go at top speed to win.

Frank T. Anderson of the Kings County Tennis Club of Brooklyn, who won the Long Island title from a field of veterans last season, also had no trouble in his opening match with Henry Brunie of Dwight School. Anderson displayed his usual speed, and won the match, 6—0, 6—1. Young Mr. Anderson showed his usual dashing net game, volleying cleanly and well for frequent aces. Anderson forced the pace during the entire match and completely smothered Burnie's game, the latter being unable to handle the swift returns of his rival with any degree of certainty.

In the opening set Burnie failed to get even a single game. It was at once evident that he would be only a weak contender against his youthful but more experienced antagonist, who played such superlative tennis during the outdoor season last Summer. There was a dash and crispness to Anderson's play yesterday which was a reflection of his Summer ability. Without having had any great experience on the board courts, he was still able to attune himself to the situation admirably, and his own severe service showed itself as a powerful factor in his first match.

There were several close matches in the boys' event. Stanley Noble of Horace Mann was extended to three sets in defeating W. M. Warner of Choate School. After taking the first set 6—0, Warner rallied in the second, and won after a hard set, 7—5. The third set was a real battle, and finally went to Noble, 8—6. Charles C. Vail, a Brooklyn lad, had his hands full winning from L. Rouillion of Horace Mann. Vail took the first set easily at 6—1, and then Rouillion turned the tables and won the second by the same score. Vail recovered in the third set and won, 6—2.

The summaries:

National Indoor Championship, Junior Singles.—First Round—H. B. Kaltenbach, Jr., Princeton, defeated Shepard Alexander, 6—1, 6—2; Louis B. Dailey, Jr., East Orange, defeated D. W. Herrmann, New York University, 6—2, 6—1; Harold L. Taylor, Brooklyn Prep, defeated M. E. Macksoud, Boys' High, 6—1, 6—0; Frank T. Anderson, Kings County T. C., defeated Henry Brunie, Dwight School, 6—0, 6—1; Gerald Emerson, St. John's Academy, defeated E. P. Beldram, Mercersburg Academy, 6—0, 6—2; Warren S. Osgood, Pleasantville, defeated Joseph B. ## RUNNERS MUSTERED OUT.

Giorgio, Kaufman, and Gross Back from Pelham Bay.

Joe Giorgio, local distance runner, who has been stationed at the Pelham Bay Naval Training Station, was yesterday mustered out of the service. Giorgio will probably renew his allegiance to the Paulist A. C., the organization he was affiliated with when he entered the training station.

Lou Kaufman and Herman Gross, both of the Brooklyn A. A., have also been restored to civilian life. Both were stationed at Pelham Bay. Kaufman is the holder of the metropolitan junior cross-country championship.

Silk O'Loughlin Buried.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 23.—The funeral of Francis "Silk" O'Loughlin, the veteran American League umpire, who died in Boston on Friday, was held this morning from Blessed Sacrament Church here and was attended by a large number of friends and admirers of the well known baseball umpire. Among the floral offerings was a wreath from Ban Johnson, President of the American League.

ENGLISH FOG SLOWS UP YANKEE BOXERS

Adverse Climatic Conditions Handicap Our Pugilists at Tourney for King's Trophy.

The assortment of American boxers who represented Uncle Sam's navy at the interallied boxing tournament at Albert Hall in London, for the King's Trophy, returned on the Cedric yesterday, all highly pleased at the reception they had received in England, and all more than glad to get home.

In the party were Pal Moore, the hero of the tournament, who won a decision over the flyweight champion and British idol, Jimmy Wilde, and also Willie Meehan of San Francisco, Ritchie Mitchell of Milwaukee, Andre Anderson, Chicago; Cal Delaney, Cleveland; Augie Ratner, New York; Otis Bryant, Chicago; Denny O'Keefe, Chicago; Marty Cross, New York; Jack Heinan, Chicago; George Cheney, Baltimore; Eddie Kane, who managed the trip; Mike and Tom Gibbons, and several others.

Although the boxers of the British Army won the trophy with 50 points, while the Yanks finished with 39, the defeated boxers have only words of praise for their English adversaries. According to Eddie Kane, the manager; Marty Cross, and several of the other boxers, the greatest handicaps the Yankees had to contend with were the climatic conditions and the system of scoring used by the English referees—a system which was entirely new to the Yankee boxers.

The dampness and fog which the boxers encountered on the other side resulted in most of the party being laid up with colds and slight attacks of influenza. Willie Meehan, the fat boy from the Pacific Coast, was a victim of the weather from the start.

When he landed yesterday he said: "I have been half frozen ever since I left here on Nov. 19, and I never expect to get warm again."

Going over the boxers had a rough trip, and, after landing at Brest, they went over the Channel to Plymouth, experiencing even worse weather than they did across the Atlantic. They were quartered in a naval barrack at Chatham, where they experienced more damp, foggy weather. The boxers say that this took all the "ginger" out of the fighters, and many of them were not able to perform at all.

Pal Moore, the Memphis bantamweight, who won from Wilde, was naturally the hero of the trip. According to the English system of scoring, a miss counts heavily against a man, and Moore was able to make Wilde miss when he started many of his long-range blows. Moore's companions say that he won through his remarkable cleverness at infighting and the rapidity with which he beat a tattoo of blows on Wilde's ribs when scrapping at close range. Many of the other boxers were penalized for their persistent clinching, which is practiced in the American ring in a way not tolerated in other countries.

Coming across on the Cedric the American boxers held a ring tournament for the wounded soldiers on board. The bouts were fought last Thursday in a storm of rain and sleet. The wounded men sat under protecting canvass on the deck while the boxers, clad in sweaters and wearing earmuffs, boxed with the hail beating down upon them. It was a great treat for the wounded men, however, and the boxers were loudly cheered.

Including the boxers who went from this side, there were thirty-six navy men entered in the tournament, thirty-four bluejackets, and two marines. Many of them never had a chance to box, however because they were under the weather.

There was a lot of gossip about Wilde coming here for a return match with Moore. It is expected that if the English champion is out of the service next Spring he will come here. One of Wilde's representatives is now in this country arranging with Jack Curley, the boxing promoter, for the trip of the English champion.

OPEN SEASON APRIL 23.

Leagues Agree on Date to Begin 140-Game Schedule.

The baseball season of 1919 will begin on Wednesday, April 23, according to the agreement made by President John A. Heydler of the National League and President Ban Johnson of the American League at a conference in this city. The original plan was to open the season of 140 games on May 1, but the National League found that their schedule would be somewhat crowded, so the league leaders decided on April 23. The season will end on or about Oct. 1, which will bring the world's series into seasonable weather.

President Heydler has appointed Barney Dreyfuss a member of the Schedule Committee, and these two National League representatives will meet President Johnson at French Lick Springs on Jan. 3 to draw up the schedules. After this meeting, the two league Presidents will go to Cincinnati for the annual meeting of the National Commission on Jan. 6.

President Heydler said last night that the National League had agreed to the date of the joint meeting here on Jan. 16. The National League club owners will meet here on Jan. 15 to formulate the plans which are to come before that conclave.

It is known that President Heydler will go to Cincinnati to suggest the National League's plan of having a neutral Chairman of the commission. President Heydler does not anticipate any trouble with the American League over the appointment of a new Chairman in place of August Herrmann.

Baseball men believe that Herrmann will resign before the annual meeting and that the election of a new Chairman may be postponed until after the joint meeting of the leagues here.

Waldron Defeats Moss.

William Waldron defeated Edward Moss at English billiards last night at Doyle's Academy by a score of 250 to 151 in twenty-four innings. This victory places Waldron in a tie with Jordan for first place, both having won four games and lost none. George La Rue defeated Harry Downs in a three-cushion match, 25 to 21, while H. Rogers was taking the measure of Dr. E. J. Birs by a score of 25 to 19.

APPEL IS WINNER IN SQUASH TOURNEY

Harvard Club Player Defeats Clapp in Straight Sets in Final Round.

John W. Appel of the Harvard Club won the annual open handicap squash tournament of the National Squash Tennis Association, which was concluded yesterday at the Columbia Club. Appel, playing at minus ten aces, defeated E. J. Clapp, Yale Club, who competed at plus two aces, in straight sets. The scores were 18—13, 15—8, and 15—8.

Appel clearly outclassed his opponent in all three games and won without being really extended. The Harvard Club star left no room for doubt as to his superiority over the Eli player. Except in the final game Appel was not forced any marked degree. He outplayed Clapp without extra exertion in the first two games, and in the final game he brought into play brilliant flashes of his true form.

Clapp, after playing impressively, although unproductively, in the opening game, tired badly in the two succeeding games. At the end he showed clearly that he had been through a decidedly stiff encounter. Appel, on the other hand, appeared to be fresh.

Clapp's best showing came in the opening game. The Eli racquet wielder for five hands showed the way in actual scoring. At the end of the fifth hand Clapp had eight markers and Appel was plus one. The Harvard Club player pulled up in the next hand when he gathered in eight aces. Appel then experienced an erratic session, and in his next three hands Clapp got five aces, while Appel accounted for four, and the game was set at 13 all. Appel then recovered himself and took the game.

The second game found Clapp completely overwhelmed. He made but one point, which came rather unexpectedly in the third hand. Appel, from the fifth inning, made a total of twenty-one points, while Clapp's hands for the same periods showed a consistent string of zeros.

HANDICAPS AT PINEHURST.

Three Classes Compete in Contest Against Bogey.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 23.—The Tin Whistles divided themselves into three handicap classes at Pinehurst today, the occasion being a contest against bogey. The Class A prize was won by Donald Parson, of Youngstown, who led his class at 5 up with an 8 handicap, and who also turned in a net 72 as the best net score of his set. Parson's nearest competitor for the Class A prize was C. L. Becker, of Philadelphia, handicap 8, who finished 2 up.

Rice Wins from Spear.

Julian Rice, several times a contender for the national Class B 18.2 balkline billiard title, defeated George Spear, local Class C titleholder, last night in a balkline exhibition at the Brooklyn Academy by a score of 175 to 97. The contest went twenty-five innings, Rice making an average of 7, with a high run of 28. The contest was held for the benefit of the Save-a-Home Fund. The sum of $101.10 was realized.

PLAN BIG MEET IN SWEDEN.

Athletes from All Nations May Compete There in 1921.

An invitation to the United States to have a picked team of the leading athletes of the country journey to Sweden for the purpose of participating in an elaborate international athletic meet is expected within the near future. It became known yesterday that the Swedish athletic authorities are planning the competition for 1921. The occasion will be the 300th anniversary of the City of Goteborg, which is the second largest city of Sweden. Carl Benson, former amateur wrestling champion, made this announcement upon his return to this country after an extended sojourn in Sweden.

According to Benson, no definite campaign has been adopted toward bringing about a realization of the proposed meet, but it is expected that preliminary plans for the meet will be adopted soon. The games are to be part of a great celebration. It is planned to erect a stadium comparable to the one at Stockholm, where the Olympic games of 1912 were held. Under the tentative plans all the leading athletes of the world will be invited to compete.

Ernie Hjortberg, formerly well known as a local trainer of athletes, has been engaged to prepare the athletes of Goteborg, according to Benson. Hjortberg was, until recently, coach of Sweden's Olympic athletes.

Gardner Defeats Romberg.

Gus Gardner defeated C. Romberg by a score of 150 to 97 last night in the N. A. A. B. P. Metropolitan Class C 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament at the Broadway Academy. Gardner made a high run of 20, and averaged 3 12-46. Romberg's highest run was 20, and his average 2 2-46.

PEACE BRINGS BOOM IN CHRISTMAS TRADE

GEMS IN LARGE DEMAND

War's End Releases Many Buyers from Self-Imposed Restraints—Fur Trade Yearns for Snow.

The consensus yesterday among the heads of retail stores, including jewelers, booksellers, department stores, musical instrument dealers, furriers, and other concerns offering articles of apparel was that the volume of shopping this Christmas season was greater than last year and, in many instances, greater than that of any one of three or four years. The improvement was ascribed in the main to the signing of the armistice and the fair weather of the last five weeks. The shopping thoroughfares have been crowded this year as hardly ever before.

"Although the actual volume of our business this year is unknown and will not be available until after the first of the year," said a Fifth Avenue department store manager yesterday, "it is safe to say that it is very large and greater than last year. Of course, the season started much earlier than in previous years. That was due to the publicity obtained by the Government through the newspapers for the official suggestion that the people shop early. The people, appealed to in this way, saw that the idea was good and promptly took it up, with the result that the shopping season has stretched over a longer period, and this has been of great advantage to employers, employes, and the public itself.

"Then, too, an additional cause for the great volume of shopping has been the excellent weather of late. As far as the character of the articles purchased is concerned, it seems that the people have tended to the purchase of more practical merchandise. Since the signing of the armistice, however, the demand has increased for more elaborate gowns, hats, dress accessories, house gowns, lingerie, &c. As peace is in sight, the people feel that they can safely spend their money more freely. The sales have been steady from the start of the Christmas season, and the department stores are pleased with the result."

A Fifth Avenue jeweler said yesterday that business was brisk. "It has never been better," he declared. "People are buying the more expensive goods that they put off purchasing while the war was on. The signing of the armistice made a great difference to the jewelers, for it was the signal for the people to buy the jewels they had had in mind for a long time.

"However there has been a scarcity of diamonds, pearls, emeralds, and other stones. In fact it seems that the war has given an impetus to the purchase of jewelry of this character. The prices are firmer than ever and they will go much higher. In some of the European countries where there has been great unrest, as in Russia and Germany, the people with a good deal of money have invested in jewels rather than in bonds or they have converted their bonds into jewelry. In this way they were able to leave their country when it was necessary and carry all their valuable possessions in a jewel bag. They knew that jewels had a certain value, more or less stable, with an upward tendency, while stocks, bonds and securities fluctuated. There were a great many investments in jewels for that reason."

One of the largest booksellers in the city said the retail business in books had apparently been larger and better than last year and also that there has been a distinct change in the character of the books sold. The sale of the serious war book, he said, was dead and the only books on the war that seemed to have any great sale were those that had a love interest running through them, novels on the war, and books of war humor.

"This year apparently nobody is buying the serious war books," he added. "Whereas last year the war book tables were crowded, today they are void of purchasers. A good deal of biography and history is being bought and the war has given a great impetus to the sale of books on psychic research and books dealing with life after death.

"Our impression also is that people are doing more buying rather than shopping. There seem to be more sales in proportion to the number of people who come in than ever before. The people seem to be out to buy, and not to just mix with the holiday crowd and look at the goods offered. As far as books are concerned, I would say that the people are buying, not extravagantly but well. The theory back of this condition seems to be that the people have not yet recaptured the old Christmas spirit. Formerly, with the snow on the ground at this season of the year people would love to drift around and mingle in the general crush and breathe the Christmas atmosphere, but this year conditions are different."

A lower Fifth Avenue bookseller said that the sales this season had been much ahead of those of any other year in the history of his concern. He said that immediately the armistice was signed business began to pick up, and had been breaking records ever since. Plays with a war element, as well as war poetry, were selling well, he added.

The sales of pianos and musical instruments are greater than in the last four years, according to an official of a large piano concern. "Our greatest difficulty," he said, "has been in obtaining stock. Owing to the reduction of output because of the war, prices for pianos and other musical instruments have gone up in proportion to the general increase in other articles, but the number of buyers has been greater than ever before, and they have been more discriminating, and yet at the same time more generous in their purchasing."

A leading furrier said that the sale of furs had been greater this season than last, and the outlook he characterized as very promising.

"Of course, furs have not received a great advertisement during the Christmas shopping season so far," he continued. "The weather has not been cold and there has not been a fall of snow. One snowfall at this time of year would send the demand for furs soaring. A man leaving his home this morning to buy something for his wife will spend his money in a jewelry store rather than at a furrier's. However, in spite of this, the sale of furs has been extremely satisfactory."

DOOR DELIVERY DROPPED.

Contemplated War Measure to Have Peace Time Consideration.

It was announced here yesterday that Director General of Railroads McAdoo, following a conference held in Washington, had decided not to proceed further with the proposed storedoor delivery service for New York, although all preparations for beginning the work had been completed when the armistice was signed. It was stated that the Director General contemplated the plan as a war measure, and that while he recognized the adaptability of the measure he felt that it should not be entered upon without a consideration from the standpoint of peace conditions.

The plan contemplated common use of privately-owned trucks for delivering merchandise brought to this port by steamships, or railroads, and deposited on piers or terminals. A truck driving up to a pier to leave goods would be "commandeered" and loaded with incoming merchandise consigned possibly to a dozen firms in a given zone. This truck would make these deliveries before returning to its owner for a load of outgoing merchandise.

J. C. Lincoln, manager of the Traffic Bureau of the Merchants' Association, said yesterday that while the association adhered to door delivery in principle, it objected to some features of the system proposed. The Traffic Club studied the system employed by other cities and reported in favor of a system adapted to this city's commerce. Many mercantile, as well as trucking interests, however, opposed any plan which aimed to pool the delivery of merchandise.

ORDER FOR CAPTAIN FINCH.

King George Confers It on the Baltic's Commander.

Captain William Finch of the White Star liner Baltic, which has just arrived from Liverpool, his friends here learned yesterday, went to London when he was at home three weeks ago to receive the Order of the British Empire from King George at Buckingham Palace.

Captain Finch said yesterday that the King shook hands with him in hearty naval fashion and thanked the merchant commander for the work he had done during the war.

The O. B. E., as it is called usually, is a gold cross with a round centre representing the rising sun and a medallion of Britannia, and is attached to a purple ribbon. Captain Finch was commander of the liner Arabic when she was torpedoed in 1915.

PRESIDENT SENDS THANKS.

Replies to Luncheon Message Upholding League of Nations.

Samuel T. Dutton, Secretary of the World's Court League, yesterday received a message of thanks from President Wilson, in reply to a message sent by those attending a luncheon of the league at the Yale Club last Saturday evening wishing the President "entire and effective success in your purpose to form" a League of Nations "such as will insure justice between nations and an enduring peace among men." President Wilson's message read:

"I warmly appreciate the message from fifty Americans and beg that you will thank them very warmly for the cheer they have given me."

Boston Reports More Influenza.

BOSTON, Dec. 23.—A total of 270 new influenza cases in this city in the last twenty-four hours was reported today, as compared with 137 cases in the twenty-four hours preceding. This increase is attributed in part to the fact that on Saturday the Health Commissioner sent circulars to physicians, directing attention to negligence in reporting communicable diseases. Dr. Woodward said today that he believed many more influenza cases in the city were still unreported.

Canada Allows Grain Exports.

MONTREAL, Dec. 23.—The Corn Exchange has been advised by the Department of Trade and Commerce of the removal of the restrictions on the exportation from Canada of all kinds of coarse grains.

Situations Wanted.

SALESMAN.—Selling privilege wanted, open territory on good article; my business takes me to all big cities, East and West, week in each city. Communicate F. J. Sheen, Flanders Hotel.

Commercial Paper.

Yesterday—6 per cent. for the best names.
Saturday—6 per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

Sales of gray goods were fairly large in this market yesterday, despite the nearness of the holiday. Both coarse and fine yarn cloths continued quiet, but among the printcloth sales put through during the day werde 39-inch 68-72s at 14½ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 12 cents, 38½-inch 64-56s at 11⅝ cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 10½ cents. The deliveries run through the remainder of this month and January.

More Rope Portieres Wanted.

Owing to the increased demand for rope portieres from stores selling popular priced merchandise, manufacturers of these goods are having much difficulty in filling the orders that are being received. The shortage of labor has affected this trade to such an extent that the output has been greatly reduced. In speaking of the labor situation, one of the manufacturers said that if it had been possible for him to obtain the necessary help he could have increased his sales at least 50 per cent.

Lamp Shades Going Well.

Despite the fact that silk lamp shades have been very popular this season, the line of metal lamps with glass shades is selling equally as well. The local stores bought large quantities of these goods for the holiday trade, and in the lamp departments of some of the larger stores the stocks have been turned over anywhere from two to three times during the last three months. Outside the city jewelry stores that are selling lamps of this kind are doing a good business, and in some instances they have duplicated their original orders.

Plans to Reduce the Price.

Before the armistice was signed, manufacturers of rag rugs were selling large quantities of these goods, which are very popular in rooms furnished with colonial furniture. During the past two months, however, there has been a very noticeable decrease in the sales. This is partly due to the fact that buyers have large stocks on hand, and are waiting for a drop in price before placing any more orders. In view of this, one of the manufacturers is making plans to reduce the price of his rugs so that he can unload his stocks rather than carry them over.

Will Not Hold Annual Sale.

The Upholstery Manufacturers' Association announces that the annual auction sale of surplus merchandise which is usually held during the month of January will not be held this year. A great deal of speculation has been indulged in wtih regard to the possibilities of an auction sale next month, and a good many inquiries have been made by upholstery buyers. Considering the conditions which exist among the manufacturers, including the shortage of yarns and the scarcity of labor, it has been impossible for firms in this line to maintain anything like their normal production.

Toy Stocks Wiped Out.

Between heavy orders taken early in the year and the insistent repeat demand that resulted from the large business done in this merchandise at retail, wholesale stocks of toys in this market are virtually wiped out. While much of the late demand has come from the smaller merchants, who were cautious buyers before the ending of the war, the business done with them of late is largely responsible for the present paucity of goods. Dolls are easier to get now, it is said, than almost any other variety of toy. This is not due to any lack of demand for them, but rather to the fact that manufacturers have been turning them out in a large way.

Much Fur Business Done.

While the weather of the last few days has put a check on the sale of furs of all kinds at wholesale, reports from various quarters of the trade indicate one of the most successful seasons yet experienced. The fact that the merchandise cost more than it ever has before in most cases, due to the advances in raw furs and labor, seemed to help business rather than hurt it. From all accounts the business done on fur coats, especially Hudson seal and natural muskrat, was very large, and rather overshadowed the demand for sets and separate pieces. Dark-colored furs had the call for the most part, though a great deal of business was also done on various garments of gray squirrel. Fine silver fox did well in certain quarters of the trade.

Fine Hosiery Sales Large.

Never in the history of the trade has there been a more active sale of fine silk hosiery for women than at this time, particularly in this city. An instance was cited yesterday of a local buyer who last April placed an order on a single variety of women's hose that totaled 1,000 dozen. Five hundred dozen of the goods were to be black and the other 500 dozen white and colored. Soon after the signing of the armistice the buyer tried to cancel this order, but without success. So great a rush of business developed about Dec. 1, however, that on Sunday he made inquiries of the manufacturer's local representative as to whether it would be possible for him (the buyer) to go to the mill that day and bring back merchandise to put on sale yesterday. The goods retailed at $3.50 a pair, and on Saturday at the close of business scarcely a dozen pairs remained to be sold.

Many Ostrich Novelties Shown.

Many novelties in ostrich trimmings for women's hats are now being shown here. Quills are in abundance, small and large, straight and curved, and light and dark. One variety is a broad quill with the flues drawn down tight, and the edge finished with a half-inch ostrich banding. Another type is a narrow quill curled in an undulating effect. Others are straight and have the ends curled. Bands of sand color ostrich are shown, being made of two flat pieces drawn over tightly, a wire edge holding the flues in place. Another novelty is a circle of narrow rows of looped American Beauty ostrich, from the outer edge of which radiate pieces of glycerned ostrich in soft, unusual effect. A cone-shaped ornament has strands of glycerined ostrich, in an aigrette effect, coming from the centre.

Spring Shoes Bought Freely.

With practically all of the representative shoe salesmen back from their initial Spring trips, a summary of the business they have turned in shows a larger volume booked than at this time a year ago. In all cases the dollars and cents totals are reported larger than for Spring, 1918, and in many instances the actual number of pairs sold also is larger. Particularly is this true in the case of men's shoes, both popular and high-priced. Since the signing of the armistice a marked increase in the call for men's fine shoes is reported, especially on the part of prominent retailers here. Excepting south of Mason and Dixon's line, a feature of the early business is the large proportion of men's high shoes sold. White buckskin shoes for men also have sold well for the Winter resort and regular trade.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Miss Ella Cockrell has resigned as buyer of infants' wear and muslin underwear for the Joske Brothers Company, San Antonio, Texas, and is no longer associated with the department store conducted by it.

Arthur L. Williams & Co. is the name of a new firm that has entered the waist manufacturing business at 303 Fifth Avenue. It is composed of Arthur L. Williams and Rose Weiss, both of whom have been connected with the waist trade for some time. M. S. Arnold is also associated with the concern.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

STRAIGHT EDGE BAKING CO. of 104 Lawrence St.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against this company by these creditors: David Coulter of Coulter, Bogert & Coulter, $2,481; Wood & Selick, $723, and George Orlove & Co., Inc., $615. It was alleged that the company permitted Procter & Gamble Distributing Company, a creditor, to issue execution for $425, on which a City Marshal has levied on the fixtures and advertised a sale for Dec. 26. Liabilities are $13,000 and assets $5,000. Judge Hand appointed Arthur Y. Dalziel receiver; bond $3,000.

HANDIN & CO., INC., furriers at 11 East Twenty-second Street.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against this company by these creditors: D. Schwartz, $464; D. E. Horwitz, $48, and R. Beck, $470. Assets are $5,000.

TOMASHOWER & NAGLER, stationers at 172 Ludlow Street.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against them by these creditors: Morris Lipkin, $25; Louis Wittlin, $200, and Yale Loeffer, $300. Liabilities are $13,000 and assets $4,000. They also made an assignment to J. Krantz Polikoff.

LOCKWOOD BROTHERS.—William D., John F., and George W. Lockwood, composing the firm of Lockwood Brothers, 114 South Street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $2,075 and assets of $1,823, consisting of accounts, $1,798, and office furniture, $25.

WILLIAM LOHMANN, a liquor dealer at 798 Second Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $6,705 and assets of $500; saloon fixtures, chattel mortgaged for $2,000 to a brewer. He abandoned the place on Oct. 1 last, and owes $3,500 on the unexpired lease.

L. GOODMAN & BROTHER, manufacturers of shirtwaists at 6 West Twentieth Street, have filed schedules showing liabilities of $18,781 and assets of $458 cash in bank and $100 paid on $1,000 Liberty bond, besides stock, fixtures, and accounts in the hands of the assignee.

LOUIS GOLDMAN, a jobber in cloaks and suits at 1,140 Broadway, has filed schedules showing liabilities of $14,752 and assets of $7,890, consisting of stock, $5,000; fixtures, $300; claim for damages, $2,000, and cash in bank, $90.

JACOB J. FURER, delicatessen dealer at 2,176 Eighth Avenue.—Miss Bertha Rembaugh has been appointed receiver.

CULLEN MOTOR TRUCKING CORP. of 1 Broadway, engaged in motor transportation and hauling, has made an assignment to Charles W. Walter. It was incorporated in 1918, and Otto Bertsch is Vice President.

SCHACK MANUFACTURING COMPANY, INC.—Judge Hand has confirmed a composition of the Schack Manufacturing Company, Inc., women's nesckwear, at 119 West Twenty-third Street, with creditors at 35 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents and 25 cents in notes at three, six, nine, twelve, and fifteen months. Liabilities were $27,783.

J. ITZKOWITZ & CO., cloaks and suits, at 30 West Thirty-first Street.—Judge Hand has confirmed a composition with creditors as 20 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents cash and 10 cents in notes at three and six months. Liabilities were $27,347.

Judge Hand, in the United States District Court yesterday, granted discharges to these bankrupts: Herbert Payne, 32 East Sixty-fourth Street, formerly in a motion picture business in California, liabilities $202,572; De Selding Bros., real estate agents and brokers, 128 Broadway, liabilities $60,355; New Art Lithographic Company, 318 West Thirty-ninth Street, liabilities $37,366; Henri Leschizner, as Maison Henri, wearing apparel, 2,089 Broadway; James Brown, men's furnishing goods, Mount Vernon; David C. Altemuss, as the Georgette Shop, women's apparel, 10 Church Street; Abraham Schwartz, installment peddler, 254 West 112th Street; Adolph Deutsch, salesman, 966 Fox Street; Max Kastner, restaurant worker, 611 West 145th Street; Philip Mitchell, clerk in a green goods market, 420 East Seventy-eighth Street; Artemus C. Plummer, clerk, 715 West Seventieth Street, and Gertrude M. Taafe, 54 East 179th Street.

On the Threshold

Business will expand. Sound investments will greatly enhance in value.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Local Traction Issues Recede and Rail Stocks Display Heaviness.

The promise of higher prices held forth in the stock market in early dealings yesterday failed to be borne out by subsequent transactions and the price list was rather weak, as far as stocks were concerned, at the close. Broadly speaking, quotations were irregular, and it was difficult to say whether any well defined influence was at work in the market. The movement of local traction securities again had an unfavorable influence, and the declines recorded, among both the stocks and bonds of this group, called attention once more to the financial situations of the concerns. Lehigh Valley and Wabash preferred A disturbed the railroad stock list by declining more than 2 points in the case of the former, and nearly 2 points in the case of the latter. Business was so dull that it could hardly be said that substantial selling pressure appeared anywhere, yet it was evident during the afternoon that railroad shares and also some of the metal issues were steadily in greater supply than the market could absorb without declines. A bright spot in the day's dealings was in the Liberty bond market, where an encouraging recovery occurred in all of the various issues. The 3½s quickly advanced more than a point, and several of the others showed gains in excess of a quarter point each. While it was too early, of course, to permit belief that liquidation among these Government issues was over for the time being, still the vigor of the rise was enough to promote encouragement that a large part of the urgent selling had been completed.

The metal markets continue to drift without consumers showing any active interest, while the producers have so far appeared content to wait for overtures from the buyers. The impression is growing, however, that in case of copper, for example, the time will be short before a basis is found for doing business on future orders. A bid of 23 cents per pound was mentioned again yesterday, repeating the figure proposed from time to time last week in trade discussion, and it is expected that the producers will shortly seek to put their offering somewhere in line with the current bids. As 23 cents has been brought forward so frequently since it became known that price control would cease on Dec. 31 it would seem that this price represents fairly well the present attitude of prospective buyers. A leading lead producer has reduced its quotation a half cent or so per pound below last week's offered price. In the steel market little has so far been said of the new buying at the reduced quotations, but when the movement begins in all the metal markets it is expected in many quarters that the activity of purchasers will make progress with a fair degree of rapidity.

Developments of a sort to affect security values were hardly in evidence at all, and the holiday spirit was felt in banking and brokerage circles. Money was in free supply, and while some call loans were made at 5 per cent. the market as a whole was on a 4 per cent. basis. Time money was offered in fair quantity at 6 per cent., with some money placed at 5½ per cent.

JAPANESE TRADE GROWS.

Exports and Imports Combined for October Total 312,815,127 Yen.

The total foreign trade of Japan in October, exports and imports combined, amounted to 312,815,127 yen, compared with 244,812,106 in October, 1917, while for the ten months ended with October they were 2,923,509,547 against 2,086,145,963 in the corresponding 1917 period. Excess of exports for October gained 10,987,065 yen, while for the ten-month period they declined from 490,175,255 yen to 219,424,081 yen in 1918.

The country's heaviest imports in the ten-month period were raw cotton, 417,944,226 yen; iron bars, rods, plates and sheets, 177,904,308 yen; oil cake, 74,617,728 yen; rice, 67,859,512 yen, and wool, 54,353,922 yen.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Centring Thought on the Carriers.

When the railroad authorities begin to amplify their ideas in respect to a definite plan to take before Congress it is to be expected that the result will represent the deductions of the best operating and banking brains in the country. A great many minds within and without the Association of Railway Executives are grappling with the problem. The purpose is not only to draw up as complete and practical a program as possible, but also to reduce it to terms before it becomes public, which will require little alteration, thus helping to conserve time in later discussion. The time element is considered all important by those who desire a new régime for the carriers within two years instead of five years.

Tension Over Railroad Issues.

The stock market would hardly note with surprise the appearance of liquidation of railroad shares from the holdings of nervous owners. At the same time, it has been the subject of favorable comment that liquidation has not so far become prominent. The deduction from the current light selling of the rail issues is that investors and speculators with long stock have not become disturbed unduly over the outlook. The tension as evidenced by discussion in brokerage offices is increasing, however, and relief will be felt when a plan, however tentative, is prepared for the railroads' future.

Liberty Bonds Recover.

The Liberty bond market was relieved of a great deal of the selling pressure which marked last week's transactions, with the result that prices recovered substantially. The 3½s opened at 98.22 and closed at 99.28, the day's net gain of more than a point being the largest in a long time. The Third 4¼s started at 95.40 and left off at 95.84. The Fourth 4¼s opened at 94.50 and closed at 94.90, a net gain of nearly a half point over Saturday's closing price. An additional explanation for the recent selling was mentioned in market comment. This was to the effect that corporations which carried bonds for employes on partial payment arrangements had experienced a falling off of subscription payments when overtime pay declined and had disposed of bonds when payments ceased entirely after high-speed war manufacturing slackened.

Price Reduction Intricacies.

The price for steel having been lowered at the instance of the steel men themselves, some of the smaller producers are discovering that they are in a rather unfavorable position. Their sacrifice of higher prices is not finding a sympathetic response with those from whom they must get their necessary materials. For instance, the pig iron producers are determined that there shall be no cut in the price of iron for the present, and it has been reported that the coke supply, already none to great, will be held for a price substantially the same as that during the last few months. Those steel companies which do not produce either of these essentials are therefore facing a rather disconcerting situation. Ultimately prices will doubtless attune themselves, but it is probable that the preliminary stages of price reduction will entail hardships among some of the pioneers.

A Better Situation.

The announcement by Secretary of Commerce Redfield yesterday that ships aggregating 500,000 tons are on their way to South American ports where they will be devoted to commercial trade between those ports and the United States was well received in shipping circles here. Local shippers were not surprised, however, as they have known for some weeks that the Government would release a fair number of bottoms to relieve congestion of freight which has been piling up in warehouses not alone in New York but all along the Atlantic Coast. The ships which are steaming south are a part of the 800,000 tons recently released by the United States Army Quartermaster Corps, according to report.

General Electric's Earnings.

The report of the General Electric Company for the six months ended June 30, as submitted to the New York Stock Exchange, shows $10.90 a share earned on the stock of the company after providing for interest and deducting $11,000,000 to provide for excess profits taxes. The gross income for the half year period was $98,152,331. The net operating income is placed at $21,978,274 and the total income at $24,397,400. The company's total surplus now stands at $55,427,644.

A Remarkable Increase.

Carter Glass, the newly appointed Secretary of the Treasury, sent a message to the Bond Club in lieu of an address he was unable to deliver at a recent dinner which read in part: "I hope that these great Liberty Loan campaigns, which have resulted in increasing the number of bondholders in the United States from approximately 300,000 to nearly 30,000,000, will have the permanent effect of making the American people intelligently discriminating in the purchase of securities of all kinds and that through this better understanding there can be mobilized more easily the necessary capital that will be needed to bring America commercially to a point of development consistent with her new place in the world."

OVERSUBSCRIBE NOTE ISSUE

$8,000,000 St. Paul Union Depot 5½ Per Cents Are Quickly Sold.

An offering of $8,000,000 five-year 5½ per cent. notes of the St. Paul Union Depot Company, made yesterday by a group of bankers consisting of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the First National Bank, and the National City Company, at 99 and interest, was heavily oversubscribed.

The notes are dated Dec. 15, 1918, and mature Dec. 15, 1923. They are in coupon form, in denominations of $100, $1,000, and $5,000, and are redeemable on sixty days' notice at 101 and interest. The issue is indorsed by nine railroad companies, which are furnished with terminal facilities in St. Paul. A new station is in process of construction. The proceeds of the sale of the present issue will be used to pay off the company's floating debt and take care of the construction program for the coming year. The amount due on allotments will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., the date of payment to be given with allotment notices.

CONFER ON STOCK FEES.

Board of Governors Defers Action Until Next February.

The proposed change in commission rates on the New York Stock Exchange was under consideration by the Board of Governors for more than two hours yesterday and at the close of the session it was announced that definite action had been postponed until next February. It was said by one of the Governors that there could hardly be said to be an opposition to the plan, but rather that the subject was under careful consideration so that its probable effect upon the market could be determined. It has been contended by some of the members of the Board of Governors that the sliding scale which is proposed, and which would regulate commissions on the basis of the price of the stock traded in, might tend to curtail the liquidity of the market in the higher priced issues.

Others who are firm supporters of the new idea cannot see that any such result would follow the acceptance of the sliding commission scale. All, however, are agreed that the liquidity of the market is an essential that should be maintained. Another proposal before the Board of Governors was that of declaring a holiday for Thursday because of the naval review. This was voted down.

COTTON PRICES RISE.

Heavy Trade Buying In All Contracts—Liverpool Market Steady.

The cotton market again yesterday made a sharp advance in prices for all contracts. Trading was very active in the morning session on heavy trade buying, together with purchases for account of foreign commissions. The opening was firm, 8 to 32 points higher for the general list, with the exception of December, which opened 29 points lower than Saturday's close. In the forenoon trading the advances scored ranged from 60 to 99 points for the near months and 77 points for July. There was little activity in December, as trading in that month ceases at 2 o'clock today, when January will succeed December as the spot month. The top prices reached during the day were: December, 31.50c; January, 29.45c; March, 28.40c; May, 27.52c, and July, 26.96c. There was a noticeable pressure against the active months, which was directed by those seeking profits after having supported the market when it was weak. This liquidation resulted in prices going back 40 to 50 points from the top prices of the day, but the setback was very quickly halted on renewed buying by the trade.

Liverpool market was fairly steady yesterday. There were rumors that brokers representing the trade there were purchasers here on a large scale. Prices in Liverpool were strong, futures opening 39 to 56 points up and closing 35 to 48 points higher than Friday's closing.

Call for Hocking Bond Issue.

Stockholders of the Hocking Valley Railway Company, at a special meeting which has been called at Columbus for Jan. 25, will be asked to authorize the Directors to create a new general mortgage bond issue not to exceed $50,000,000. It is proposed that the stockholders leave all details of the issue to the discretion of the Directors, who will ask the power to make the bonds convertible into stock if that seems expedient. Approval of the Government contract providing compensation to the railroad will also be asked.

To Celebrate Christmas Today.

The annual Christmas party of the Consolidated Stock Exchange will be held on the floor of the Exchange after the close of business today. The celebration will follow no set schedule and will be purely informal, with the Consolidated Exchange Glee Club and a band furnishing music.

Extra Dividend for Ohio Iron Co.

The Ohio Iron and Steel Company has declared an extra dividend of 12 per cent. in addition to the regular dividend of 12 per cent. for the year 1919, payable at the rate of 2 per cent. monthly to stock of record of Dec. 20 of this year.

New Steel Company Incorporates.

The Ontario Electric Steel Company, Inc., of Fulton, Oswego County, has filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State at Albany. The new concern is capitalized at $1,100,000. The Directors are Carl Ehlermann, Jr., Donald R. Abbott, and Frederick W. Jockel.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The New York Stock Exchange will admit to trading this morning the twenty-year 5½ per cent. gold bonds of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, into which the United Kingdom two-year 5½ per cent. notes due Feb. 1, 1919, are convertible. The twenty-year bonds mature Feb. 1, 1937, and cannot be called for payment before that date.

The McGrohy Stores Corporation reports sales of $882,204 for the month ended Nov. 30, as compared with $728,033 for the same period of 1917. Sales for eleven months of this year are reported to be $8,094,580, an increase of $1,527,787 over the corresponding period of last year.

Ware & Leland of 61 Broadway, members of the New York Stock Exchange, have opened a branch office at 140 West Forty-second Street under the management of Charles P. Palmeter.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 5,410 packages. Market about 1½c. lower on the medium to finest grades of fresh creamery. Buyers taking hold slowly, and there is a little more stock than is needed at the moment, which causes some pressure to sell. Renovated, ladles, and packing stock without material change. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 68½@69c; extras, 92 score, 67½@68c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 63@67c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 59@62½c; lower grades, 53@58c; unsalted, higher than extras, 70½@71c; extras, 69½@70c; firsts, 65@69c; seconds, 60@64c; State dairy tubs, good to prime, 62@63c; common to fair, 52@61c; renovated, extras, 53@54c; firsts, 50@52c; lower grades, 43@48c; imitation creamery, firsts, 47@48c; ladles, current make, firsts, 44@45c; seconds, 43c; lower grades, 41@42½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 42½@43c; No. 2, 41½c; lower grades, 36@40½c.

EGGS.—5,846 cases, not including 2,610 cases for export. The market for fresh-gathered eggs is lower under the influence of mild weather, some accumulation of stock on hand and advices of increased shipments in transit. There is only a moderate demand at the close and the tone of the market closes unsettled and irregular. Sold fresh and the highest priced refrigerator goods rule weaker in sympathy with the decline in fresh, but the moderate cost early packed storage eggs, such as have heretofore been selling below their real value under Food Administration regulations are fully sustained and are wanted beyond the supply available. White eggs are lower and unsettled and very few uniformly fancy large sized, such as are covered by our top quotations. The bulk of the supply is more or less mixed in quality and offering at comparatively easy prices. Fresh-gathered, extras, a dozen, 65@66c; extra firsts, 63@64c; firsts, 62c; seconds, 58@61c; Fall gathered, poor to prime, 50@58c; dirties, No. 1, 53@54c; No. 2 and poorer, 44@52c; checks, good to choice, dry, 45@46c; under grades, 40@44c; refrigerator, 43@53c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 63@67c; ordinary to prime, 70@84c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 70@84c; pullet whites, 68@72c; Pacific Coast whites, extras, 85c; lower grades, 75@83c; pullets, 65@70c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 66@80c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 70@72c; gathered browns and mixed colors, 62@66c.

War Department Establishes Eight for Our Returning Troops.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Establishment of eight major demobilization districts, to which men returning from abroad will be sent as units for discharge, has been completed by the War Department. In making up casual companies for convoy home, army commanders organized them on the basis of this new districting, including so far as possible only men from one district in each company and assigning that company to the port feeding its district.

The districts are as follows:

2—Delaware, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and District of Columbia.
3—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Kentucky.
4—South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi.
5—Minnesota, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska and Missouri.
6—Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas.
7—North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.
8—California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Colorado and New Mexico.

Illustrating the operation of this plan, Casual Company No. 401, announced today as returning on the transport Rijndam, was assigned to District No. 1, indicating that all or the great majority of the men in this company are residents of New England or New York. Similarly Casual Company No. 111 of the Rijndam was assigned to District No. 2.

NORTH RUSSIA SEEKS TRADE OPENING HERE

WANTS AMERICA'S HELP

Foodstuffs Are Required, He Says, and in Return Russia Could Send Flax, Hides, and Furs.

With the purpose of establishing definite trade relations between the United States and the northern part of Russia, which is controlled by the Tchaikovsky Government, G. A. Martiuszine has just come to New York and soon will go to Washington to confer with the Russian section of the War Trade Board. Mr. Martiuszine is Secretary of Finance in the Provisional Government of Northern Russia and comes with full authority to make arrangements for the exchange of exports and the establishment of credits. He feels sure that the two countries can work in harmony, and that with intelligent co-operation order can be restored and the misery in Russia relieved.

The territory under the jurisdiction of the Provisional Government is equal to the area of France and has a population of 1,000,000. The western boundary is a line running south from the Murman coast to Lake Oneg, and then from a point about 125 miles north of Petrograd the southern boundary runs due east. The Government is administered from Archangel by representatives chosen from a democratic bloc consisting of the Cadets, the right wing and the centre of the Social Revolutionary Party, and the Mensheviki, who are the conservative wing of the Social Democrats. They were either members of the Constituent Assembly, which was dispersed by the Bolsheviki, or were local authorities at the time the revolution broke out. Among them are Peter Zubor, the General Secretary, and S. Gorodetetsky, the Secretary of Justice. According to Mr. Martiuszine, they all enjoy the confidence of the masses.

In explaining his mission to this country, Mr. Martiuszine said yesterday that he not only held credentials from the Provisional Government of Northern Russia, but also from centres of the co-operative movement. His mission was not so much political, he said, as it was economic.

"There are many things we need," he said, "and we are looking to you in America to help us. Especially are foodstuffs required, those foodstuffs which we have been wanting for several years, among them condensed milk and sugar. In exchange we can export flax, timber, hides, skins, and furs. But even with an understanding of what we need, it will be necessary to provide for the tonnage in which to carry it and to arrange for establishing credits to cover the cost of the inevitable excess of goods you will send to us. This means the co-operation of the Government and the banking institutions in this country. To help carry out these projects I shall leave in a few days for Washington to confer with Vance McCormick of the War Trade Board.

"I wish to take the opportunity of expressing the appreciation of my fellow Russians for the work that the Americans are doing in Russia, for democratic Russia has full confidence in the democracy of the United States, led by such a noble and democratic statesman as President Wilson. Democratic Russia places hope in the friendship of the United States and is ready for such friendship, believing that the United States is pursuing a thoroughly unselfish policy, and is interested in the welfare of the Russian people.

"To illustrate what I mean I may cite the action of the American Ambassador when Captain Chaplin, a naval officer, tried to overthrow the Provisional Government last September. The Captain was supported by a group of officers and reactionaries in Archangel. He took it upon himself to arrest the members of the Government, including Tchaikovsky, and then proclaimed a dictatorship. The democratic classes of the population answered this coup d'etat with a strike. The American Ambassador, David Francis, immediately interfered, and through his efforts the members of the Government were released and re-established in power. That clearly showed that the American forces in Russia are not there for the purpose of suppression, but are there to help the Russian democracy. Every time Francis speaks he emphasizes the fact that the resurrection of Russia is not possible through a dictatorship, but only through the rehabilitation of the local governments built upon democratic suffrage, and through the convocation of the All-Russian Constituent Assembly."

When asked what were the relations between the Provisional Government and the Kolchak dictatorship, Mr. Martiuszine said that it was extremely difficult to say just what the situation at Omsk was, but that if the action of Kolchak was a coup d'etat like that of Chaplin, all democratic Russia would be against it.

Military intervention is practical and is a real solution of the Russian situation, according to Mr. Martiuszine.

"Up to the signing of the armistice," he said, "the allied movements were dictated by strategic reasons, but conditions are now changed. The democratic forces of Russia greeted the forces of the Allies when they came to fight the Germans. Since the signing of the armistice the allied activities have changed. Now the main movement must be in the nature of a co-operation with the democratic forces. Allied troops should by no means enter any territory to which they have not been invited by the local authorities. With universal suffrage, the voice of the locality should be the determining factor. One part of Russia should not attempt to use the allied troops to impose its will upon another part, but if bit by bit the invitation to restore order is accepted, Russia may once more be brought back to normal.

"I do not think that there is any chance of co-operation with the Bolsheviki, because they have shown themselves such a barbarous power in betraying Russia to the enemies of humanity, and they have established a régime of murder in which they do not recognize the fundamentals of modern democracy."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Substantial net declines were recorded in a majority of the active issues yesterday at the close of the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final quotations were about the low levels of the session and represented losses ranging from a fraction to two points. From the outset, when a fair demand made for higher levels, the market was heavy and lacking in any pronounced support.

International Traction Company

TO HOLDERS OF COLLATERAL TRUST FOUR PER CENT. GOLD BONDS:

The undersigned have filed with the GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY of New York, as Depositary, and the CITY TRUST COMPANY of Buffalo, N. Y., as its Agent, a Protective Agreement, duly executed, under date of December 10, 1918, and have issued a letter containing information with reference to the affairs of the International Traction Company and International Railway Company. Copies of the agreement and the letter may be obtained from the Depositary or its Agent, or from the Secretary or counsel of the Committee.

The default of the International Railway Company in the payment of interest upon its Five Per Cent. Refunding and Improvement Bonds, which occurred November 1, 1918, still continues. The period of grace provided in the mortgage securing said bonds within which such default may be cured will expire February 1, 1919. Thereafter, the default continuing, holders of said bonds will have the right to compel the foreclosure of said mortgage.

The emergency which now exists makes it imperative that for their own protection holders of the above mentioned bonds of International Traction Company should organize at once for united action under a Committee having adequate power and authority to deal with any situation which may arise.

To this end you are urged to deposit your bonds under the above mentioned Protective Agreement at the earliest possible day.

Bonds may be deposited with the GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY of New York, Depositary, at 140 Broadway, New York City, 32 Lombard Street, E. C., London, or Rue des Italiens 1 & 3, Paris, or with the CITY TRUST COMPANY, Agent for the Depositary, at Erie County Bank Building, Buffalo, N. Y., until the close of business on January 10, 1919.

Depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names.

Registered bonds must be accompanied by proper instruments of assignment, and coupon bonds must be accompanied by all coupons maturing on or after January 1, 1919.

PEERLESS TRUCK AND MOTOR CORPORATION

To the Holders of its Ten-Year Six Per Cent. Secured Convertible Gold Notes:

The Company invites tenders of $500,000 face value of this issue of notes. The Company reserves the right to accept or reject any part or all of any tender, but the notes offered at the lowest prices will be the first taken in case notes are purchased. The Company also reserves the right to purchase more than $500,000 face value at its option, if satisfactory tenders are received.

All holders of notes wishing to sell them to the Company under the above invitation must deliver to Bankers Trust Company, No. 16 Wall Street, New York, at or before 3 o'clock P. M. on Tuesday, the 31st day of December, 1918, sealed proposals stating the price at which the holder offers to sell them to the Company and the name and address of the person to whom payment therefor is to be made. The proposals will be opened on the 2nd day of January, 1919, at 10 o'clock A. M. Bankers Trust Company will, on the 6th day of January, 1919, mail to the persons whose names and addresses have been furnished as aforesaid and whose proposals have been accepted by the Peerless Truck and Motor Corporation notice of the fact of such acceptance. Payment for the notes purchased will be made at the office of Bankers Trust Company on the 13th day of January, 1919, to the persons making such accepted proposals at the price agreed to by them, upon delivery to the Trust Company of said notes, accompanied in each case by all unmatured coupons thereunto appertaining, by income tax ownership certificates in respect of interest thereon from the last interest due date to said date of payment therefor, and in case of registered notes, by proper instruments of transfer.

But Plants at Bridgeport and Ilion Plan to Resume Commercial Work.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 23.—More than 6,500 men and women were laid off with a few hours' notice here today at the Remington Arms-Union Metallic Cartridge Company plants, which announced that practically all its ordnance contracts had been canceled. Fewer than 1,000 persons will remain at the Remington plant, and about 2,000 will continue for the present at the cartridge plant.

The notice posted in the cartridge plant stated that any employes who were in the company's employ prior to the declaration of war in August, 1914, should apply on or after Jan. 2, when every effort would be made to re-employ them on the commercial work soon to be resumed.

UTICA, Dec. 23.—The Remington Arms Company's plant at Ilion closed this afternoon. About 6,000 workers are affected. The closing was due to an order from the Government stopping work on ordnance. The company has notified employes that it intends to resume sporting goods work as soon as possible after the first of the year and that any employe can apply for work then.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

THE HOCKING VALLEY RAILWAY COMPANY.

NOTICE OF SPECIAL STOCKHOLDERS' MEETING.

Notice is hereby given that a Special Meeting of the Stockholders of THE HOCKING VALLEY RAILWAY COMPANY has been called by the Board of Directors of said Company to be held at the principal office of the Company in the City of Columbus, Ohio, on Saturday the 25th day of January, 1919, at eleven o'clock A. M., for the following purposes:

(a) To authorize the Board of Directors or the Executive Committee of the Company to negotiate and cause to be executed and delivered such contract with the President of the United States, the Director General of Railroads, or such other person as the President may direct, as said Board or said Executive Committee shall deem expedient, relating to the compensation to be paid for the possession, use and control of the railroad and system of transportation and appurtenances thereof of the Company, the operation, maintenance and return thereof, and to any other matter connected with or growing out of the taking over by the President of said properties; to alter, amend or add to such contract, by mutual consent to be signified on behalf of the Company by vote of its Board of Directors or Executive Committee; to collect the aggregate compensation to be paid under such contract; and generally to take such action as said Board of Committee shall deem necessary to secure, either by such contract or otherwise, adequate compensation for, and proper maintenance and a timely return of, the property so taken over;

(b) To consent to, approve and authorize the creation and issue of mortgage bonds of the Company to be limited to a principal amount, in United States Gold Coin, of not exceeding $50,000,000 at any one time outstanding; such bonds to mature at such date or dates, to bear interest from such date or dates and at such rate or rates, to be issuable for such purposes and in such denominations, and to be in such form and to contain such terms and provisions, including provision for conversion of any or all such bonds into stock of the Company, as the Board of Directors or the Executive Committee of the Company may determine;

(c) To consent to, approve and authorize the execution and delivery, to secure such bonds, of a mortgage and deed of trust on and of all or any part of the railroads, equipment, franchises and property, including corporate stocks and obligations, owned by the Company at the date of the execution and delivery of such mortgage and deed of trust or at any time thereafter acquired by it;

(d) To approve, or to authorize the Board of Directors of the Company in its discretion to determine, the form and terms of such mortgage and deed of trust, and the property of the Company to be embraced therein;

(e) To ratify and confirm, and to authorize and consent to, any action theretofore taken or authorized by said Board of Directors or by the Executive Committee, of the Company, which may be submitted to the meeting, whether for the purposes of, or in connection with, or in contemplation of, any of the matters aforesaid or otherwise;

(f) To transact such other business as may be brought before the meeting.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

West side deals, one involving a block front of apartment houses valued at over $1,000,000, were the features in the realty market yesterday, while a good downtown transaction added to the day's activity. The largest sale involved the two ten-story apartment structures known as the Letchworth and the Hampstead, covering the block front on the west side of Broadway between 160th and 161st Streets, 200 feet on Broadway by 125 feet on each street, each apartment house fronting 100 feet. They were sold by the Herbert Dorgan Construction Company. In part payment the buyers gave over 100 lots in the vicinity of Bragow Street and Queens Boulevard, Long Island City. The Broadway apartments are fully rented, and were held at $1,250,000. Joseph P. Day and the Roman-Collman Company were the brokers.

In the upper Manhattan section the five-story apartment house known as the Minerva, at 709 and 711 West 178th Street, between Broadway and Fort Washington Avenue, on plot 56.7 by 100, was sold by Nehring Bros. to the H. & M. Building Corporation. It was held at $80,000.

$450,000 West Side Apartment Deal.

The nine-story apartment house known as the Barrington, at 203 to 209 West Eighty-first Street, on a plot 112.6 by 102.2, adjoining the northeast corner of Broadway, was sold by William F. Kenny to a client of B. Moskowitz. The seller acquired the property in 1916. It was held at $450,000.

Choice West End Avenue Residence Sale.

An interesting west side residential deal, opposite the Charles M. Schwab dwelling, was closed in the sale of the four-story house at 301 West End Avenue, the northwest corner of Seventy-fourth Street, fronting 23 feet on the avenue by 100 feet on the street. It was purchased by Daniel B. Freedman from E. R. Smedlie of England, who had owned it for several years. L. J. Phillips & Co. were the brokers. The property was valued at $125,000. It is expected that the site may eventually be used for an apartment house improvement.

Frankfort Street Sale.

The six-story business building at 35 to 37 Frankfort Street, near William Street, fronting 59 feet by 111 and irregular, has been purchased by Berth Levi & Co. from Joseph F. Cullman, who acquired it a short time ago. The site will be improved by the buyers for their occupancy, their former quarters at 82 Pearl Street being sold last Summer. It is assessed at $65,000. The Charles F. Noyes Company acted as brokers in the deal.

Operator Buys $125,000 Midtown Loft Building.

An important deal in the midtown loft zone, one of several reported pending, was closed yesterday by the Manhattan Life Insurance Company, which sold to Charles Hensle, operator, the eleven-story loft building at 15 West Seventeenth Street.

The structure occupies a plot 28 by 92, located 252 feet west of Fifth Avenue, and was held at $125,000. Title to the property will be taken in the name of the 15 West Seventeenth Street, Inc., incorporated at Albany last week with a capital of $10,000. The Directors are J. Beaver, E. Ince, and W. Austin. Forbes & Co., Inc., negotiated the sale.

Buyers for Private Dwellings.

Bernard College sold to the Flintlock Realty Company, 108 East Thirty-seventh Street, a four-story private dwelling on a lot 25 by 100. Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the sale.

Mary H. Truslow sold to an investor 109 East 101st Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 15.6 by 75.

Tenement Deals.

Ernest N. Adler in conjunction with O'Reilly & Dahn resold for James H. Cruikshank to Sigmund G. Schwabach 321 East Seventy-fourth Street, a five-story tenement on a plot 25 by 102.2.

Max N. Natanson, operator, resold to an investor 61½ and 63 East 125th Street, two four-story buildings with stores on a plot 33 by 100.

The Bronx Market.

J. S. O. Pederson, President of the Valhalla Building Corporation, has bought Lots 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 of the Louisa Dash Estate, located on the east side of Waldo Avenue, north of 238th Street, from William Brill, who bought the same at the Dash sale last Tuesday. Mr. Brill paid at the sale from $800 to $900 apiece for the lots, or a total of $4,325, and resold them for over $5,000. The purchasers plan to erect two high-class apartment houses on the plot. J. Clarence Davies negotiated the sale.

The Benenson Realty Company purchased from M. Mulligan 1,357 and 1,359 Lyman Place, a five-story apartment house on a plot 50 by 90 by 112 by 53.

Francis Lippner sold to David Cohen 747 East 181st Street, a five-story apartment house on a plot 50 by 100.

Angelo L. Frunmento has sold the three-story house, on lot 24.6 by 167.8, at 2,146 Belmont Avenue, near 181st Street, to Lucy Giouni.

Brooklyn.

I. Salzberg sold for Jennie Shaw to Morris Katz a plot of 40 by 100 on the north side of Forty-eighth Street, 140 feet east of Fifteenth Avenue, as a site for a one-story family dwelling.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT Southern District of New York.—In the Matter of CONSOLIDATED MOTORS CORPORATION, Bankrupt.

To the creditors of the above named bankrupt:

Take notice that the following described real property, including the buildings thereon will be sold by the undersigned, trustee in bankruptcy, at public auction, thru Charles Shongood, United States Auctioneer, at No. 539 Broadway, Boro of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 24th day of December, 1918, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, said property being bounded and described as follows:

Premises with the manufacturing plant thereon situate located at Schenectady, New York, bounded and described as follows:

"Beginning at a point where Foster Avenue's easterly line intersects the within described property, running thence in an easterly direction about one hundred fifty-two (152) feet; thence in a northerly direction about four hundred twenty (420) feet to Stony Lane; thence in a westerly direction, about one hundred and forty one (141) feet; thence in a southerly direction to the place of beginning.

Being the same premises conveyed by Joseph Dunfee and wife to Mohawk Valley Brewing Company by deed dated October 24th, 1905, and recorded in the Schenectady County Clerk's Office in Book 161 of Deeds at page 135.

Also, all that certain piece or parcel of land adjoining the premises above described and situated, lying and being in the new Second Ward, formerly known as the Third Ward of the City and County of Schenectady and State of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz: commencing at a point of intersection of the northerly line of the land formerly of William Van Vranken and the easterly margin of Foster Avenue at the northeasterly extremity of Foster Avenue, and running thence northerly on a line in continuation of said easterly line of Foster Avenue about four hundred and twenty (420) feet to the southerly margin of Stony Lane; and thence westerly along the southerly margin of Stony Lane about four hundred and twenty (420) feet to the said northerly line of land formerly of William Van Vranken, at a point about twenty-five (25) feet Westerly from the place of beginning and thence along said northerly line to the land formerly of William Van Vranken, about twenty-five (25) feet to the place of beginning.

Being the same premises conveyed to The Mohawk Valley Brewing Company by Jane Helen Fuller, by deed dated January 5, 1906, and recorded in said Clerk's office in Book 161 of Deeds at page 240.

Also, being the same premises conveyed to Thomas J. Henry by Charles G. Fryer, Referee, by deed dated February 7, 1907, recorded in Schenectady County Clerk's Office February 7, 1917, in Book 253 of Deeds, at page 265."

On the foregoing property are located the main building owned by the bankrupt, occupying an area of about 248 feet by 78 feet, also a barn 77 feet by 32 feet.

Said property will be sold free and clear of and from any and all incumbrances, taxes and liens of all kinds whatsoever. The trustee reserves the right to withdraw said property from sale and the sale will be held subject to the approval of the court.

Dated, New York, December 13th, 1918.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—A southwestern disturbance, central tonight over the Lower Mississippi Valley, with high pressure and low temperatures to the northwestward has caused general rains in the Gulf States and snows in Western Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, and the Lower Missouri Valley, and rains and snows in the Upper Mississippi Valley. In the Atlantic States the weather cleared, after rain Sunday night, while in the Far West the weather was fair.

High temperatures continue in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, although with a fall since Sunday in the North. They have also fallen generally in the interior, and are much below the seasonal average as a rule.

The weather will be fair by Wednesday in the East Gulf States, while in the lake region, the Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England it will be unsettled Tuesday and Wednesday, with rain over the southern and rain or snow over the central and snow over the northern sections, reaching the Atlantic Coast Tuesday night. In the South Atlantic States rain Tuesday will be followed by clearing weather Wednesday.

It will be colder Tuesday in Kentucky and New England, much colder Tuesday night in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the East Gulf States, with a cold wave in Southern Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Northern Alabama. It will be much colder Wednesday in the South Atlantic States, and somewhat colder in the lower lake region, the Middle Atlantic States, and New England Wednesday.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate north and northeast, colder, snow by Wednesday; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate northeast, increasing Tuesday night, with snow, colder; South Atlantic Coast, increasing east, rain Tuesday or Tuesday night and probably Wednesday.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Increasing cloudiness Tuesday, followed at night and on Wednesday by snow in the northern and snow or rain in the southern portion, colder Tuesday.

Southern New England—Increasing cloudiness and colder Tuesday, rain or snow at night and on Wednesday.

New Jersey—Increasing cloudiness and colder Tuesday, rain or snow at night and on Wednesday.

Western New York—Cloudy Tuesday, snow in the western portion and by night in the eastern portion; Wednesday, snow and colder.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Increasing cloudiness Tuesday, somewhat colder in the southeastern portion, with rain or snow at night and on Wednesday.

Northern New England—Fair and colder Tuesday; Wednesday, snow.

Education Notes.

The by-laws of the Board of Education were amended yesterday so as to establish the position of teacher-clerk. Candidates are to be placed on an eligible list, and appointments are to be made from it. The entrance salary will be $800 a year, with an increase of $50 a year. The maximum pay was fixed at $1,200 a year in the eighth year.

The by-laws in reference to age requirements have been suspended in the case of Mrs. Mary D. Schnure, a teacher of ungraded classes, who has been substituting since 1908.

A leave of absence, with pay, for two months, has been granted to honorable discharged sailors and soldiers, who are employes of the Education Department.

Employes of the Department of Education will be permitted to be absent one whole day or two half days during the Christmas holidays.

The appointment of John T. Nicholson, as district superintendent, was made permanent yesterday.

A minute and resolution relative to the death of Henry P. Morrison, a former member of the Board of Education, were adopted yesterday by a rising vote.

It was decided yesterday that no stated meeting of the Board of Education would be held on Dec. 26.

Evening Elementary School 26, Brooklyn, has been discontinued as a separate organization, and its classes have been transferred to the Bushwick High School, to be under the jurisdiction of the Principal of the Bushwick Evening Trade School, in classes of elementary grade in this organization.

Katherine D. Blake, Principal of P. S. 6, Manhattan, has received permission to attend the meeting of the Department of Superintendence in Chicago from Feb. 24 to March 1, without loss of pay.

Willis H. Grant, a teacher in the High School of Commerce, has been suspended by Associate Superintendent Tildsley on charges of neglect of duty.

Wilson, La Farge, and Dr. Duffield Rebuke Mayor's Appointment of Editor.

CHURCH CLUB PROTESTS

Calls Selection to Welcome Soldiers a Direct Insult and a Disgrace to the Good Name of the City.

George T. Wilson, Vice President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, C. Grant Lafarge, the architect,, and the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, pastor emeritus of the Old First Presbyterian Church at Twelfth Street and Fifth Avenue, have notified Mayor Hylan that they will not serve on the committee the Mayor has appointed to welcome returning soldiers so long as William Randolph Hearst remains a member of the committee. Mr. Wilson was the Chairman of the Executive Committee of Mayor Mitchel's Committee on National Defense when the late Major Willard D. Straight was the Chairman of the whole committee and for some time after Major Straight resigned to enter the army. He was also Chairman or Vice Chairman of every committee appointed to welcome the various European war missions to New York.

Dr. Duffield, besides being one of the best known Presbyterian clergymen in the country and a former Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, has been an army chaplain since shortly after the United States entered the war. He asks the Mayor in his letter if "on sober second thought it does not seem to be inconsistent with the success of such a homecoming celebration as that which he has so happily planned, to make it the occasion of giving such peculiar prominence to one whose patriotism, whether justly or unjustly, is in debate?"

Mr. Wilson wrote:

Dec. 20, 1918.

Grover Whalen, Esq., Secretary to the Mayor, New York City.

Dear Sir—My absence has delayed a response to your letter of the 7th instant, informing me that the Mayor has appointed me a member of a Committee of Welcome to Home Coming Troops, of which Colonel Rodman Wanamaker will be Chairman. I deeply appreciate the compliment involved in the appointment; am eager to participate in fitting welcome and honor to our beloved heroes, and it is always a pleasure to serve under Colonel Rodman Wanamaker as Chairman of a committee, but if it is a fact, as has been stated, that Mr. William R. Hearst is a member of the committee, and Chairman of a sub-Committee on Military, I feel constrained to decline the appointment.

Last year, on the occasions of the visits of the various war missions from European Governments, I, as Chairman or Vice Chairman, respectively, of committees, was outspokenly opposed to the appointment of Mr. Hearst on any committee whatsoever. I certainly cannot in all consistency do less now, especially in view of my opinion, which I express most respectfully but none the less positively, that no one should be on such a patriotic committee as this who is not 100 per cent. American. It is unthinkable that a man should be appointed to welcome the homecoming troops who was opposed to their departure, and their participation in the world war.

I noticed on my return a statement of his Honor the Mayor, referring to gentlemen who had declined to serve on this committee, as follows: "It is to be regretted that there are those who always place personal interest and animosity above patriotism."

It seems to me that his Honor has not correctly sensed the situation and that there is another guess coming to him as to the reason why men decline to go on this committee in association with Mr. Hearst. Certainly in my own case I have no "personal interest and animosity," but I put my patriotism above Mr. Hearst's patriotism. That's all!

Availing myself of this opportunity to wish you the compliments of the coming season, and everything that you would wish to yourself in the new year, I am yours very truly,

GEORGE T. WILSON.

Mr. La Farge's letter follows:

Dec. 23, 1918.

Mr. Grover A. Whalen, Secretary to the Mayor, City Hall.

Dear Sir: Your letter of 7th instant was delayed in reaching me, because of my absence in Washington upon Government service.

I appreciate the politeness of the Mayor in thus extending to me an invitation to become a member of the Committee of Welcome to Homecoming Troops, of which Rodman Wanamaker is Chairman. It would be hard to imagine a more welcome opportunity than one to show publicly the feelings our citizens entertain toward those brave, splendid men who have so gallantly offered their lives for what is best in their country. But they did not offer them for the advancement and glorification of any one whose known record throughout the war has been such as to make every decent citizen burn with indignation. To find such a person in prominent place as representing the city welcoming them upon their return, should be to them no less than the invalidation of the welcome, the besmirching of its genuineness. And as that is what they will find, in the person of William Randolph Hearst, I must, with deepest regret that it should be necessary, decline the Mayor's invitation.

Very truly yours,

C. GRANT LA FARGE.

Here is Mr. Duffield's letter:

37 Madison Avenue, New York City.
Dec. 21, 1918.

My dear Mr. Whalen:—I am in receipt of your very kind note, advising that the Mayor has honored me by appointing me upon his Committee of Welcome to the homecoming troops, of which Mr. Rodman Wanamaker is the Chairman.

There is no service I would more gladly render than this, and I should count it a high privilege indeed to aid in any way to express to those who fought so bravely and won so gloriously the intense admiration and affection for them with which the heart of the people overflows.

It is commonly reported, however, that Mr. W. R. Hearst has been asked to serve upon this committee and to take special charge of its military functions. If this is the case, I must respectfully and regretfully decline the Mayor's invitation, and I trust his honor will pardon my boldness in venturing to inquire whether upon sober second thought it does not seem to him to be inconsistent with the largest success of such a homecoming celebration as that which he has so happily planned, to make it the occasion of giving such peculiar prominence to one whose patriotism, whether justly or unjustly, is in debate; and who, whatever his present sentiments may be, is on record as having been in unqualified opposition to many of the very things for which our gallant boys took the field and shed their blood.

With renewed appreciation of the valued courtesy which his honor has been good enough to extend to me and with most sincere regret that I am precluded from performing the service to which he has called me, I remain,

Faithfully,
HOWARD DUFFIELD,
Pastor Emeritus, Old First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street.

Mr. Grover A. Whalen, Secretary to the Mayor of the City of New York, City Hall, New York City.

The Men's Club of the New York Methodist Church have also protested Mr. Hearst's appointment in the following letter:

The Parish House,
121 New York Avenue.
Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 19, 1918.

Hon. John F. Hylan,
City Hall, New York City.

Dear Sir: The Men's Club of the New York Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Dean Street, and New York Avenue, Brooklyn, composed of over 200 members desires to bring to your immediate attention, in the most emphatic manner possible, the consensus of opinion of its membership relative to your appointment of Mr. William Randolph Hearst as a member of the Reception Committee to welcome our returning soldiers and as Chairman of a Monument Committee to select a suitable memorial to our heroic dead. Therefore it presents to you resolutions adopted by it in its regular meeting, Dec. 19, 1918, as follows:

Whereas, The activities of Mr. William Randolph Hearst, as revealed in his own newspapers, notably The New York American, and in Governmental disclosures, stamp him as being far from a 100 per cent American, and

Whereas, His appointment by you as a member of one committee and Chairman of another to respectively welcome our returning soldiers and to commemorate our heroic dead, is a direct insult to the intelligence and patriotism of our common American citizenship and a disgrace to the good name of the City of New York, Therefore, be it

Resolved, That this club most emphatically protests your act in the appointment of Mr. William Randolph Hearst to membership in the said committees and respectfully requests his removal from said committees at the earliest possible moment, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this open letter with the included resolutions be forwarded to the leading morning and evening papers of this city for immediate publication.

THE MEN'S CLUB,
George C. Wood, Chairman.
George D. Evers, Secretary.

Up to this time, the Mayor has declined to give out the names of those who have refused to serve on the committee because Mr. Hearst's connection with it, but it is known that the following have refused to serve: Robert Underwood Johnson, Williams Fellowes Morgan, President of the Merchants' Association; Arthur Curtiss James, Major George Haven Putnam, Lawrence Abbott of the Outlook; Colonel Henry L. Stimson, Henry B. Haigh, President of the Moore Filter Company, Mr. Wilson, and Dr. Duffield.

HYLAN DEFENDS HEARST.

Tells Him How He Is Saving the Nation from Anarchy.

In a letter to William R. Hearst, yesterday, Mayor Hylan defended at length his appointment of Mr. Hearst on the Committee of Citizens to welcome the returning soldiers. Many members of the committee have written the Mayor vigorously protesting against the appointment and several have resigned rather than serve with Mr. Hearst. This is the Mayor's letter:

City Of New York
Office Of The Mayor.
Dec. 23, 1918.

Mr. William Randolph Hearst, 238 William Street, New York City.

Dear Sir: The attack on you and your papers by the profiteers, the privilege seeking and predatory interests represented by such combinations as the coal trust, the milk trust, gas and electric lighting trusts, ice trust, railroad and financial combinations and others whose business and purpose it is to levy tribute and exploit the people by reaping huge profits out of the necessities of life will fail because the great mass of people know that you are their constant and vigilant defender and a relentless opponent of profiteers, hiding behind corporate names, who are exploiting the people by reaping huge profits from the things that people must have to keep body and soul together.

The methods that these scoundrels (who profiteer on the necessities of life) resort to through the medium of the press to injure private citizens and public officials, whose sympathies continue with the people after they are placed in public office, is most astounding.

These profiteers have succeeded in the past in corrupting public officials and making them ready tools to such an extent that the people lose confidence in their public officials and are being driven to a condition of Socialism that breeds the red flag and anarchism. If public officials do not do their duty by the people under a democratic form of government, the people become discouraged and disheartened and see little hope for themselves and their children, and the form of government under which we live is seriously threatened.

Through your papers you are doing more than any other man in the United States to aid public officials to support and protect the people from these profiteers and human hyenas. By backing up and protecting public officials who stand for the rights of the people you are saving these selfish, money-grabbing culprits from the wrath of the people by letting them know who the public officials are who are fighting their battles for them.

If the people were to walk out of their homes and places of business in a spirit of wrath and anger against these exploiters as they did a few weeks ago in a spirit of joy and exultation, these puppets and exploiters would be appealing for protection instead of abusing you and others. A demonstration of this occurred a few weeks ago at a Socialistic meeting. The Socialist speaker, who favored Bolshevism and was bitterly attacking the police, had a sudden change of heart when he learned that soldiers and sailors by the hundreds were trying to get into the hall. He appealed to the police for protection. Fortunately there were ample police on hand to maintain peace and order. So it is with these selfish profiteers and exploiters. We are trying to stop them from carrying their greed and selfishness to such an extent that they will excite the wrath of the people.

When your name was mentioned for Governor, you were bitterly maligned and opposed by these same interests, who control the press and who endeavor to control public officials. After Hon. Alfred E. Smith was designated as the candidate for Governor, these papers, whose interests extolled his virtues, opposed him and others and gave him little support. Your paper loyally and whole-heartedly supported him with the result that he was elected. Now these same interests are fearful that as Governor Alfred E. Smith will represent and protect the people's interest in the State as they are being protected in the city

I am sure Governor Smith, after his induction into office, will instruct every District Attorney in every county of the State to follow the splendid example of District Attorney Swann of New York County and District Attorney Lewis of Kings County to prosecute big violators of the law as well as little. District Attorney Swann of New York is prosecuting the milk trust thieves and District Attorney Lewis is prosecuting the traction officials who have no regard for human life, as well as investigating the Public Service Commission, which is paid by the people and whose sympathies seem to be with the transit and corporate interests.

I would advise the Republican Club and the profiteering interests that this is not the time directly or indirectly to interfere with public officials or those who are supporting them in their endeavor to serve the people.

This is a time when all patriotic and honest citizens should cast aside political or religious differences and personal animosity, and rally to the welcome of our soldiers, sailors, and marines who are returning home after their glorious victory on the field of battle.

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

ECKHARDT'S RECALL CAUSED BY AMERICA

Washington Reminded Berlin of Propaganda by German Minister to Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—An indirect warning from the American Government was responsible for the decision of the German authorities to dispense with the services of the notorious Minister von Eckhardt at Mexico City. It was learned officially today that a hint was transmitted to Berlin recently that it was difficult to reconcile Eckhardt's continued anti-American and anti-Ally propaganda with the new German Government's protestations of regard for the United States and repeated appeals for food supplies.

Evidence of Eckhardt's influence in the Mexican capital was seen today in a report from Ambassador Fletcher that El Pueblo, a Government organ, had published a denial of the Minister's recall.

The State Department has been advised of the recall, although evidently there has been no official announcement of it at Mexico City. Ambassador Fletcher said that newspapers there, other than El Pueblo, were saying Eckhardt's mission had ended, although he had not decided as to leaving the country.

It is understood that the German Government also has issued orders for the discontinuance generally of anti-American propaganda in Mexico.

FAVORS GERMAN BOYCOTT.

Nearly 12,000,000 Have Pledged Hostility, Dr. Hornaday Declares.

Nearly 12,000,000 persons have pledged themselves not to buy goods made in Germany, according to figures cited yesterday by Dr. William T. Hornaday, Director of the Bronx Zoological Gardens, in speaking at a meeting at 415 Madison Avenue, held under the auspices of the Women's National Committee of the American Defense Society. Kentucky had passed a German boycott law, he said, and Louisiana was about to follow suit.

FIGHTS TRIAL AT CAPITAL.

Dr. Rumely Testifies at Federal Commissioner's Hearing Here.

Dr. Edward A. Rumely resumed his testimony before United States Commissioner Hitchcock yesterday in his effort to prevent the Government from trying him in Washington on an indictment charging him with having failed to report to the Alien Property Custodian that he held certain shares of stock of The Evening Mail, which it is alleged was German owned, and that he owed the German Government $1,451,700. The defendant seeks to avoid trial in Washington, and is contending that it would make necessary the transportation of witnesses from this city and a room full of documents.

In answer to questions he told again about his purchase of The Evening Mail, and said that the last representative of the German Government he had communicated with was Dr. Heinrich Albert, fiscal agent of the former Kaiser.

Witnesses were examined to show that the chief office of the Alien Property Custodian is in Washington and that reports were regularly sent there by branch offices in other cities. The hearing will be resumed on Jan. 4.

D. M. Donegan, Former 'Wiskinkie.'

Daniel M. Donegan, Deputy Internal Revenue Collector for the Second District, who died last Saturday at his home, 5 Henderson Place, was a familiar figure in New York City politics twenty years ago. For many years he was the "Wiskinkie," or the "wampum gatherer" of the Tammany Society, and a close friend of Richard Croker, John C. Sheehan and Lewis Nixon. He was also the only surviving member of Bryant's Ministrels, where his specialities were the "double shuffle" and "pigeon toe" dances which Dan Bryant had seen him do on the street pavements.

ACCUSED BY WIFE OF BOMB CRIMES

Italian Is Seized by Police in Pennsylvania, Charged with Chicago Outrage.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 23.—Dominick Costerella, charged by his wife with having been responsible for the bomb outrage which wrecked the Chicago Federal Building, and with having made and placed the bomb which wrecked the Milwaukee Police Station a year ago in November, costing ten lives, has been arrested at Lancaster, Penn. Others whom the woman accuses of having been associated with him in these crimes, as well as in several murders and robberies, are being held by the police to face Costerella when he is brought back from the East.

Mrs. Costerella caused the arrest of her husband in revenge for having deserted her and her babe. Here are the charges made by her:

That Dominick made and placed the bomb which killed nine patrolmen and one woman at the police station, Nov. 24, 1917.

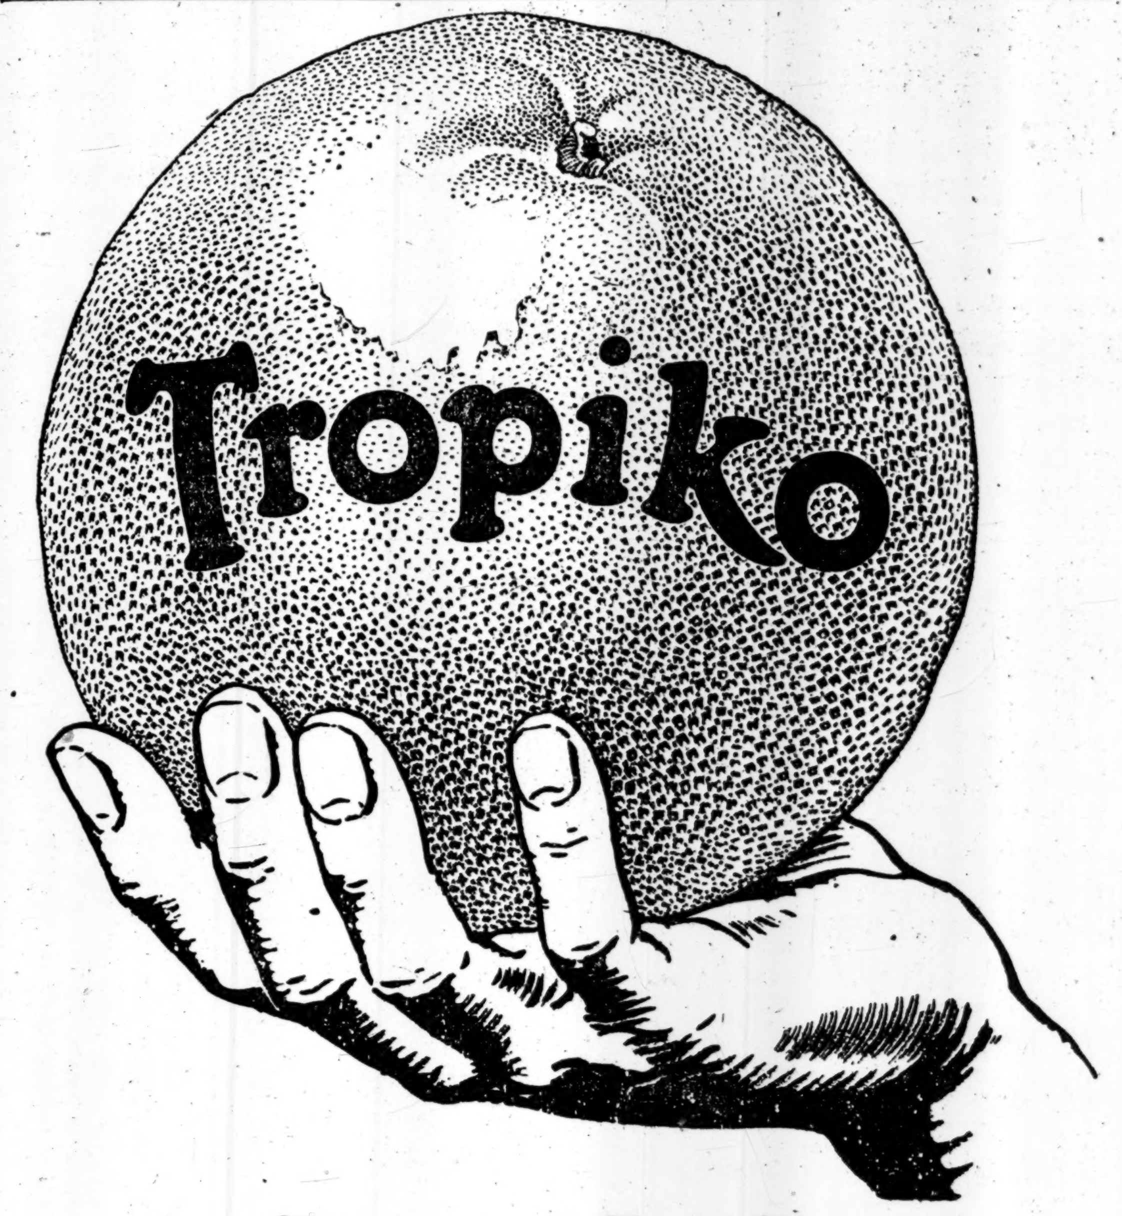
That he did this in hopes of killing detective Paul Wieler and Albert Templin, who arrested and secured the conviction of his brother, Bruno Costerella, 25 years old, on a charge of white slavery. Bruno Costerella was convicted and sentenced to four years at Fort Leavenworth, Nov. 2, 1917.

That Costerella's brother sent the bomb which wrecked the Chicago Post Office from Duluth, Minn., to Chicago, and that Dominick, her husband, was implicated in the affair.

That two years ago he killed Frank Susco, South Milwaukee ice cream maker.

That her husband was implicated in several shootings and knifings throughout the country.

That he was the leader of a Black Hand society, which worked between Milwaukee and Chicago, and that he had stolen $200 worth of merchandise from a downtown department store, where he was employed.



The name Tropiko now clearly marked on each Tropiko Grapefruit

Look for the name Tropiko branded right on the skin of the fruit—the color of the mark shows the grade of fruit.

This is a new departure in fruit selling—and a most important one. From now on you will know when you eat a Tropiko, for each one is branded, and every one bearing the trade-mark Tropiko is guaranteed delicious and juicy.

Tropiko Grapefruit is grown in the rich Northern valleys of Porto Rico, where the warm, tropical sunshine, the moist air of the sea, and the fertile soil combine ideally to grow the best-flavored and juiciest grapefruit in the world.

The big Porto Rican fruit growers deliver their crop of grapefruit to the Fruit Exchange experts, who select and set aside the finest of the fruit—those that are heaviest with juice. These are the only ones branded with the name Tropiko.

DEALERS
